MYSTIC ORIENT LIVES ANEW ON LOVELY ISLAND

Jackson Park Group 33% Complete.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

A vista, half a mile long and 200 feet wide, bordered by trees and flowering shrubs and commanded at its southern end by the red, green, and gold pillars and roofs of the Lama temple that was one of the stateliest sights of a Century of Progress. Commanded at its other end by the white, black, red, and gold lattices and copper roofs of the wing shaped Japanese pavilions that were the most bewitching architectural feature of the World's Fair of '93.

GEORGE T. DONOGHUE.

And the temple surrounded by a close-clipped hedge of Chinese elm 25 feet high and 20 feet broad and by—this the innermost encirclement—a moat 30 feet wide and planted with lotus lilies and other aquatic plants.

Haven for Feathered Pilgrims.

At the four corners of the temple swinging bronze bells to play deep-toned accompaniments to songs of the birds that will haunt the spot.

And drifting down from the northern end of the vista the remote murmur of a cascade that tumbles and laughs and chatters into a lagoon set with Elizabeth Haseltine's solemn and intent sentinels—her carvings in enduring tulip-poplar wood of a heron, a kingfisher, and a squirrel.

It is no indefinite Belasco dream for a lovely stage picture.

A third of the work—the northern third—has been finished. Plans for the southern third and the connecting vista were completed yesterday.

Task to Require a Year.

Construction will begin in November and will continue for a year at a cost of from ninety to a hundred thousand dollars, with George T. Donoghue, Robert E. Moore Jr., and E. V. Buchbaum of the Chicago park district in charge.

Vincent Bendix, who gave the Lama temple to A Century of Progress, has formally signed the unique structure over to the park district with the sole condition that it be reërected on an appropriate site. The park commissioners chose the historic wooded island which was an old-age triumph of great Frederick Law Olmsted [1822-1903], landscape artist of the fair of '93 and designer of New York's Central park. Last Wednesday was the thirty-second anniversary of his death.

A Masterpiece and a Marvel.

The temple consists of 30,900 separate pieces of richly carved and decorated wood and 25,000 copper roof plates covered with 23.12 karat gold leaf. It weighs 390 tons and contains no nails, all the parts being grooved and mortised. It will be taken apart and moved piece by piece from the abandoned fair grounds, not by truckmen, but by furniture movers who will pad each piece and cover it with canvas. Such is the store the park commissioners set by Mr. Bendix's gift.

Work on the northern motif in the new scheme of island adornment occupied eleven months and was done by a hundred artists and artisans who put heart and feeling into it if ever men did. It is now finished except for the restoration of the delicate frescoes and ceiling panels of the Japanese pavilions.

Fitting Memorial Buildings.

Those structures were the gift of Japan to the World's Fair of forty-two years ago. Therefore they and the Lama temple, and the superb vista connecting them, will beautifully and fittingly commemorate our two great fairs.

They will do more than that.

They will make the wooded island one of the world's Baedecker sights—something no experienced traveler will be willing to miss any more than he would be willing to miss the restored Williamsburg in Virginia or South Carolina's Magnolia gardens in

VESSEL ON REEF AS HURRICANE HITS FLORIDA

Miami, Other Cities Await Blow.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 3 [Tuesday].—(AP)—Aground on a hurricane lashed reef, the steamship Dixie rested in a perilous position early today off the Florida keys as her 229 passengers and 140 members of the crew anxiously awaited rescue by coast guard and other vessels speeding to their aid.

The Dixie, New York bound from New Orleans, struck Carysfort reef, 20 miles east of Key Largo and about 50 miles south of Miami, at the height of a tropical storm raging across the tip of the Florida peninsula. Winds of more than 80 miles an hour velocity earlier had been reported in the vicinity.

Among the passengers on the Dixie are Mr. and Mrs. George W. Weatherby III. of 6933 Oglesby avenue, Chicago. Weatherby is connected with the Dell Publishing company. His father, George W. Weatherby, is vice president of the W. D. Boyce company.

Indications at midnight were that neither Miami nor Key West would feel the full force of the blow, which was described by weather observers as small in area but of hurricane intensity. Early today weather bureau officials expressed the belief that all danger of hurricane winds on the east coast of Florida had passed.

Report Rain and Heavy Seas.

The wind here reached a maximum of 45 miles an hour about 11:30 last night, and at Key West 42 miles was recorded about the same time. Rain and heavy seas marked the storm's passage for a considerable distance up both coasts.

The coast guard tug Carrabasset and the cutter Saukee were ordered to the Dixie in response to the ship's call for assistance, received by Radiomarine corporation. All other communication facilities in the vicinity were disrupted.

Officers of the rescue craft said they probably would experience considerable difficulty in reaching the stranded vessel because of the huge waves lashing the coast.

Vessels on Way to Rescue.

The Carrabasset, going out from Port Everglades, faced the possibility of waiting within the breakwater until the wind moderated. At 3:15 a. m. it was learned that neither it or the Saukee had yet left their bases. The coast guard cutter Pandora, out of Miami, is speeding to the rescue.

The Dixie is owned and operated by the Morgan lines of the Southern Pacific Steamship company. It was not known whether any other ships were in her vicinity, but if they were conditions for attempting a rescue were extremely hazardous.

The Reaper, a Texas Oil company steamer, 50 miles away, was the nearest. Ninety miles away was the steamer Watertown of the Cities Service Transport company, also heading for the Dixie. The Reaper was making slow progress toward the Dixie, but at 3:15 a. m. was less than 35 miles from the distressed ship. The El Occidente of the Morgan line reported she was making for the reef in a rescue effort.

Dixie Pounding Heavily.

The Dixie still was sending weak distress signals at 1:45 a. m. [Chicago time], Radiomarine corporation said.

The latest message from her read: "We are pounding heavily; not making much —[garbled]—seas and wind heavy; 400 aboard."

The garbled word was believed to be "water," Radiomarine said.

The Dixie previously had reported her main radio receiving equipment and antennæ were gone and that she was under emergency equipment.

Center of Storm.

Citizens of Key West breathed a sigh of relief as the storm center moved northward of the island city, but those in mainland cities and towns all the way around the coast from West Palm Beach to Punta Gorda on the gulf hastily took precautions.

An advisory at 10 p. m. placed the center of the disturbance near Matacumbe key, about 50 miles north of Key West and 75 miles southwest of Miami. At 3 a. m. the weather bureau fixed the center of the storm about midway between Key West and Everglades City, moving slowly northwestward.

Only minor damage reports had

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Sept. 2.—Japan, through Ambassador Tamekichi Ota, formally protested to the soviet government today against the propagandistic activities of the comintern [communistic internationale] in Japan. The official reaction here to the step has not yet been indicated.

Let Hull Have "Last Word."

MOSCOW, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Russian officials showed no disposition today to deprive Secretary of State Hull of the last word in the incident which arose out of communist internationale activities.

They said, laconically, there is "no reaction" to report in connection with Hull's statement that future friendly relations between the nations depend on strict adherence by the soviets to their pledge of noninterference with American affairs.

The United States' protest was based upon reports that participants in the communist congress were planning anti-governmental activities in the United States.

TROOPS CALLED AT TAMPA; FEAR POLL OUTBREAK

Tallahassee, Fla., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Immediate mobilization of about 300 National Guardsmen in the armory at Tampa in readiness for duty if disorders break out in tomorrow's municipal election there was ordered tonight by Gov. Dave Sholtz.

The governer said his mobilization order was issued after he received reports that conflict might break out between forces of Sherif Will C. Spencer and the city election board, as both the board and the sherif claimed authority over conduct of the election.

Bonds were posted by Sherif Spencer for 600 special county officers to work tomorrow at the polling places. Special officers were sworn in by Chief of Police R. G. Tittsworth to augment city forces.

Starlings Annoy Him; Can't Scare Them, So He'll Move

Hempstead, L. I., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Eugene Bauer, a builder and contractor, said today that the starlings would have to leave the block in which he lives or he would. He was beginning to think, he added, that he would be the one to move as the birds vexed him to the point of desperation, and nothing he could do seemed to annoy them much.

"5 Cent Killer" Gets Life in Mississippi Prison

Iuka, Miss., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Holbert Caldwell, convicted of killing Ed Johnston, secretary of the Iuka Chamber of Commerce, during an argument over 5 cents, was sentenced to life in the state penitentiary here today.

Notables Will Attend Ickes Funeral Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes, wife of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, will be held at 3 p. m. today in the family home at 900 Private road, Winnetka. The body of Mrs. Ickes, who was killed Saturday afternoon in an automobile accident at Velarde, N. M., is to arrive in Chicago on a Santa Fe train at 8:45 a. m.

Attending the funeral will be Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President; Secretary of War George Dern and Mrs. Dern, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper and Mrs. Roper, Gov. Henry Horner, Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the secretary of agriculture; Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, and possibly Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Delegation from Legislature.

There will also be a delegation from the Illinois house of representatives, in which Mrs. Ickes served three terms.

The services, to be conducted by the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard, pastor of Christ Episcopal church, Winnetka, will be simple. Members of the family will act as pallbearers and the burial will be private, with only the family attending.

Mrs. Roosevelt left New York on the Wolverine train of the Michigan Central railroad yesterday afternoon and is to arrive at Central station, Michigan avenue and Roosevelt road, at 1:15 p. m. She will proceed at once to the Ickes home. She will be escorted through Rogers Park and Evanston by motorcycle policemen from Evanston.

Ickes Here From Capital.

Secretary Ickes arrived in Chicago from Washington yesterday morning. Accompanied by his son, Wilmarth, Mrs. Ruth Hampton, a family friend, and William H. McCrillis, one of his aids, he went at once to the Winnetka home. There he was joined by his other sons, Raymond and Robert, and his daughter, Mrs. W. ReQua Bryant. All remained in seclusion through the day.

Speaker John P. Devine [Dem., Dixon] of the Illinois house of representatives will attend the funeral with the following committee: Majority Leader Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem., Chicago], Minority Leader Leroy M. Green [Rep., Rockford], Representative Bernice T. Van Der Vries [Rep., Winnetka], who succeeded Mrs. Ickes; Representative David E. Shanahan [Rep., Chicago]; Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill [Rep., Downers Grove], and Representative James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee].

Numerous messages of condolence were received yesterday by Mr. Ickes. These came from personal and political friends in all parts of the country.

Death Car Driver Dies.

From Santa Fe., N. M., yesterday came a dispatch stating that Frank Allen of Gallup, N. M., driver of the car in which Mrs. Ickes was killed, had died in St. Vincent's hospital. Allen never recovered consciousness after the accident.

Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, noted newspaper writer, and Ibrahim Seyfullah, secretary of the Turkish embassy in Washington, also hurt in the crash, were reported improving. Each suffered a fractured pelvis. Dr. James B. Herrick, father-in-law of Mrs. Herrick, was informed that she is out of danger.

District Attorney David Chavez of Santa Fe is conducting an investigation of the accident, which occurred at the mouth of a rugged canyon. He said there was no evidence to support the story that a hit and run driver in a black sedan had struck the Ickes car. Chavez said that charts made by a state police indicated that the car had been driven on a soft shoulder of the road and had gone out of control.

U. OF I. SENIOR ZOOLOGY STUDENT BITTEN BY ONE OF HIS RATTLESNAKES

Charles Kaplan, 1308 South Keeler avenue, 22 years old, a senior in the zoölogy department at the University of Illinois, who was bitten on the right index finger by one of three diamondback rattlesnakes he was transferring from one cage to another in the home of his friend, James Kotes, 1509 South Tripp avenue, was reported to be in a serious condition in the Mercy hospital last night.

Kaplan obtained the snakes in Elgin and intended to preserve them in alcohol. He left them at Kotes' home and last night, with a second friend, Lew Kandl, 1521 South Tripp avenue, he attempted to move them. One of the two foot reptiles sank its fangs in his finger.

It was some time before he and Kandl found serum to counteract the poison in a drug store at 5034 Cottage Grove avenue. The serum was injected by Dr. J. E. Leahy, 918 Hyde Park boulevard, and Kaplan was then taken to the hospital.

Southern California Hit by Sharp Earthquake

San Bernardino, Cal., Sept. 2.—(AP)—A sharp earthquake, extending over a 70 mile area, was felt here at 10:45 p. m. [1:45 a. m. Chicago time] tonight. No damage was reported from any of the cities affected. The shock was felt in Riverside and Redlands. It extended as far north as Victorville and as far south as Corona. Its duration was about five seconds.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Closely guarded by department of justice agents, William Weaver, under indictment in the $200,000 Edward G. Bremer kidnaping, and Myrtle Eaton, wanted in the same case, were brought to St. Paul this afternoon. They arrived from Chicago by plane at almost the same hour as their capture near Daytona, Fla., was announced by the department of justice at Washington.

The pair, sought for more than a year, were taken to the Ramsey county jail where they will await arraignment.

Also on the plane were another woman and a baby. The woman was a government agent and the baby a boy adopted by the Eaton woman four months ago.

Tells of Capture.

Some time after the arrival of the plane E. J. Connelley, special agent, who has been in charge of the Bremer investigation from the start, announced that Weaver and his sweetheart had been arrested at a chicken ranch two miles south of Allandale, Fla., and about seven miles south of Daytona Beach, on United States highway No. 1.

He refused to reveal how the hideout of the former convict was located, but said that information which led to their capture came from several sources. They were taken by surprise at 11 a. m. Sunday and had no chance to resist.

Neither Weaver nor the woman had become acquainted with persons living in the vicinity of the house. They had been living there for several months, Connelley said.

The 2 year old boy whom they had with them was adopted by the Eaton woman, he said, evidently in an attempt to give the couple a cloak of respectability which would help hide their identity. He was adopted in a Florida town, the agent said, the name of which he did not recall.

Led Raiding Party.

Connelley, who led the party which made the capture and who brought the couple here, also helped direct a raid on the Florida hideout of Fred and "Ma" Barker, in which the gang leader and his mother were killed after a prolonged gun battle.

Accompanying Weaver and the Eaton woman, in addition to the baby, were five special agents from other divisions. They were met at the airport here by a half dozen local federal agents.

Indicted as Abductor.

Weaver was one of eight members of the Barker-Karpis gang charged with the actual abduction of Bremer, young St. Paul banker and heir to brewery millions. The Eaton woman was charged with assisting with arrangements made by the gang for a hideout in St. Paul previous to the kidnaping, which occurred on Jan. 17, 1934. Bremer was held 21 days in a house at Bensenville, Ill.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Five thousand Ethiopian regular troops, accompanied by great quantities of ammunition, set out from Harrar today for a field base.

The troop movements coincided with the first distribution by Emperor Haile Selassie of gas masks to his subjects in anticipation of a possible gas bombing by Italian forces.

The tribesmen, never having seen gas masks before, examined them with incredulity, and when mask equipped soldiers appeared in the streets they caused more fear than curiosity.

Call Off Mimic Air Raid.

To the accompaniment of beating drums and sounding trumpets, town criers announced that the government had called off a mimic air raid, fearing the natives might mistake it for a real raid.

[The Reuter's correspondent at Diredawa, Ethiopia, said he heard an unconfirmed report that an advance guard of 1,000 Italian troops, with 1,500 native troops, crossed the Ethiopian frontier west of Assab. An official denial of the report was issued at Rome.]

The Ethiopian emperor, in bolstering his nation's defense forces, ordered modernization of his army's communication system by use of portable wireless sets of an American pattern.

Sets Mounted on Mules.

It was announced that small wireless sets, mounted on mules and capable of keeping the capital in touch with headquarters on both the north and south frontiers, have been sent with trained operators to the principal chieftains of the empire.

The wireless sets would supplement, but not supplant, Ethiopia's ancient methods of communication by means of drums, smoke signals, fires, rockets, and human voices, relayed from hill to hill.

Under this system Ethiopian warriors shout across the mountain passes such communications and commands as "victory," "advance," "defeat," "retreat," and "begin fire."

There is also in existence a primitive but satisfactory nation-wide system of single iron wires, serving for telephone communications. Iron is used because the tribes appropriate any copper wire to make bracelets, anklets, and wedding rings.

Egyptians Offer Aid.

Prince Ismail Daoud, a nephew of King Fuad of Egypt, notified Haile Selassie that he would come to Ethiopia soon as a representative of Egyptians who wish to assist Ethiopia. The emperor ordered special accommodations to be prepared for Prince Ismail and his entourage.

Italian diplomats experienced a bad scare when Lidj Gabre Aschubert, who has a reputation among the educated of his country as a writer, emptied a revolver in front of the Italian legation. Aschubert insisted he only wanted to test the pistol, but the emperor ordered him chained.

Explosion Frightens Natives.

Dynamiting of the rocky bank of a river passing the German legation, which is constructing a bombproof shelter to accommodate 150 persons, caused natives to believe war had begun. Explosions shook the entire legation quarter, causing natives to flee in fright.

Following the German example, the Swedish legation began construction of a dugout.

Thus far the American legation has no bombproof cave, but the sturdy stone residence which once belonged to the Ethiopian war minister might be used as an emergency shelter for the fifty-odd Americans here.

Earlier in the day Haile Selassie told European powers plainly that he intends to do what he pleases within his own empire.

Smiles at Protests.

The British, French, and Italian ministers made representations to the emperor concerning his concession to American interests for development of more than half his land, but he merely beamed upon them and insisted on his rights to do what he willed within his own house.

To the British minister, Sir Sidney Barton, who urged Haile Selassie to recall the concession, the king of kings replied only: "Peace be unto you."

Astonishment persisted among foreign legations at the emperor's granting of the concession for exploitation of oil and mineral resources to the American interests. A belief prevailed that the soft spoken emperor had upset all the calculations and plans of European powers.

Foreign legal experts said the charter was more explicit than previous similar contracts, eliminating the possibility of disputes and showing extreme care in the work of American lawyers who drew up the charter.

The experts said there was nothing in the document to prevent the American interests concerned from ceding their concession to another company or government. In previous contracts Ethiopia forbade such a transfer. Neither are there any of the usual rigorous penalties if the engagement is unfulfilled.

Britain Backs Down.

A specification that any government action in the matter shall be made by a council of ministers instead of an individual removed the possibility that action by any single representative of the government might be repudiated on the ground that he acted without authority.

The British government, after being informed of Haile Selassie's defiance, was understood to have revoked its original instructions to its minister to advise a withdrawal of the concession, and directed him merely to watch events and seek additional information concerning possible political implications.

British, French, and Italian diplomats, at first astonished by the granting of the concession, said they found, upon reading the text of the charter, that England was not directly involved.

Ethiopian government authorities, however, said they expected a formal Italian protest on the ground that the concession contravened Italian rights under existing treaties.

Arab Troops to Aid Italy.

ROME, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Gen. Italo Balbo, governor of Libya, reported to Premier Benito Mussolini tonight that hundreds of Arab troops have already departed for East Africa and their places in the Libyan army are being filled by volunteers.

Balbo, leader of the 1933 trans-Atlantic flight of an Italian squadron of planes to Chicago, discussed at great length with Il Duce the situation in the northern African colonies.

In connection with their conversation, reliable scources reported Italy has two divisions of regulars ready to move toward the frontier separating Egypt and Libya as protection against any hostilities between England and Italy.

More Soldiers Sail.

The steamer Belvedere sailed from Naples with 134 officers and 1,375 Fascist Black Shirt soldiers, destined for service in East Africa. The steamer Sacro Cuore also sailed, bearing 500 tons of chemical and aeronautical materials. Preparations went ahead at Naples for the embarkation of 4,000 troops to sail during the week for Africa.

An announcement said 200,000 men, called to the colors this month from the classes of 1911, 1913, and 1914, would be held under arms for a period of not less than three months. It was the first indication given as to the length of service the government anticipated for the men to serve.

The usually government inspired press offered the new Ethiopian concessions as final evidence of Italy's duty to refuse any compromise in the African dispute.

The concessions, Giornale d'Italia said, might give Italy the right to file an accusation against Great Britain when the Italo-Ethiopian question comes before the league of nations council meeting Wednesday. The Giornale is edited by Virginio Gayda, considered to reflect most accurately Premier Mussolini's ideas.

The Italian delegation, headed by Foreign Minister Pompeo Aloisi, left for Geneva for the meeting.

France Turns Down Britain's Demand to Punish Italy

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The Rickett oil concession in Ethiopia has killed all chance of collective military sanctions [penalties] against Italy. Premier Pierre Laval delivered this warning to Capt. Anthony Eden this afternoon following the arrival of the British league of nations minister by plane to prepare for the league council meeting on the Ethiopian crisis. The council session opens in Geneva Wednesday.

If England wants to take sanctions against Premier Mussolini she will have to take them alone, the French premier is understood to have declared. The French for their part are not willing to die for a pipeline. If French sources are to be trusted, Laval's stand will be backed up by the little entente [Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania] whose fear of Germany outweighs traditional hatred of Italy.

Assures Paris of Support.

Premier Milan Stoyadinovich of Jugo-Slavia, the new leader of the little entente, arrived in Paris to confer with Laval today and French semi-official sources insist he gave definite assurance the little entente does not want to precipitate a league crisis by forcing Italy out.

What the real British position is remains a mystery to the French. Officially the British take the stand that since no British capital is involved in the Rickett deal the affair does not in any way affect the major issue at stake—Italian aggression against Ethiopia. Hence, the British demand for sanctions is as strong as ever.

Behind this official screen, however, the British attitude has noticeably changed since a few weeks ago and the British delegation at Geneva will definitly be on the defensive.

The French are jubilant over this. Consequently hope is running high in Paris once more that some kind of last minute compromise can be arranged owing to the bad strategic position in which the British have been placed. Striking while the iron is hot, Laval at once opened discussion with Eden of the report the British will submit to Geneva on diplomatic negotiations since the last council meeting.

The British are anxious to present the document as a joint Anglo-French report and the French are anxious to see the original British text toned down so as to offend the Italian susceptibilities as little as possible. Horsetrading opened along these lines, and while an agreement has not yet been reached both parties seem to regard it is possible.

Italy May Accept Offers.

It is believed here that there is some possibility of an eventual compromise, providing hostilities do not break out in the next few days.

The British, it is believed, will consent to dilatory tactics by the council while Mussolini, perhaps, will reflect on the risks of a long war against open or secret British opposition and decide to accept the handsome offers which already have been made him, providing they are touched up like new concessions.

The Italo-Ethiopian arbitration committee wound up its work here tonight. The report on the commission's findings as to responsibility for the border clash at Ualual last December was sent to the Italian and Ethiopian governments. The findings will be kept secret until Rome and Addis Ababa choose to release it.

CRACK BRITISH FLEET STEAMS INTO LINE AT ENTRANCE TO SUEZ

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(AP)—As the critical hour approached today for the league of nations council to take up the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, Great Britain's crack Mediterranean fleet today steamed into strategic positions around the entrance to the Suez canal.

At Portland the home fleet lay with steam up, awaiting sailing orders. Malta workmen rushed preparations for defensive fighting there, while other ports shared the tension as grim ships steamed to their stations along the famed lifeline of the empire.

The British admiralty termed these activities prosaically as routine maneuvers. Nevertheless they brought Britain's crack home and Mediterranean units into a quick liaison extending from England to Port Said.

There was excitement in Port Said, Alexandria, and Haifa as the great gray dreadnaughts eased into the harbors for a series of visits expected to keep the ships in the vicinity until the end of October.

Workmen prepared to swing a huge boom defense across Grand harbor at Malta tomorrow. Precautions against an aerial attack were being made ready there, also.

The aircraft carrier, Glorious, reached Malta, and the destroyer Wessex was steaming there from Gibraltar. After its arrival the Glorious set out for Alexandria.

Fall maneuvers off Scotland were announced by officials for the home fleet at Portland. They are to begin Sept. 9.

REFUSE TO LOAD SHIP WITH MEAT FOR ITALY'S ARMY

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Dock workers refused today to load the Italian freighter Sabbia with a cargo of South African chilled meat destined for the Italian army in East Africa.

The Cape Province's trade union organization decided to "appeal to the conscience of South Africa" in defense of the action of the dock workers.

PREDICT LEAGUE WILL NOT MARCH AGAINST IL DUCE

Difficulty Also Seen in Economic Penalties.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 2.—There will be no military sanctions [penalties] taken against Italy in the Ethiopian quarrel, and economic sanctions will be extremely difficult to make effective in view of the fact that important manufacturing countries like Germany and Japan are outside the league of nations.

On the eve of the meeting of the league council to consider the dispute this was the considered opinion of the British government, for which, however, no member was willing to be quoted. Nevertheless, it is known that this was the conclusion reached after a careful examination of the whole situation.

At the same time it must be understood that Great Britain is willing and ready to march against Italy in case of unanimous agreement by league powers that she must be coerced.

Ready for Any Eventuality.

Fleet movements, strengthening of garrisons in the Mediterranean, and other signs show she is ready for any eventuality, but she does not expect that particular eventuality to arise.

"Unanimity for military sanctions may be regarded as outside the sphere of practical politics," one diplomat said. "There is much more enthusiasm for economic sanctions which might be partially successful. Neither Germany nor Japan is in the league and they would be free to supply Italy with goods, munitions, and armaments if Italy had the money to pay for them. Neither, however, is in a position to extend large credits, so economic sanctions might be partially successful.

Meanwhile, Britain has pulled moral eminence out of what seemed disaster in connection with the F. M. Rickett oil concession to an American corporation. When first announced Saturday the whole world assumed that Britain had played a sharp trick on Italy by getting a concession for everything worth while in Ethiopia.

Britain Clears Up "Mess."

Quick repudiation of Rickett by the British foreign office, the request to Emperor Haile Selassie to withdraw the concession and the announcement that no Briton is concerned in the transaction, cleared England and put her in an even better moral position than before.

Britain will therefore be able to go to the league council Wednesday saying not only that she knew nothing of the concession, but has done all in her power to defeat its ratification.

French Colony in Africa Gets More Troops to Guard Border

BY WILL BARBER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Sept. 2.—Two hundred Senegalese soldiers arrived here at midnight to reinforce the frontier guard between French Somaliland and Ethiopia. They bring up the number of Senegalese troops in the French colony to 450, and these imported troops are supplemented by the French Somali soldiery.

Their chief duty will be to prevent the Ethiopian Danakils from using the threatened war with Italy as a convenient excuse to raid their enemies, the French Somalis—and the French Somalis from attacking the Danakils. The Senegalese also will be used to intern any Ethiopian soldiers who may stray over the border, as the British intend to do if Ethiopians wander from Ogaden province into British Somaliland.

Djibouti Bustling Town.

Djibouti is a funny town now. When this correspondent was here eleven weeks ago the hotels were begging for trade. The only life in the steaming streets was provided by skirted, half-naked Somali boys ready to do almost anything for a few francs.

Now the town is bursting with people. In the three chief hotels guests are sleeping three in a room unless they were lucky enough to have reserved rooms in advance and plucky enough to insist on their rights. The reason is many foreigners are leaving Ethiopia. Some are giving up their life occupations for fear of war. Most of them are Greeks with Italian citizenship, but there are also British, Hindus, and French.

Sixty persons arrived yesterday afternoon—the correspondents' train was so jammed that two coaches had to be added at Diredawa in the morning—because French women and children on holiday at Diredawa decided it was wiser to depart. More arrived today by express train from Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia.

Draw Color Line.

Not until the war is under way will any one be able to say whether it was better to stay or depart. There is no more than the customary dislike for foreigners shown in Addis Ababa, and along the railroad to Djibouti there were not the slightest hostile demonstrations. The only incident was when a small boy called the trainload of foreigners Italians, but no one took the boy's gibes seriously.

One reason why foreigners do not like Ethiopia is because the Greek hotel keepers "up and down the line," as Europeans call the railroad, draw the color line. They do their utmost to prevent Ethiopians from stopping at their hotels, not openly, though. They use the old gag about all the rooms being taken though half their rooms are empty, and they win. An Englishman on the train approved of the color line, but anotner Englishman remarked:

"After all, these hotel keepers are dependent on the Ethiopians' good will for their livelihoods, perhaps even for their lives. To draw the color line, it seems, is cheeky, since Ethiopia still belongs to the Ethiopians and they are masters in their own country."

British Troops Due Tomorrow.

It is the attitude of the first Englishman and other foreigners which makes it necessary, in foreigners' minds, to bring in British troops to guard the legation in Addis Ababa to which many foreigners will flee in event of trouble. One hundred and fifty Punjab soldiers are due Wednesday from India and they will be rushed up as secretly as possible.

Greece to Stay Neutral in Any Mediterranean War

ATHENS, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The foreign office announced today that Greece will remain neutral in any struggle for sea power in the Mediterranean. The foreign office said it based its policy on the provisions of the Balkan entente pact and the mutual defense alliance with Italy.

Strict War Plane Passage Rule Is Set Up by Egypt

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(AP)—A Reuter's [British] news agency dispatch from Cairo said the government had informed foreign powers that requests for permission to fly military airplanes over Egyptian territory must be received 15 days before such passage is required.

TURNER FORCED DOWN IN CLASSIC AIR SPEED RACE

Moline Flyer Wins Cup at Cleveland.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Municipal Airport, Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Harold Neuman of Moline, Ill., flying the white cabin monoplane, Mister Mulligan, which won the Bendix race last Friday, was the winner here this afternoon of the Thompson trophy race, the country's premier closed course speed event. Neuman's average speed was 220.194 miles an hour, far below the record speed of 252.69 miles an hour for this race.

Although Neuman was the winner, the race was a personal triumph for Roscoe Turner, the winner in 1934, who was forced to pull out at the beginning of the tenth lap when he had a 1 minute 32 second lead over the rest of the field. Turner's motor caught fire and he barely managed to get the tricky golden racing plane safely into the field.

Crowd Moans at Smoke.

The throng of 100,000 spectators who stayed through a light drizzle to see the annual speed meet had groaned simultaneously as they saw the tell-tale trail of smoke issue from Turner's Wedell-Williams low wing machine. They held their breath as he zoomed to an altitude from which he could easily bail out.

"Jump Roscoe! Get out of that job!" shouted experienced pilots who watched the smoke grow blacker and thicker as the little machine turned west, circling to head back into the east wind.

Turner stayed with the ship, glided low over a clump of trees, then down into the wide airport. For a moment his wings seemed to waver. "Don't stall her, don't stall her," the crowd cried. Then the plane touched, bounced, and rolled to a halt. Turner had cut the engine as he struck.

Not "Hard Luck" to Him.

"People say 'hard luck' to me," Turner said as he was taken to the public address system. "I don't think it was hard luck. I think it's good luck every time you can walk away from airplanes like that."

Meanwhile Neuman roared by overhead, the winner, but the crowd was interested first of all in Roscoe and cheered him until hoarse.

Neuman's race netted him $6,750. Most of this, of course, belongs to the veteran air line pilot, Benny Howard, who designed and built the white plane he calls Mister Mulligan. It was Howard, a Chicago resident, who flew it in the sensational race Friday to nose out Turner by 23½ seconds in the 2,042 mile flight from Los Angeles to Cleveland.

Wisconsin Flyer Second.

Second place went to S. J. Wittman of Oshkosh, Wis., who was flying a racer of his own design powered with a Curtiss D-12 liquid cooled engine of 600 horse power. His average speed was 218,686 miles an hour, and his prize money $3,750. Roger Don Rae of Lansing, Mich., flying a Keith Ryder with a 375 horse power Menasco engine, was third with an average speed of 213.942 miles, and winnings of $2,250.

Fourth place went to Joe Jackson of Kansas City, flying another Howard racer, an open cockpit low wing plane with a 225 horse power Menasco engine. His time was 209.103 miles. Fifth place was won by Lee Miles of Oklahoma City, flying a standard Sikorsky amphibian plane with a 715 horse power Cyclone engine. Miles made the 150 miles at an average of 193.594 miles per hour. Jacobson won $1,500, and Miles $750.

Record Held by Doolittle.

Record time for the Thompson trophy race was set in 1932 by Maj. James Doolittle flying a barrel fuselaged Gee Bee racer with a Wasp engine. His record of 252.69 has never been approached closer than in 1934 when Turner's speed was 248.19 miles an hour in the same ship which failed him today.

Earl Ortman, who was forced out of the Bendix race Friday by engine trouble, flew into Cleveland less than an hour before the Thompson race was scheduled to start. He fueled his Keith Ryder monoplane, powered with a Wasp Jr. engine, and prepared to start.

However, officials ruled that he could not race because he had not qualified his ship. The qualifying speed is 225 miles an hour and every plane flying in the race was forced to demonstrate that it possessed this speed over a straightaway course.

Turner Averages 245.

Turner's average speeds had been well over 245 miles an hour today until he was put out by the trouble in his 1,000 horse power Hornet power plant.

Neuman is an angular young man of 27 years, who has had four years' experience in high speed airplane racing. He has flown only once before in the race he won today, in 1934 when he took fifth place in the same low wing Howard racer that Jacobson won fourth in today.

As the starter's flag went down heavy black smoke poured out of the engine of the Delgrado Maid, a low wing racer powered with a Curtiss D-12 liquid cooled engine. The pilot, Clarence McArthur, and several mechanics put out the fire, but the race had begun.

Turner took the lead on the first pylon, flying at 100 feet, and steadily pulled away from the rest of the field.

Settle Quickly to Grind.

Almost immediately the little ships settled into position, Neuman alone increasing his speed. On the second lap he was in fourth position and by the sixth he had passed Wittman and was out after Turner. Apparently, however, full throttle of his Wasp could not close up the gap.

They held their positions steadily then until the beginning of the ninth lap, when Turner pulled out of the race and landed when apparently he had the trophy in his pocket.

Art Chester of Glenview, Ill., finally had his revenge on Lee Miles of Oklahoma City, whose tiny green monoplane racer he had chased through several earlier races. In the 40 mile free for all race for engines of 375 cubic inch displacement for a $3,500 prize, Chester trailed Miles the first two lapse then caught him and pulled ahead to win easily with an average speed of 200.56 miles an nour. Miles' average was 193.67 miles and S. J. Wittman of Oshkosh, Wis., took third with 187.82 miles. Chester's winnings were $1,575.

Start for Distance Mark.

After the Thompson trophy race James E. Prosser and Bert Stoll, Cleveland flyers, took off in their cabin Bellanca plane for Bahia Blanca, Argentina, nearly 6,000 miles from this city. They are going south in six easy stages but are to attempt a nonstop return flight in an effort to break the present world's distance record held by the French aces, Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi. It is now 5,400 miles.

THOSE FICKLE DOORS JUST WON'T STAY PUT, AND BETTORS WALK IN

The Dev-Lin resort at Devon and Lincoln avenues in Tessville, which has continued to operate as a gambling house after practically all other such places in the county have been closed, was doing business again yesterday afternoon.

Residents of Tessville reported that the Dev-Lin, which had been closed on Aug. 24, reopened on Thursday for afternoon sessions only. Bets on horse races were accepted, it was said, but roulette and other games have ceased and no effort is made to operate at night. The doors were barred all day Sunday, there being no racing.

Patronage, even on this restricted basis, has been large. Between 400 and 500 automobiles were parked near the resort yesterday afternoon.

MINES SEARCHED FOR CLEWS TO LOST CAPITALIST

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Into the labyrinths of gold and other mines in which he was interested, searchers went today seeking some clew to the disappearance of Joseph W. Ady Jr., 53, geologist-capitalist.

Three days of investigation left Inspector I. B. Bruce, Colorado Springs criminologist, no nearer a solution of the case than he was Friday night when Ady disappeared.

The financial interests of Ady were widespread. From them Inspector Bruce hoped to sift the clew that would solve the case.

Bruce questioned a number of Ady's friends but could find none who had seen him since the geologist left his home. His wife said her husband replied when she called after he had gone to his room Friday evening. A short time later dinner was announced and she called again, but obtained no response.

SIX HURT AS CARS CRASH HEAD ON; THREE MAY DIE

U. S. Toll Near 200

The Associated Press reported last night that a survey by the National Safety council showed the holiday week-end death toll to be 194, with scores injured.

Six persons were injured, three of them critically, last night in a collision of automobiles in Rand road south of Palatine road, near Mount Prospect.

The most critically injured are William Kamm, 35 years old, 2713 North 77th avenue, Elmwood Park; his wife, Mrs. Hattie Kamm, 35 years old, and their son, Thomas, 16 years old. The others are Walter Lysik, 21 years old, 1832 North Kedzie avenue; Walter Gaul, 22 years old, 2404 Station street, and Leo Jozenas, 22 years old, 2200 Fullerton avenue.

According to Lysik, with whom Gaul and Jozenas were riding, he was proceeding north when another northbound car, the driver of which has not been found, passed him and in doing so sideswiped his car. This caused the Lysik machine to hurtle to the other side of the road and crash into that driven by Kamm.

The Kamm party, all unconscious, were taken by the state highway police to the Northwest hospital at Des Plaines. The others, whose injuries were not quite so serious, were treated at the Mount Prospect hospital. The state police held Lysik while an investigation is being made.

Hold Death Car Driver.

Corliss Isbell, 33 years old, 4833 Langley avenue, colored, whose automobile plowed into a family group, killing a mother and her 10 year old daughter and injuring another daughter on Sunday night, was held to the grand jury yesterday on a manslaughter charge by a coroner's jury investigating the tragedy.

Witnesses said Isbell drove through the intersection of Cottage Grove avenue and 64th street at forty miles an hour and struck the victims as they attempted to cross Cottage Grove avenue. Those killed were Mrs. Anna Johnston, 41 years old, 632 East 85th place, and her daughter, Eleanor. Mrs. Johnston pushed two other daughters, Norma, 9 years old, and Annabelle, 12 years old, to safety when she saw the speeding car. Norma turned back to aid her mother just as the car struck the group, and was cut and bruised.

Policeman Edward Mullaney of the accident prevention bureau, testified at the inquest, held in the Woodlawn hospital, that Isbell repeatedly fell into a stupor at the Woodlawn police station after his arrest and that to all appearances he had been drinking. When first questioned Isbell was unable to recall what street he had been driving in, and did not know that his automobile had been in an accident, Mullaney said.

Tests by the police department showed, according to the inquest testimony, that the brakes on Isbell's car were defective. At a speed of thirty miles an hour the car rolled 65 feet after the brakes were applied full force.

Isbell refused to testify at the inquest on the advice of an attorney, stating that he was "too nervous."

Other witnesses testified that Mrs. Johnston was dragged and tumbled for more than 60 feet by the plunging automobile.

Rain Keeps Drivers Careful.

Intermittent rain and slippery streets caused motorists in the city to drive carefully and there were no fatal accidents within the city limits during the day.

Knut A. Flodin, 57 years old, 136 Interocean avenue, South Chicago Heights, was killed yesterday afternoon when he was struck in Chicago Heights by a car driven by Henry Guinup of Crete.

A second death was that of Russell Sitton, 60 years old, 4546 Jackson boulevard. He died in the Garfield Park hospital of injuries suffered a week ago when he was struck in front of 4654 Madison street.

These deaths raised the Cook county motor toll for 1935 to 621. Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 481 persons had been killed in accidents within the Chicago city limits and 11,116 injured.

Two Chicagoland Deaths.

Two Chicagoland deaths, the result of holiday accidents, were reported yesterday.

Joseph Wilusz, 52 years old, 3048 South Springfield avenue, died in St. Joseph hospital at Mishawaka, Ind., from injuries incurred in a head-on collision Sunday north of Mishawaka, in which four other persons were injured.

Milan Milosavljevich, 50 years old, 35 South Sheridan road, Waukegan, died in the Lake County General hospital in Waukegan of injuries incurred Sunday night when he walked into the path of an automobile at Sheridan road and Water street, Waukegan, during a rainstorm.

Nicholas Savas, 42 years old, of South Seattle, Wash., suffered a fractured left leg last night when he was struck by an automobile in front of 616 South Halsted street. The motorist picked up Savas and took him to the County hospital, but departed without making known his identity. The Maxwell street police started a search for the driver.

Rochester, Minn., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Senator James Couzens of Michigan was convalescing slowly but satisfactorily, Mayo clinic physicians said today.

ROBBERS USE CAN OPENERS AS GUNS IN FOUR HOLDUPS

Three young men, arrested last night at Irving Park boulevard and Greenview avenue by Sergt. John Nick and his police squad, admitted at the Town Hall station that they held up four pedestrians on the streets and, waving before them can openers that looked considerably like pistols, terrorized them into surrendering their money.

The men are William Todd, 27 years old, and his brother James, 23 years old, and Austin Leroy Fritz, 16 years old, 4432 Clifton avenue. In William Todd's pockets were found $14 and a wallet that had been taken from James Conger, 1436 Victoria street.

TRIES TO FLOAT 1¾ BILLION BONDS AT HIGHER RATE

Recent Setback Changes U. S. Sales Method.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—The government today launched a huge borrowing and refinancing program involving 1 billion 750 million dollars five days after it had tried unsuccessfully to float a small 100 million dollar bond issue.

In an effort to make the big new financing operation succeed, where the comparatively minor bond issue had failed, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau made two changes in the New Deal's methods of borrowing money. He abandoned the much criticized "auction" system of selling securities. He reverted to the practice of setting interest rates slightly above those prevailing in the bond markets.

May Be Test of Credit.

After the jolt which the New Deal received on Wednesday when it admitted that it was unable to find buyers for more than $85,262,000 worth of a 100 million dollar bond issue floated by the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation, the launching of the huge 1 billion 750 million dollar program attracted wide interest.

It will determine whether the failure of the small bond issues marked the breaking of government credit under the weight of New Deal extravagance or merely a temporary setback.

Purposes of Bond Issue.

Two operations are involved in the financing program announced today by Secretary Morgenthau.

1. The government will seek to borrow a half billion dollars in cash with which to pay the bills of the New Dealer spenders during the next few months. To raise this money the treasury is offering to sell to investors at par treasury notes bearing 1½ per cent interest and maturing in 1939.

2. The government is offering to refund 1 billion 250 million dollars' worth of the Fourth Liberty loan bonds, the last of the bonds floated during the war. In exchange for the Liberty bonds the treasury will give their present holders either new bonds bearing 2¾ per cent interest and maturing in 1947 or the new 1½ per cent notes maturing in 1939.

Last Liberty Refinancing.

This is the only refinancing offer for the Liberty bonds which the treasury will make, Secretary Morgenthau warned. If the Liberty bonds are not exchanged either for the new bonds or the new notes they will be paid off in cash on Oct. 15, the date for which they have been called, he announced.

In attempting to borrow 500 million dollars in cash on the new 1½ per cent notes, Secretary Morgenthau junked two New Deal innovations which, according to bond market gossip, brought the government grief when it was unsuccessfully endeavoring to borrow 100 million dollars last week.

Secretary Morgenthau abandoned the year old system of selling government securities at auction. The new notes will be offered at par only. Under the auction system used by the treasury in recent months securities were offered to the highest bidders. Under that system investors never were sure how much they would have to pay for the bonds or notes they wanted.

Changes Interest Policy.

Secretary Morgenthau also abandoned the policy of selling interest rates on new securities at approximately the ieveis prevailing in the money markets of the country. On each of the new securities being offered the treasury is allowing a slight "bonus" in interest rates over the current money rates, thus tending to insure the offerings against failure.

The new notes carry a 1½ per cent interest rate whereas comparable treasury note issues now outstanding were selling on a yield basis of approximately 1.3 per cent on Saturday. The new bonds carry a 2¾ per cent rate; the most nearly comparable outstanding federal bonds sold on a yield basis of 2.6 per cent on Saturday.

Avoids Padding of Bids.

Four special features marked the offering of new bonds and notes. Banks putting in cash bids for the new notes cannot bid for more than an amount equal to half of their combined capital and surplus, a provision intended to prevent padding of bids.

Investors other than banks must deposit with their bid either 5 per cent of the amount bid for or $5,000, whichever is the larger, if they bid for more than $5,000 worth. Bids for less than $5,000 must be covered by a full cash payment.

On the bonds, which are not for cash sale, Secretary Morgenthau reserves the right to increase the price above par at any time before Sept. 10, a provision designed to encourage prompt refunding of Liberty bonds. Also to stimulate refunding the treasury will pay interest on the Liberty bonds until Oct. 15 and start interest on the new bonds on Sept. 16, making one month in which double interest will be received.

Offers for the new bonds or notes will be handled through the reserve banks. Both issues are tax exempt. Both will be dated Sept. 16, 1935, bearing interest from that date.

Inquiry Started

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The department of commerce opened an investigation today into the crash of a twin motored Western Air express plane near Burbank, Cal. Three persons were killed when it fell last midnight. The dead were:

George C. Sherwood, 38, Los Angeles, pilot; Frederick N. Burlew, 23, Glendale, Cal., co-pilot, and Miss Donna Naylor, 21, Burbank, Cal., the stewardess.

They were burned to death as the plane fell shortly after taking off from Union Air terminal, Burbank, in a fog. The plane fell half a mile southeast of the airport, became entangled in a power line, and ignited. The plane was en route to Saugus, Cal., to pick up passengers. Twelve sacks of mail were burned.

C. N. James, vice president of Western Air in charge of operations, said in his opinion "something was wrong with either the plane or the pilot, we don't know which."

Field Museum Inaugurates Fall Visiting Hours Today

The Field Museum of Natural History today will inaugurate its autumn schedule with visiting hours from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. On Oct. 31 the winter schedule, 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., with the Saturday closing of 5 p. m., will go into effect.

JOBLESS LEAGUE IN OHIO CAMPS ON FAIR GROUNDS

Columbus, O., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The Ohio Unemployed league encamped at the state fair grounds coliseum today, postponing a march on the state capitol because all offices were closed for Labor day.

William Truax, who called the march with the assertion the unemployed would park on the capitol steps until Gov. Martin L. Davey called a special session of the legislature to finance relief, estimated 1,250 members were encamped.

Police investigated a report that thirty-four of the marchers had been poisoned by canned beef from the Ohio relief administration at the Sunday night meal. Dr. Ernest Cox, physician called by police, ordered three of the sufferers to a hospital.

Mrs. Stella Tagg, a volunteer nurse, asserted the cans in which the beef was packed were "so rusty that the cans almost crumbled in her hand."

Airline Seeks 60 Women to Serve as Hostesses

Jack Frye, president of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., announced yesterday in Kansas City that the airline soon will begin selection of 60 young women in 24 cities to serve as hostesses aboard the company's airliners. The addition of trained hostesses, all of whom must be graduate nurses, will cost the line about $180,000 annually, Frye said. The company will establish a training school for the young women at Kansas City.

3 STATES VOTE ON CHANGES FOR CONSTITUTIONS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Tests as to changes in state constitutions will be had in the primaries in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New Mexico on Sept. 17. In Pennsylvania the changes suggested by Gov. Earle, the first Democratic governor in more than forty years, are along the lines of the revision urged by some New Dealers in the federal constitution.

National Democratic leaders who believe that revision of the federal constitution should be made an issue in the 1936 election are watching the outcome of these elections. They assert that if two conservative states favor more advanced fundamental laws and New Mexico, representing progressive thought, goes strongly for revision it would be a cross-section of sentiment in the country.

Administration advisers who see the necessity of amending the constitution to permit of recovery and social legislation may, after conference with the President next year, offer amending resolutions in the next congress.

HOLIDAY TRAFIC HEAVY DESPITE RAIN AND CHILL

G. O. P. Riverview Rally Postponed to Sunday.

Heavy motor trafic streaming into Chicago yesterday evening gave evidence that Labor day's series of showers, drizzles, and mists was by no means able to prevent enjoyment of the holiday. The Chicago Motor club estimated that 360,000 automobiles traversed the highways during the day.

The rain kept trafic arteries from choking by prompting many week-end wanderers to start home early. At noon inbound cars were as thick on the roads as they became at any time up to midnight. The slippery pavements and the continuous columns of machines made speeding virtually impossible and compelled caution in driving.

G. O. P. Tickets Good Again.

Plans for picnics and other such outings in the Chicago area yielded, however, to the unkind skies. The Republicans were obliged to postpone to next Sunday their annual patriotic gathering at Riverview park. This event has been rained out for three successive years.

Arthur F. Albert, G. O. P. picnic chairman, said that the Labor day rally tickets will be good next Sunday, and that the same speakers will be on the program. They are Col. Frank Knox, editor and publisher of the Chicago Daily News, and John W. Bricker, attorney general of Ohio.

The most pretentious labor demonstration during the soaking day was the parade of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, which invited other unions to participate with it after the Chicago Federation of Labor decided not to hold a large demonstration this year. The butchers and other unionists paraded through the stockyards district to Sherman park, 52d and Loomis streets.

Interferes with Parks Program.

Rain curtailed some of the activities planned for the four day west side parks' festival which started yesterday. The schedule for Garfield park, consisting of a doll and buggy parade, tennis tournament, casting contest and horseshoe pitching, was carried out, but events in Humboldt, Douglas, and Columbus parks were not held.

Today Garfield park will be the scene of an Old Settlers' picnic and there will also be a night program. Tomorrow night all four parks will hold finals to select their candidates for west side festival queen and she will be crowned Thursday night at the Venetian night carnival in Garfield park.

According to the weather bureau, outdoor programs today face cool but unsettled weather, with showers likely at night.

Despite the rain yesterday, La Grange post, No. 41, of the American Legion opened its fifteenth annual fall festival at La Grange road and Elm street in the western suburb. The festival, which will continue through Sept. 7, includes a carnival and contests.

Youngsters Parade at West Side Parks Festival

ASSOCIATES GIVE FAREWELL DINNER FOR REV. GRIFFIN

Friends and associates of the Rev. Ambrose M. Griffin, O. S. M., retiring pastor of St. Domitilla's school, Hillside, gave him a farewell banquet last night at the Auditorium hotel. Father Griffin, who has been at St. Domitilla's for the last 10 years, is well known for his varied religious activities in the Chicago archdiocese. Before becoming pastor in Hillside he was a teacher for many years at St. Philip's High school. He will leave Chicago tonight to assume his new duties as prior of Our Lady of Sorrows school in Vancouver, B. C.

ECONOMIC STATE OF U. S. GAINING, GREEN DECLARES

Canton, O., Sept. 2.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, expressed the belief in a Labor day address today that improved economic conditions are in prospect for the working people of the nation.

"We can enter into the spirit of Labor day this year firm in the belief that better days are at hand," he said. "Even though slowly, yet surely we are moving toward the realization of a better economic and social order, increasing and enlarging our opportunities and improved conditions of employment."

He said it was his opinion the nation is at present in a formative period of a social justice program and policy which ultimately will be expanded, providing for the jobless, the dependent aged and sick, and for undernourished children.

Unless the working day is shortened, he declared, the army of the nation's unemployed will become permanent.

Victim and His Wife Both Deny She Shot Him

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Both Joseph Walsh, victim of a society dinner shooting Friday night, and his asserted wife, Mrs. Dorraine Walsh, today insisted Mrs. Walsh is not the "woman in red" who did the shooting, despite intensive police questioning. Witnesses previously identified Mrs. Walsh as the woman who interrupted a fashionable dinner party and fired four times at Walsh.

FILIPINO CLAIMS ABILITY TO ALTER SEX BEFORE BIRTH

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Results which indicated sex of human offspring apparently were predetermined in two cases involving artificial insemination were revealed here today by Dr. I. Garcia of the University of the Philippines.

In both instances boys were born to mothers who previously had been childless. One of the births was recorded Aug. 19, but in a second case the child died at birth, Dr. Garcia said.

The treatment utilized by Dr. Garcia, who is a member of the university's school of hygiene, involves use of electrical apparatus described as apparently able to separate male and female elements in spermatozoa.

MORE AND MORE IN DOWNSTATE AREA GO ON DOLE

Now 14½% of Population There; 13% in Chicago.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Growth of the dole in downstate Illinois, which is close to the soil, food products, and the AAA doctrin of scarcity, is giving concern to the relief authorities. In August downstate counties had a larger part of their population on relief [14.5 per cent] than had Cook county [13 per cent] and last spring the difference was more marked.

Generally speaking the counties having the greatest proportion of their residents on relief were in the extreme southern part of the state. In the coal fields of Egypt, where the relief curve goes up when mines are closed and goes down when pits are running and there is a seasonal pick-up, Gov. Horner's commission on the relief problem speaks of a "stranded population."

Periodic strikes and labor troubles, stimulating the use of other fuels in place of coal, more thermal units produced out of each ton of bituminous by improved furnaces, and other factors affected the region before the depression. The Horner commission says new vocations are needed.

Guffey Act Adds to Troubles.

Businessmen from southern Illinois set forth that the National Recovery administration, the Agriculture Adjustment administration, and other New Deal activities have operated to discourage old industries especially coal mining, now beset by the Guffey act, aimed at nationalization.

In East St. Louis, a packing center, businessmen speak on the effects of the AAA upon the packing industry and its connection with the relief load since Secretary Wallace has put his theories into practice.

At relief headquarters the authorities declare that downstate and Cook county alike furnish a problem to the state of making the dole less attractive as a substitute for work on the part of some of its recipients. One official says the most difficult task is to get people off relief who have been on for such protracted periods as to dull their desire for odd jobs to help out.

Unworthy Persons Horn In.

Some of the critics still speak of the ragged stranger who drew down $1,997.60 as his winnings on a $2 bet on the daily double at a race track a few weeks ago, and then refused to give his name saying, "If I tell they'll knock me off the relief rolls."

At headquarters the position is that with a million individuals getting groceries, clothing, milk, or rent from relief funds, it is to be expected that some are "chiselers." They declare the percentage is no larger at least than in private business, and that the case workers are doing their utmost as a trained group to prevent abuses.

Some of the relief recipients seem quite frank about an attitude of averseness to doing anything that may stir up red tape. On Division street a few nights ago a relief "client" said to this observer:

More Virtues of Red Tape.

"I've been on relief for six months, and I want to work, a permanent job. But why should I take stray jobs paying two or three dollars a week when I'd have to report it at headquarters and go through a lot of red tape to have it deducted from my allowance."

At present about 60 per cent of the persons on the relief lists are semi-skilled and unskilled workers. An analysis of the new relief cases for the first quarter of this year shows that a larger percentage of the new recipients came from the professional, managerial, and clerical groups.

Of the new cases 3 per cent were professional persons, 6.8 per cent were managers or proprietors, 14 per cent were clerks while 13 per cent were skilled workers and foremen.

As to "political pull" one finds rather a medley of opinions. The relief agencies say it does not exist. They say one sure way of putting an applicant under suspicion is for him to present a letter from his alderman or ward committeeman and that the case workers take pride in their remoteness from political control.

The other afternoon three policemen on Chicago avenue when asked by this observer the quickest way for a client to get on the lists, all remarked, "The precinct captain is the best guy to see first."

At North avenue near Clark a relief client told a different story. "It's bologna," he said, "I know a guy who had a tough time getting on relief because he took in a letter of introduction from a ward boss. They bawled him out for it.

"But when he got on relief the ward boss sends him word saying how much influence he had to use to land him on the lists. This guy sends back word the boss' influence was pretty near enough to keep him off the lists, and for him to close his trap."

Just now, with the Works Progress administration putting into motion its program for taking 225,000 employables off the Illinois relief lists and putting them to work at "security wages" on projects financed from the New Deal's 4 billion dollar works relief program, the question of "boondoggling" has come up. Relief officials say that so far Illinois has been free from works projects like the eurythmic dancing activities uncovered in New York.

The nearest approach, they point out, is the recreation program proposed in an application by the Chicago park district. The district asked for $629,475 of PWA funds and offered to contribute $94,380, a total of $723,855 for the program. This plan contemplates the employment of 660 actors and actresses and vaudeville performers.

A Little Tap Dancing.

Entertainments are proposed in parks and fieldhouses in which actors, singers, and dancers, out of employment, will be organized for plays, pageants, festivals, and dances for the free entertainment of the public.

Niles Center has asked for $3,342 for a recreational program, while Evanston has asked for $78,389 of PWA money to help prime the pump with a recreational project which includes ballroom and tap dancing.

STRIKERS HANG SOUTH DAKOTA GOVERNOR IN EFFIGY ON LABOR DAY

Sioux Falls, S. D., Sept. 2.—(AP)—An effigy of Gov. Tom Berry of South Dakota was hanged here today by a group said to be strikers of the John Morrell & Co. packing plant.

The "body" of the governor was suspended from a scaffold mounted on a truck, on the sides of which was painted, "Give us liberty or give us death; Gov. Berry will get the rest."

The strikers, all in cars bearing placards on which was printed, "Unfair, John Morrell & Co.," drove through the business district honking horns, evidently in an unannounced Labor day parade.

RED CAPTAIN WHO LET 27 BURN ON SHIP MUST DIE

MOSCOW, Sept. 2.—(AP)—A steamship captain who stood by while 27 persons perished on a blazing tanker in the Caspian sea was sentenced to death today by the Supreme court.

At the same time the court announced death sentences for two speculators convicted of receiving millions of rubles from the state bank's financing of bogus coöperative organizations.

The sea captain, tried at Baku, was named Krivonosov. His freighter was towing a soviet tanker May 27 when a fire broke out on the latter. The skipper cut the tow line and let the blazing vessel drift, rescuing only two members of the crew who clung all night to an overturned lifeboat.

SPAIN NABS GANG PLOTTING SECOND OCTOBER REVOLT

OVIEDO, Spain, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Wholesale arrests of known extremist agitators were ordered today after the discovery of several alleged revolutionary plots believed by police to have been planned to materialize in October on the anniversary of the disastrous revolt last year.

Angel Velarde, governor general of Asturias, said the chief conspirators had been surprised in a clandestine meeting at Sama. He said documents proved that Asturian extremists were supported by Socialist and communist elements in Navarre, Leon, Palencia, and other provinces. Jose Otero, described as president of a revolutionary committee, escaped.

Meanwhile, from Barcelona came word that terrorists who hurled bottles of inflammable liquid at a bus proceeding toward San Martin had caused injury to 17 persons. Several were trampled in the rush to escape the flaming vehicle.

Joan Dix Wins $2,725 as Damages from Cartoonist

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Joan Dix, blonde actress and film dancer, has been awarded $2,725 damages against Frank Tipper, film cartoonist. She was in an automobile collision last Nov. 11. Miss Dix won the suit by default. Tipper failed to appear for the trial.

GORED BY BULL; DIES.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Isaac Garner, gored by a bull on his farm in McLean, Ill., died today in St. Joseph's hospital here.

SING SING GRAD SEIZED AS FENCE IN SCAFFA CASE

New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Arrest of a paroled Sing Sing convict, Robert C. Nelson of Brooklyn, in the recent $185,000 Hawksworth jewel theft at the Biltmore hotel, Miami, Fla., was announced tonight by federal agents. Nelson is accused of being the fence from whom Noel C. Scaffa, private detective, purchased the jewels for $45,000 on March 6, last, for Lloyd's of London.

Scaffa is awaiting sentence following his indictment and conviction on three counts of perjury in connection with the Biltmore robbery investigation. Federal agents said Nelson, when seized here, had just returned from the Saratoga races, where he was called "the walking pawn shop."

NOW is the time to try WANZER'S MILK

..DELIVERED DIRECT TO YOUR DOOR AT 10c a quart

Let your family discover its rich flavor

- For 78 years the Wanzer Company has firmly adhered to its original fixed purpose—to deliver to Chicago homes the highest quality of milk and dairy products that could possibly be produced.
- At this time we again give you our pledge—under no circumstances will our high standards be lowered. We accept our responsibility with great seriousness. You shall have only the finest—the purest milk that can be offered.
- Three generations of Chicago families have recognized and appreciated the rich flavor of Wanzer's Milk. They are assured of its carefully selected sources—its scientific handling in our famous Sunlight Plant.
- At the present low price of 10c a quart you can give your family all the good, rich milk they want—give them more milk and still keep your food budget down. See that your children drink several glasses of Wanzer's Milk a day. It will make sturdier, happier children of them. Tell your Wanzer man that from now on you want him to leave an extra quart or two a day.
- If you don't know the delicious flavor of Wanzer's Milk, we suggest that you step to your telephone. Call Boulevard 7900. Say that you want to try Wanzer's Milk. It will be brought right to your door. Service will start immediately.

MAYOR DEPARTS TODAY FOR TALK WITH PRESIDENT

Will Confer on WPA Jobs for Chicago.

Mayor Kelly will board a train for Hyde Park, N. Y., this afternoon to confer with President Roosevelt on Chicago's extensive program under the Federal Works Progress administration. The President invited Mayor Kelly to visit him at his Hyde Park home where he is resting and preparing for a western tour.

After a forenoon of conferences with city department heads over various projects to be financed by the WPA, the mayor will go to the home of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes at Winnetka where funeral services for the secretary's wife, Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes, are to be held this afternoon. Afterward the mayor will start for New York.

Will Discuss All Projects.

Mayor Kelly said last night that a total figure for the government funds to be asked had not been computed since city officials are still whipping the projects into shape to lay before the President.

"I hope to talk over all our projects with the President," said the mayor.

It was said that among the projects to be discussed are the lake front airport for which federal funds of $8,600,000 will be asked, a permanent fair in Grant park for which the ground work cost is estimated at $6,000,000, and a $40,000,000 sewer rehabilitation program.

$32,000,000 for Streets.

President Rosevelt has already approved an outlay of $32,544,000 of PWA funds for the improving and resurfacing of nearly 1,000 miles of streets in Chicago. Definite money allocations for the street work are expected to clear through the Chicago branch of the treasury department today. A week from today, according to plans, the first crew of men will start to work. When this work reaches its peak 38,000 men are expected to be taken off the relief rolls to engage in it.

The completed plans for other projects will be handed over to the mayor today by Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt. It is expected that projects for the employment of 90,000 men and women will eventually be pushed for approval of national PWA officials.

The mayor will carry plans for the projects with him in his portfolio to Hyde Park. The plans will also be sent to the Illinois offices of WPA, headed by Robert J. Dunham, whence after approval they will be forwarded to Washington for confirmation.

Work Through Labor Day.

Hewitt announced last night that during the day—he and his force worked all through the Labor day holiday—projects estimated to cost $7,820,068 had been prepared. These projects would employ 8,971. They include land use survey, sewer rehabilitation, three garages for city trucks, tuck-pointing and cleaning of city buildings.

On Sunday Hewitt and his staf completed projects in final detail which would cost $7,489,000 and furnish employment for 11,472 persons.

Besides these projects, which call for money from the WPA, the mayor will carry with him on his trip plans for work under the PWA, or Public Works administration. Out of the four billion dollar appropriation congress earmarked 900 millions for PWA, which is headed by Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

The PWA projects will cost $32,817,-001. They include police and fire stations, new bridges, viaducts, south side filtration plant, Calumet harbor improvements, and city playgrounds.

Ask for 112 Projects.

Meanwhile the PWA office in Chicago was humming with activity over Labor day. Ralph H. Burke, deputy administrator for the state, announced last night that 112 projects asking for $8,546,361 in federal funds had been sent to Washington during the day.

Burke sent out orders for district directors to report at the headquarters this morning with any further projects for consideration. The staf will work under full steam this week to send all projects to Washington before the deadline of Sept. 12 set by Harry L. Hopkins, administrator of WPA.

The major projects sent to Washington yesterday from Chicago included requests for $2,262,475 for general rehabilitation and renovation of public schools in the city.

54 Millions for Other Jobs.

In addition to the projects submitted yesterday, requests have been made for WPA grants of $54,704,681 for 401 projects in Illinois. Among them are the following Chicago projects above the half million dollar classification:

1. A request from the Chicago park district for $3,836,455 in WPA funds, with a local contribution of $238,180 for a general rehabilitation of the park system.
2. Chicago board of education, $1,651,280, instruction for educational classes for adults and pre-kindergarten children.
3. Chicago police department, $1,-484,692, crossing guards to protect school children.
4. Chicago park district, $676,507, plus local funds of $127,346, to convert Riis park from golf course to recreational area. (Funds allocated and work already started.)
5. Request from park district for $629,475 in WPA funds, local contribution of $94,380, to employ 660 musicians, entertainers, and actors for entertainments.
6. Requests from city for $718,840 to employ musicians, actors, and entertainers.
7. Request from park district for $970,538, plus park funds of $479,924, for rehabilitation of pavements on boulevards.
8. Request from city for $543,123 for surveys on street improvement program.
9. Request from board of education for $1,064,250, with local funds of $14,725, to employ 1,000 men as watchmen at city schools.

12,057 NEW WORKERS ADDED TO PAY ROLLS OF U. S. DURING JULY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—An increase of 12,057 in the number of employés in the executive branch of the federal government during the month of July that brought the total to 729,769 was reported today by the civil service commission. The pay roll was $11,110,248.

Of the total, 104,498 were residents in the District of Columbia. Excluded from the commission's figures were employés of the legislative, judicial or military branches or those of the district.

Continuing as the largest employer was the postoffice department with 259,454 workers, 3,567 in the district. It was followed by the war department with 66,722 of whom 62,784 were nonresidents. The postoffice department added 661 employés in July.

The war department increased its force by 1,391. The agricultural adjustment administration was the largest employer among emergency agencies with 6,379. Department of agriculture employés here and in the field totaled 37,621.

Contest Winner to Be Chosen for Beauty Alone

New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Because a 17 year old high school girl objected to appearing before judges in a bathing suit, the whole structure of the "Miss Italy" beauty contest to be staged in Brooklyn, Sept. 23 was changed today. The 200 contestants will appear in the contest in evening gowns and the judges' decision will be influenced more by beauty of face than of form.

GERMANY WARNS WOMEN AGAINST WASTE OF BREAD

Housewives Told to Serve Home Products.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—"Don't let even the smallest piece of bread go to waste."

The national guild of food producers addressed this appeal to the German hausfrau today. The housewives were told that Germany is importing less foodstuffs than in previous years because every penny is needed to buy raw materials for industries.

They were requested to replace the customary food by whatever can be produced on the German market and thus "save money which will help produce jobs for the unemployed."

"We must rely on home grown products and this is bound to lead to a transition period which the hausfrau can manage if she uses her skill," the guild declared.

Recall World War Days.

The guild then reminded housewives of the food shortage during the world war.

"Bread must again become holy because it gives us new strength to live," the announcement said. "Whoever allows bread to spoil sins against the nation which needs bread."

Some wives said it is doubtful whether any bread is wasted in Germany, due to the almost sportsmanlike thrift of the people.

Substitute foods have been developed. "Muesli" has become the favorite. Many unemployed exist on "muesli." It is oatmeal soaked in water overnight and then cooked. A few nuts are cut into it. Sugar and skimmed milk are added on the days when the families are prosperous enough to afford them.

Man Dies of Hunger.

This dish, the unemployed say, is more nourishing than the cheaper brand of bread which is cluttered up with substitute ingredients. Few of the unemployed have tasted fresh fruit for weeks.

"Muesli," however, failed to keep a 33 year old cabinet maker alive. Finding only an occasional job, he used what money he earned to feed his wife and three small children. Dizzy with hunger, he fell down and dislocated a shoulder. When doctors gave him an injection at the hospital, he died. Physicians said he was too undernourished to stand medicine. He was the adopted grandson of one of the richest women of Berlin in former days. The woman now is destitute because of inflation and as a result of financial losses suffered by Jewish relatives.

GERMAN AMERICAN SCIENTISTS URGED TO SUPPORT NAZIS

New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Rudolph Wildermann, president, today called on members of the German-American Technologists' association to oppose statements that "the German people are all right but their government is all wrong."

"We are sick and tired of such statements," he told delegates to the association's memorial session honoring Dr. Gustav Lindenthal, engineer. "What Germany is, so are we, and it will always be that way.

"Now is the time when we must be proud of Germany and our ancestors, and even those little disturbances into which we have unfortunately been dragged should never diminute that pride."

The Nazi swastika and the Stars and Stripes hung side by side over the speakers' platform in a German hall where Wildermann spoke. Controversy over display of the flags previously had caused the association to cancel convention arrangements at one New York City hotel while a second refused to house the meeting.

Czechs Nab Nazi Luring German Foes to Death

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Gerhardt Berthold, a sign painter, was arrested today charged with being a secret German police agent commissioned to lure wanted German emigrants back to the third reich. Police said Berthold was responsible for cases in which three men who carried anti-Nazi pamphlets across the Czech border were shot as smugglers by Saxon frontier guards.

HITLERITES SEIZE PAPER PRINTING CATHOLIC LETTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—The church paper of the bishopric of Limburg was confiscated today because it carried part of the text of the pastoral letter read in all Catholic churches yesterday. The Limburg paper was allowed to reappear after it had removed the article reporting the letter.

The pastoral letter, drawn by three cardinals, 23 archbishops, bishops and other prelates at the recent Fulda conference, warned Hitler and the Nazis against "abuse of power," interference and oppression in church affairs and contained a threat of an interdict to deprive German Catholics of church ministrations.

[The Associated Press reported that a minister close to Hitler said the government is not perturbed by the letter, considering the Nazi regime stand so solidly now nothing can shake it. Berlin police forbid sale and distribution of the letter, and the Nazi controled press made no mention of its reading or contents.]

Monks Sent to Prison.

Seven monks of the Order of Redemptorists of Aix la Chapelle, Trier and other west German cities, were sentenced to a total of 18 years 3 months in the penitentiary and to the payment of fines and "restitutions" totaling close to $250,000. They were charged with smuggling German money across the border to repurchase foreign bonds of their different organizations and reduce their indebtedness.

The monasteries of the Redemptorists in Bochum and Heilingenstadt and the provincial council of the order must guarantee payment of the fine and "restitutions."

The National Zeitung of Essen reveals details why the Vicar Van den Hoevel of Belecke in Westphalia was sentenced recently to 10 months in prison. He was charged with preaching against the entry of young men into the Hitler Youth organization, the newspaper said, and "influencing the population against the Nazi state. Only the priest's influence is responsible for turning the entire population of Belecke against the state," the report declared.

Preached Against Arming.

The priest also was charged with preaching a sermon "against increasing godlessness and Bolshevism, referring to 'senseless armaments of soviet Russia,' where even women enlisted." He made this sermon the day after the proclamation of German rearmament.

The priest, defending himself, gave assurance that he did not mean to attack German conscription and that he only spoke of the dangers threatening Germany from the east.

The National Zeitung says that "since most witnesses were in sympathy with the accused, it was hard to establish proof, but a leader of Nazi women, Frau Vollmer, helped the court secure a conviction."

THEFT SUSPECT DIES.

Davenport, Ia., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Richard Connell, 24, held in connection with the theft of $113 from a Davenport man in a Rock Island tavern two weeks ago, died of pneumonia this morning.

FRENCH TROOPS CROSS MARNE IN SHAM WARFARE

'War Babies' to Man Forts Near Germany.

MOURMELON, France, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Two French armies maneuvered today without contact in a "Battle of the Marne" in which 40,000 men are taking part.

"Southern army," largely motorized, reconnoitered over the world war battlefields where American soldiers once fought. It was pursuing "northern troops," which sought to cover their retreat. The northerners crossed the Marne under the guard of motorized infantry which protected the rear.

"War Babies" at Vital Spot.

Twenty thousand of France's frontier "war babies" of 1914 started for the fortifications along the German border. They were beginning their 18 months' compulsory military service at their country's vital spot.

Natives of the frontier zone, these conscripts were called to the colors six weeks ahead of the rest of their class.

They were called early so they would have some training in the specialized equipment of the forts before those troops they replace are mustered out Oct. 15. The French command's policy is to be ready for attack on its northeastern frontier at all times.

Require Special Training.

The conscripts will be stationed in the 124 miles [200 kilometers] of brand new steel and concrete fortifications known as the Maginot line.

From Montmedy to Mulhouse they will help man camouflaged fortresses more than half underground, linked by 62 miles of subterranean tunnels and 186 miles of military roads and railroads.

The October contingent of the 1935 class which will be distributed among barracks elsewhere in France is estimated at 80,000 which, with those sent to the fortifications and the 120,000 called to the colors last April, make a total class of 220,000. Thus the French army will be kept at 700,000.

German Army Maneuvers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—The biggest military maneuvers in Germany since the days of the kaiser began today when the 6th army corps, or a twelfth part of the nation's new army of 550,000 men, engaged in a mimic battle on the vast stretches of the Lueneburg heath.

Newspapers reported with pride that new tanks, anti-aircraft batteries, and heavy motorized artillery are participating in the maneuvers.

Anti-aircraft equipment is given special praise because it "showed excellent results in training camp and is expected to prove of value under warlike conditions in these maneuvers."

TOTAL real estate tax levies in Cook County have dropped 48% between 1930 and 1933. The levy on a group of Cook County properties of various types for 1933 was less than in 1920 . . . less than half that for 1927 or 1930.

As taxes are one of the principal expenses of real estate ownership, these reductions are an important factor in the recovery of Chicago real estate.

HARRY A. LEWIS, SUPERIOR COURT JUDGE, IS DEAD

Veteran of Bench Ill for Three Weeks.

Judge Harry A. Lewis of the Cook county Superior court died at 6 o'clock last evening in his home at 6629 Harvard avenue. He had been ill since Aug. 7 when he suffered an attack of cerebral thrombosis [a blood clot on the brain] in his summer residence on Hamlin lake near Ludington, Mich.

A week after the attack he was brought from Ludington to his Chicago home and since then had been in a state of coma most of the time. Judge Lewis was 66 years old.

Family at the Bedside.

At his bedside when death came were his wife, Mrs. Nellie F. Lewis, and two daughters, Mrs. Ethel Stephens, and Miss Alberta Lewis, together with Dr. Frederick A. Lofton, the attending physician. Another daughter, Mrs. Esther Feltman, has been summoned from her home in California.

Funeral services will be held at the Englewood Baptist church, 413 West Englewood avenue, at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Mount Hope cemetery.

Judge Lewis, a Republican, had served on the Superior bench since 1919. For a number of years Judge Lewis sat in the divorce courts and earnestly advocated changes in the Illinois laws governing domestic relations.

Largely because of his campaign the general assembly during the last few years passed amendments correcting many evils in the statutes affecting divorce and separate maintenance.

He opposed easy divorces and on numerous occasions denounced "professional alimony diggers." He made it a policy of his court not to allow alimony except to the mother of dependent children or to a wife who was unable to work. Newly married couples who appeared in his court to seek a divorce were advised to wait a year before they decided to sever the marital ties.

Native of the State.

Judge Lewis was born in Berwick, Ill., on Aug. 20, 1869, the son of John V. and Mrs. Anna Lewis. He attended the public schools there and in 1891 was graduated from Elliott's college at Burlington, Ia.

After being granted his law degree by the Northwestern university law school he was admitted to the bar in 1896. He served as assistant state's attorney from 1901 to 1904 and as county attorney from 1904 to 1912. Until his election to the bench he was a member of the law firm of Ellis & Lewis.

He was a member of the American, the Illinois, and the Chicago Bar associations, of the Law Association of Illinois, the Hamilton club, and the Englewood Baptist church. For recreation he played golf and billiards.

Gunmen Take Girl's Watch and Escort's Automobile

Three men, two of them armed, early yesterday robbed Miss Florence Brothie, a Madison, Wis., stenographer, of a wrist watch and ring valued at $27, and then took $18 and an automobile from Vine C. McCormick Jr., 7441 St. Lawrence avenue, Miss Brothie's escort. The men discussed kidnaping Miss Brothie but desisted after McCormick pleaded with them not to harm her. The robbers appeared as the couple sat in McCormick's car at Huron street and Lake Shore drive. Miss Brothie is staying at the Allerton hotel, 701 North Michigan avenue.

FISH WITHDRAWS CENSOR CHARGE IN RADIO ROW

Says He Erred in Accusation.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Representative Hamilton Fish Jr., New York Republican, tonight retracted a charge that a radio station [KOA] was attempting to censor his speech attacking the New Deal government after he was permitted to deliver it as prepared.

Later Fish delivered the speech, with interpolations on local politics, before a state Republican rally.

Fish has made similar speeches, indicting the New Deal as guilty of "squandermania, blundermania, and powermania."

Calls It Misunderstanding.

A. W. Cratsey, sales manager of the radio station, said the difficulty with Fish grew out of a "misunderstanding." Station officials said they had offered to sell speaking time to Fish, but said he replied other engagements would prevent him from speaking on the period available.

Before the agreement was reached the New Yorker announced through newspapers that the station "Withdrew the offer [of an opportunity to speak on the radio early tonight] on the ground that my prepared speech against the New Deal was controversial and would require an answer."

Fish Asks Investigation.

Saying the occasion was the second time his speeches had been censored by radio stations, Fish said he would ask for Washington investigation of the incident and declared:

"The flame of liberty has sunk pretty low in America when a Republican member of congress representing the opposition party is cut off the radio because he states that the New Deal has broken down and is leading us on the rocks of bankruptcy, economic disaster, and increased unemployment."

He said he "sympathized" with the radio officials "who apparently are in a state of terror and fearful of permitting criticism of the New Deal."

been received. No word had come from Matacumbe, where a special railway train went late today to remove 700 veterans engaged in highway construction there.

The dispatcher's office was inclined to believe the train had reached its destination, but was halted there by the storm. Railway telegraph and telephone lines were down south of Homestead.

Trafic confusion caused a number of automobile collisions in Miami and a five story construction elevator was blown over at Miami Beach without damage to adjacent property. Small debris was being blown about in several cities and towns in the southern area, mostly from trees and shrubbery.

Disturbance Small in Diameter.

The disturbance was described by the weather bureau as of full hurricane intensity, but rather small in diameter, moving northwestward.

Northeast storm warnings were ordered from West Palm Beach northward to Titusville on the Atlantic coast and from Punta Gorda to Carrabelle on the west.

Braving great waves, the marine ambulance Philcris tonight rescued two youths, Don and Harold Summers, from precarious holds to palm trees on a small Biscayne bay island.

Waves breaking over the island forced the boys, 14 and 15 years old, to the trees. Earlier they attracted attention of persons ashore by tying their shirts to upper fronds of the cocoanut palms.

Two Boys Are Rescued.

"If you hadn't reached us we wouldn't have been here much longer," one of the youths told Capt. Thomas Cheatham of the marine ambulance. The boys were exhausted, but unhurt.

After bringing the Philcris to shore with the youths Capt. Cheatham turned his fast cruiser back to sea to investigate a mysterious flashing light near Cape Florida.

Within the area where hurricane warnings were up are Miami, Fort Lauderdale, West Palm Beach with its sister resort city, Palm Beach; Everglades, Naples, Fort Myers, Punta Gorda, Venice, Hollywood, Homestead, and other localities which form the bulk of southern Florida's famous resort centers.

JUDGE'S ORDER IN LIGHT FIGHT AT CRISIS TODAY

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—With the "zero hour" approaching for compliance with Judge David E. Smith's order to disconnect more than 600 consumers from the city's street lighting plant, the city council will meet tomorrow night. It will consider Mayor C. W. H. Bangs' proposal to obtain $1,500,000 from the federal government for building a municipal light plant and to extend the city water works plant.

Tomorrow is the last day allowed by Judge Smith for compliance with his order. It also is the last day to file applications with the state WPA office for obtaining loans and grants for public works.

The Northern Indiana Power company is understood to contemplate contempt proceedings against members of the board of works and James P. Adkins, superintendent of the city light department and water works departments if the court order is not obeyed.

Asks, Gets Police Ride, but They Select Route

Kearney, Neb., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Lloyd S. Wilcox walked into the police station here today to beg a free ride to Valentine, Neb., from County Sherif Otto Kime of Cherry county, who was returning a prisoner from here. Kearney police, however, dug out a two year old warant accusing Wilcox of passing a worthless check and gave him a ride to Richardson county instead.

Stockholm, N. J., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Delegates to the international nudist conference willingly clothed themselves today as a drizzling rain and chilly breeze drove them indoors for final addresses and election of officers.

A conference ruling required that the body be covered when indoors.

They heard Mrs. M. E. Wills of Rochester, N. Y., and Mrs. V. N. Littleton of Hollywood, Cal., discuss ways of insuring the nudist movement against public prejudice.

Dr. Russel B. Abbott of Cleveland was reëlected president; Charles P. Pitus, New York City business man, was elected treasurer, and Alfred Flynn, New York, recording secretary.

The 25 delegates then left for their homes.

SEN. BORAH HERE; SHUNS POLITICS, TALKS OF PEACE

"No statements on politics," said U. S. Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] as he stopped off in Chicago for a few hours yesterday between trains on his way from Washington to his home at Boisé. Borah has been mentioned as a strong contender for the Republican presidential nomination next year.

The senator, dapper in a tan suit, gray shirt and blue bow tie, said there had been enough politics in Washington and he was not ready to comment on the situation.

"A vast amount of water," he remarked, "can run over the dam before next year rolls around.

To a direct question as to whether he was a candidate for president, Borah merely smiled. Asked about foreign affairs, Borah expressed the conviction that the United States would not become embroiled in the expected war between Italy and Ethiopia. Senator Borah has been a member of the senate foreign relations committee for twenty years. For eight years, during Republican control of the senate, he was chairman.

FARMERS BEGIN "BUY ALASKAN" DRIVE AT SEWARD

SEWARD, Alaska, Sept. 2.—(AP)—A coöperative marketing plan to "buy Alaska" took form in this area.

"We aim to persuade Alaskans to absorb more of their own farmers' products, keeping hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in Alaska, rather than spending it for products in the United States," said Jack Lean, a farmer at Cooper Landing.

The movement would bring together all Seward merchants and outlying farmers in a plan whereby home grown Alaska products would be given preference over "imported produce" from the United States, Lean explained.

"In the past, farmers have arrived in town with their produce, only to find markets already stocked," he said. "Not only farm produce, but Alaskan canned products should be used by Alaskans."

Tentative plans call for asking government aid to improve roads connecting agricultural areas with the various settlements and in clearing land, should the movement spread.

"Camels don't get your Wind"

FAMOUS SWIMMERS AGREE

So Mild! YOU CAN SMOKE ALL YOU WANT

Champion swimmers speak with authority when they discuss sound wind—healthy nerves—and Camels. Buster Crabbe, champion in the 400-meter free-style Olympic event, calls himself "a consistent Camel smoker." This can be seen from his latest photograph, reproduced on this page. "I have smoked Camels for years," he says. "If you go in for sports at all, I'd advise Camels. You'll find, as I did, that Camels are so mild they never get your wind or cut your endurance."

What Crabbe says is confirmed by Helene Madison; by Jane Fauntz, the Chicago girl who rose to Olympic fame; and by Stubby Kruger and Josephine McKim. So turn to Camels. Enjoy those costlier tobaccos in Camel's matchless blend. Smoke all you wish. Athletes say, "Camels don't disturb your nerves or wind."

MYSTIC ORIENT LIVES ANEW ON LOVELY ISLAND

Group in Jackson Park Now One-Third Complete

the environs of Charleston. Already the Breasteds of the nearby Oriental institute are saying that the island picture will be a noble outdoor page supplementary to the institute's treasures.

Splendid Restoration Work.

Only those who sadly watched the Japanese buildings going to ruin during the last decade and a half can appreciate what a beautiful work of restoration Messrs. Donoghue, Moore, and Buchbaum—aided by Charles F. Kelley of the Art institute and by Miss Abbott of the institute's Ryerson library—have accomplished. The buildings now are as they were forty years ago, and even better, for they have been set on deep stone foundations and in other ways fortified against our severe winters. But there is no sign of patching nor any blurring of their fairy-like daintiness. The task was done by relief labor, which will handle also the removal and setting up of the Lama temple and the creation of the vista.

Thanks to a Battler.

To Mr. Donoghue Chicago owes the preservation of the Japanese gems. Some of the unvisioned gradgrinds of the old south park board said "They're a nuisance and a fire peril—tear 'em down!" But G. T. D. raised such a clamor—protest against gradgrinds being one of his specialties as park superintendent—that he was allowed to go ahead with his restoration project.

The island is 3,000 feet long and 500 feet wide. The Lama temple, which is 70 feet square, and its settings of walks, gardens, hedges, and moat will occupy part of the island's extensive rose garden, but as that garden is dear to too many people to be safely abandoned, it will be shifted to the east and north.

Replica of Jehol Pavilion.

A stepped mound ten feet high will be built for the temple to rest upon in order to suggest the flight of 109 steps that lead up to Golden Pavilion of Jehol—three days' journey from Peiping—of which the Bendix gift is a replica and which was built in 1767-'71 by Emperor Ch'ien-lung in commemoration of his sixtieth birthday and his mother's eightieth.

In its new setting the approaches to the temple will create subtle intimations of mystery that could not be suggested at the Fair grounds. It will, so to speak, be enshrined in flowers and water.

Appropriate Environs.

Those protective encirclements are:

1. A promenade twenty feet wide.
2. A double line of clipped Chinese elms 20 feet wide and 25 feet high, revealing just a glimpse of the first of the temple's sloping golden roofs, which begins 28 feet from the ground. This Chinese elm is not like our American elm, but pyramidal—more like the Italian poplar. Its leaf is as small as a privet leaf and the more the hedge is clipped the smaller the leaf becomes; hence a very delicate, compact growth.
3. A promenade 10 feet wide.
4. An encircling bed of flowering plants 8 feet wide.
5. A moat 30 feet wide, planted with lotus lilies and crossed by an electrically operated drawbridge giving access to the mound ten feet high on which the temple stands.

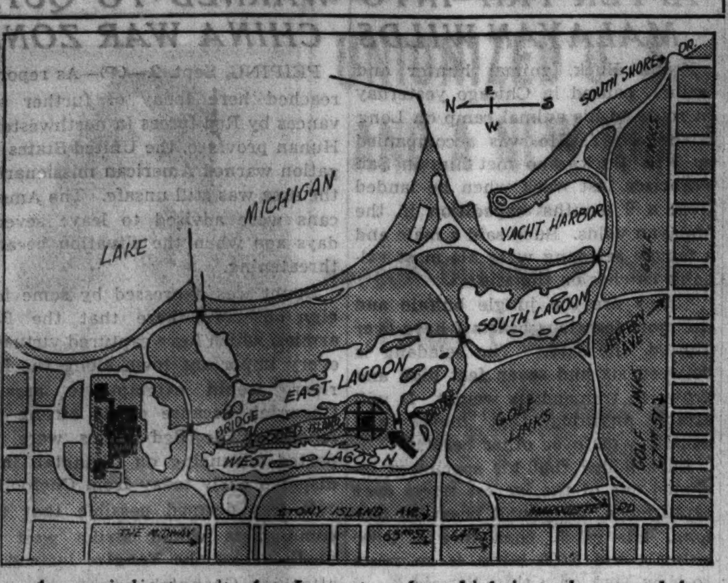
NEW LOCATION FOR TEMPLE



Arrow indicates site for Lama temple, which is to be moved from grounds of A Century of Progress to Wooded Island in Jackson park. The temple is to face the Japanese buildings, with suitable landscaping.

Singular Drama in Color.

"Briefly," said Architect Moore—the Belasco of this project—"a drama in red, green, and gold and in flowers—that is what we shall try to work out."

Into this compact drama four diagonal vistas, each 160 feet long, will be cut from the northeast, northwest, southeast, and southwest.

At its north and south ends—the Japanese end and the Lama end—the wooded island will be connected with the mainland by four stone foot bridges designed from rare Chinese prints in the Ryerson library. They will be from 50 to 75 feet in length. One of them, Mr. Moore hopes, will be a covered bridge in the Chinese manner.

A National History Treasury.

Except for its architectural gems and its gardens, the whole island will be an arboretum rich in American varieties, and to each tree will be fastened a permanent tablet giving primary information about its family. In all the landscaping formalism and naturalism will be rationally blended. The place will be neither a wildwood nor a rigid set piece.

Inside the temple will be all the ceremonial objects of art given by Mr. Bendix — tapestries, scrolls, bronzes, and jades. On the outer portico will stand incense burners, to be lighted on festival evenings.

Courthouse to Be Moved.

That all may be in keeping with the oriental motif, the old territorial Cahokia courthouse—historically interesting but having no more architectural significance than a woodshed—will be removed from the island to a more suitable location.

The wood of the temple is Oregon fir. It was cut on the Pacific coast, sent to China, where it was coated with Chinese tung oil, a fine preservative, and in China and by eighty Chinese artisans it was fashioned into a replica of the Golden Pavilion of Jehol under the direction of the celebrated traveler and Orientalist, Sven Hedin.

Lodestone to Beauty Lovers.

Do the people appreciate the completed one-third of this beautiful project?

Assuredly they do. Already the Japanese garden and lagoon at the north end are a favorite studio of sketching classes that come daily in groups of a dozen each. They say, "We love the shadows of these glades and the winged lines of the pavilions."

And laymen find many things that prompt them to questions.

Why are there neither doors nor windows on the north and west sides of the pavilions? . . . Because at home—and from historic buildings at home the pavilions were copied—the Japanese wish to keep out the north winds of winter and the hot west winds of summer.

Lessons for Artists.

What gives Japanese red, which is identical with Chinese red, its vivid glow—like a live coal? . . . A touch of orange in the paint.

What is the significance of that huge red arch on the west side of the northern end of the island and just behind the pavilions? . . . 'Tis a perching gate and if certain birds sacred to certain Japanese religionists light on it they bring good luck. [And let me add that the perching gate reproduced on our island needs masses of foliage planted around it to temper its present gauntness.]

And so on! Everything in the scheme means something, even to the irregularly placed "stepping blocks" that lead you down to Elizabeth Haseltine's carved heron and kingfisher. These blocks are irregularly placed by the Japanese in order to produce a wandering effect and they symbolize the Japanese belief that that the soul wanders after it leaves this planet.

From the Heights Back to Reality!

Symbolism everywhere, and the park authorities ought to have a trained guide on the spot to explain things to the eager children and grownups.

"So we ought," said Mr. Donoghue, "and so we would if money grew on bushes."

Verdict Blames Insanity for Woman's Fatal Leap

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane in the case of Mrs. Ruth Tolle, 21 years old, who on Sunday leaped to her death from a window of her third story apartment in the University hotel, 5519 Blackstone avenue. Her husband, Clyde Tolle, 24 years old, testified that after a bridge party the woman locked herself in a room, shouted that she was going to kill herself, then jumped from the window.

ROCKFORD HEARS NEW DEAL HIT BY COL. ROOSEVELT

Visions Scheme to Make All U. S. Poor.

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Speaking at a rally sponsored by Winnebago, Ogle and Boone county Republican organizations, Col. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., tonight bitterly attacked President Franklin D. Roosevelt and his statements that he seeks to provide a "more abundant life" for the people of America.

He held the President's "tax the rich" scheme to be a scheme for "the distribution of poverty to all."

Several thousand persons crowded Shrine Temple here to hear Col. Roosevelt after inclement weather had forced the Republican organizations to cancel a huge picnic at which he was to have spoken.

Policies Strike at Roots.

"In Washington during the last two years and a half," Col. Roosevelt said, "policies have been inaugurated and laws passed which strike at the very root of what you and I consider American. There can be no doubt but that a carefully planned, consistent attempt has been made and is being made to subvert our form of government and substitute therefor some hybrid importation from Russia, Germany or Italy.

"We were told two and a half years ago that all these strange departures which cramped our liberty and wasted our money were merely in the nature of emergency measures, and many of our people, terrified by the disturbed economic condition, acceded to them on that basis.

"Time has passed and far from treating them as merely of an emergency nature, we see the President again and again requesting that they be either extended or made permanent. We see him striving to concentrate in his hands dictatorial powers. No one need tell me that Frankfurter, Cohen, Tugwell, Corcoran, et al, do not know what they wish to attain. All of them, in my opinion, are men who hate our American form of government and who have seized upon this opportunity to try to destroy it. The President must be fully aware of this for he is heading the movement. He is responsible. He has the power. He appointed them. He can remove them. He must be defeated if American ideals are to live.

Squanders Nation's Wealth.

"Not only has the administration in Washington attacked the roots of our American representative government, but in addition it has squandered the wealth of the nation and bound on the backs of our children a burden under which they will be struggling all their lives.

"For two years and a half there have come from Washington a series of schemes, at best chimerical and extravagant, at worst, subversive. Plan after plan has been put forth, generally cloaked in high sounding phrases, phrases that mean nothing. The President has stated that he wished a 'more abundant' life for everybody, a distribution of wealth among the people—good so far as the phrase goes, but words are worth nothing without practical action to back them.

"His first general theory for providing more wealth for the average of our people was to destroy a part of the wealth of the country. The sheer idiocy of promising more to every one and then decreasing the total amount is worthy of Bedlam. It is as if a mother said to her children, 'I want each of you to have a larger slice of pie,' and then cut off a quarter of the pie and throw it into the garbage can.

Record for Destroying Wealth.

"More wealth has been destroyed by this administration than has ever been destroyed in the history of the world in a like period except by war or pestilence.

"In order to achieve a 'more abundant life for all' they destroyed crops, destroyed food, destroyed capital, for food is capital, food is wealth. They undertook to pay the farmers for what they did not raise. One man bought some land to shoot on in Virginia and was paid nearly the cost of the land for not raising cotton on it. It is lunacy.

"Where does the money come from to do all this? It comes from the processing tax imposed by the President on foodstuffs and articles such as cotton cloth. Those are the largest part of the purchases of our poor people. This is no 'soak the rich' tax he has imposed, but a 'soak the poor' tax.

"What has been the result? We with our vast country, our vast potential farming ability, have been buying foodstuffs from abroad. We slaughter the pigs and the people have to buy hogs from Australia and Canada and beef from Argentine. We cut down our production of wheat and now we are importing it from foreign countries. We plowed under our corn and now we are paying for it from South America and Europe. In pre-depression days we exported around 1½ million bushels of corn a year. In the last six months, January to June, 1935, we imported 17,620,195 bushels.

Only Political Jobs Increase.

"The principal result, so far as work is concerned, that has come of the policies of the last two and a half years is a colossal increase in jobs for politicians. The NRA costs taxpayers a million dollars a day.

"In Washington there is a great Tammany machine built for President Roosevelt by his man, Mr. Farley. That machine, with the taxpayers' money, has organized a great propaganda bureau. When we attack the folly and fallacy of the federal program it endeavors to offset our attacks by broadcasting through the nation that statement that we have no constructive policies, sound policies devised to safeguard the liberties of the people. Our policies are aimed to create in sober truth 'an ampler life' for those Americans who are honest, industrious, and saving, and who make up the vast majority of our people. What is more, those are the only ones who deserve 'an ampler life.'"

Probe Prison Escape

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Sept. 2.—Police forces in the French concession of the international settlement in Shanghai are investigating a reported plot to effect the escape of Joseph Walden, alias Dr. Rivosh, of Berlin, who is serving a 15 years' prison sentence at Wuchang for espionage.

Two Americans of Shanghai, Carl J. Lemcke, formerly of Detroit, Mich., and Eugene Brinson of Savannah, Ga., have been implicated. They are being held in the British consular jail at Hankow as a result of demands by Chinese authorities.

It was said that about $150,000 had been taken to Hankow by one foreigner to effect Walden's escape. Brinson was employed by the international famine relief commission as a paymaster for 50,000 coolies. He is an American university graduate.

Mrs. E. J. Lipsch, a sister of Carl J. Lemcke, lives at 1501 Maple avenue, Wilmette. She said last night that her brother has been in the orient for about four years and operated a used car agency at Shanghai. When the Japanese troops invaded China in 1933, Mrs. Lipsch said, her brother outfitted an armored car with which he transported American tourists through parts of China.

NEW DEAL HIT BY BRECKINRIDGE; ASKS COALITION

Declares Party Pledges Are Repudiated.

New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Adding his voice to New Deal critics from within the Democratic party, Col. Henry Breckinridge, former assistant secretary of war under Wilson, today lashed the administration for alleged repudiation of party tradition and principle and suggested a coalition of "all elements" of the voters to oust New Deal "alien minded adventurers."

In a public statement, Breckinridge declared the administration at Washington "has forfeited its right to the use of the word Democrat," and suggested as a descriptive title the name, "Russocrat."

After listing a number of "misdemeanors" by the administration, including "subversion" of the constitution, "destruction" of economic staples, "debauchery" of the civil service and "confiscation" of gold, he said two practical political programs are available:

"Recapture of party control by the Democrats in congress and elsewhere, restoration of the orderly principles of the constitution and the restoration of the principles of the Democratic party; or:

"The coalition of all elements of the American electorate opposed to the subversion of the American system by the alien minded adventurers who have seized the machinery of government.

"It is interesting to recall that Abraham Lincoln in 1864 was nominated by the 'Union' or 'National Union' convention in which men of all parties joined."

Col. Breckinridge made an unsuccessful campaign for United States senator from New York in the last election, running on the ticket of the Constitutional party. He was overwhelmingly defeated by Senator Royal S. Copeland, the regular Democratic nominee.

His campaign was based upon independent political principles and scathing denunciation of the Roosevelt "burocratic" administration.

FRANK BUCK HERE AFTER TRIP INTO MALAYAN WILDS

Frank Buck, animal hunter and trainer, paused in Chicago yesterday en route to his animal camp on Long Island, N. Y. He was accompanied by Mrs. Buck, who met him in San Francisco last week when he landed from a 9 months' expedition in the Malayan wilds. Buck said a male and a female seladang were his most valuable catches on the trip.

"They are the jungle buffalo and the most ferocious beasts I have ever hunted," he said. "The seladang is between six and seven feet high and grows to tremendous weight. It will attack anything that moves and usually wins over other beasts."

Buck added that his specimens included one of the largest tigers ever captured, a 350 pound beast 10 feet long. His catch, consisting of 2,000 animals and 5,000 birds, is en route to New York on a ship, he said.

U. S. MISSIONARIES WARNED TO QUIT CHINA WAR ZONE

PEIPING, Sept. 2.—(AP)—As reports reached here today of further advances by Red forces in northwestern Hunan province, the United States legation warned American missionaries the area was still unsafe. The Americans were advised to leave several days ago when the situation became threatening.

Doubt was expressed by some foreign observers here that the Red armies, which have captured virtually every important town along the Lin river, would attempt to assault Changteh because of its strong defenses. [The Red forces were reported advancing on Changteh in a dispatch early today from Chefoo.]

It was deemed possible that the communists would strike west or north across the Yangtze instead of attacking Changteh.

MOTHER KILLED, TROOPS RETURN AFTER TWO RIOTS

Pelzer, S. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—The National Guard was on duty again here tonight after rioting in which a young mother was killed and fifteen persons wounded. The state troops were withdrawn on Friday. They had been on duty since a strike was called on July 16 at the Pelzer Manufacturing company's plants.

During the latest rioting about 100 shot were fired and a stick of dynamite exploded. Strikers hidden behind a large piece of sheet iron at the company's No. 4 unit a mile from here were said to have fired on workers. Women, as well as men, were shot.

Mother of Two Killed.

Mrs. Bertha Kelly, 21, mother of two children, was killed in the first burst of gunfire at the main plant. Mrs. Kelly dropped, mortally wounded. Others fell around her. A stick of dynamite was exploded in front of the mill but no one was near it at that moment.

It was said the firing at the main plant was done by both workers and strikers. Within about five minutes of the time the first shot was fired most of the crowd of 300 had scattered.

Pickets at the main plant, assembling early, formed lines to hold back those who wanted to go to work. The firing started when R. Melton, father of several of the employés, broke through the picket line in his automobile. He was taking his children to work.

Battle at Plant No. 4.

The shooting at the No. 4 unit a mile away started about the same time as at the main plant. Ed Jeanes, a special deputy employed by the mill, asserted that the strikers opened fire upon workers there without a word of warning.

J. T. McDougal, 50, a watchmaker who was taking his son to work at the No. 4 unit, was shot. He probably will die. Four others were taken to hospitals. Ten more received first aid treatment.

G. W. Henson, 64 year Pelzer man, was taken to the county jail on a murder warrant. Nine other men, alleged strike sympathizers, were lodged in jail "for investigation," and police were seeking others. The nine, in addition to Henson, were arrested while on picket duty. Two pistols, two rifles, and a shotgun, found secreted near the mill entrance, were seized.

Japs Warn China to Curb Terroristic Acts in North

TIENTSIN, China, Sept. 3.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—The Japanese consul general, Kawagoe, dispatched a sharply worded note today to Provincial Governor Shang Chen demanding the immediate suppression of all terroristic activities in North China which are assertedly continuing to disturb Sino-Japanese relations. The note declared the authorities must not only break up terroristic organizations but also check the activities of their individual members.

Death Mystery

MRS. HELEN WALLER.
[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Denver, Colo., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The bullet pierced body of a well dressed young woman, found lying on a bed in a fashionable home where she was a stranger, provided a riddle for the police today.

A pistol with one cartridge discharged was on the bed. She was identified as Mrs. Helen Waller, 28. A deputy coroner said the death appeared a case of suicide.

The body was found last night by James H. Neal, live stock commission firm head, when he and Mrs. Neal returned from a trip downtown. They said they had never seen the woman. Their son, James A. Neal, told Detective Captain James E. Childers he had known Mrs. Waller for two years and had visited her Sunday morning.

Police quoted young Neal as saying Mrs. Waller had asked him to finance a divorce for her so that they could be married, though he did not love her.

SEC. PERKINS FOR UNIONIZED U. S. AND A NEW NRA

Speech Outlines 5 Point Future Program.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins tonight dedicated her government department to the unionization of industry and a return of the NRA.

The labor secretary listed a five-point program which her department is trying to put into effect. Two points covered the "organization" of labor and participation of labor in "self-government" of industry. Another point called for the establishment of minimum wage and maximum hour controls such as existed under the Blue Eagle.

Secretary Perkins' address climaxed a Labor day of speechifying by union officials rejoicing over the success of their lobby in pushing through congress the Guffey coal bill, the social security bill, and the Wagner labor disputes bill. The day's orations temporarily salved over the disputes between the American Federation of Labor and Secretary Perkins and the strife within the A. F. of L. between trade unionists and industrial unionists.

Praises Job Insurance.

After spending most of her time extoling the New Deal's old age and unemployment insurance plan, Miss Perkins at the end of her speech laid down her platform for the department which she heads.

Declaring that "the United States department of labor is dedicated to the working people of this country," Secretary Perkins put the department in the position of fostering unionization and unions to the exclusion of the vast unorganized mass of workers. Her utterances were one of the first direct endorsements of unionization of workers made by a high government official.

Return of the wage and hour controls of the NRA headed the list of objectives which Miss Perkins declared her department is "striving" to have adopted. Her aim, she said, was "the establishment of minimum basic standards for labor below which competition should not be permitted to force standards of health, wages, or hours."

Her remarks indicated that President Roosevelt, in asking congress during its closing hours to study the advisability of reviving the NRA, was merely asking the legislators to agree with a decision already reached by the New Dealers. They evidently are determined, it was indicated by Secretary Perkins, to press for a new NRA regardless of the outcome of the congressional investigations.

Hints at Curb on Strikes.

At one point in her speech the secretary of labor diverged sharply from the chorus being chanted by union officials under the leadership of William Green, president of the A. F. of L. This involved the necessity of strikes.

While Green at Canton, Ohio, was insisting that the depression had taught unions to rely on strikes, Miss Perkins was hinting in her address at a curbing of the right to strike by "the making of arrangements which will make possible peaceful settlement of controversies and relieve labor of the necessity of resorting to strikes."

She also intimated that labor must "discipline" itself.

LEANS TOO HARD ON WINDOW.

Frank Frey, 26 years old, 3623 Lake Park avenue, was arrested yesterday when he pushed his hand through a display window of a store at 540 South State street. He told police he had leaned against the window for support.

DEMAND DECISION ON CONSTITUTION DAY RALLY TODAY

Hint Permit Delay Due to New Deal Dictation.

Charges that New Deal influence is at work to bar the Chicago Constitution day celebration from Soldiers' field may be made at the monthly meeting of the commissioners of the Chicago Park district this afternoon.

At a conference yesterday in the office of Julius H. Miner, general director in charge of arrangements for the patriotic program Sept. 17, there was an agreement that the most forceful demand possible must be made for immediate issuance of the permit for Soldiers' field, that whoever speaks for the Constitution day committee must "call a spade a spade."

Plan "Airing" Before Board.

The decision was that Charles O. Rundall, an attorney, who is a member of the committee, would address the board if given an opportunity to do so and would present some phases of the situation not heretofore advanced in the name of the committee. An outline of his talk was drawn up.

This summary included the first public mention in this connection of the fact that Robert J. Dunham, president of the park board, is closely connected with the New Deal as Illinois director for the Works Progress administration. It was predicted that Attorney Rundall will ask if this fact does not have some effect on his attitude concerning the use of Soldiers' field.

That this sort of an attack was in prospect was told to Mr. Dunham, who returned yesterday from California, where he spent most of August. He declined to comment.

"I have an open mind on the question whether this application should be granted," he said, "and shall not make up my mind until the subject has been discussed by the board carefully and thoroughly. I hope that some of the sponsors of this event will appear at our meeting to answer questions if the commissioners have any."

Emphasizes 20 Day Silence.

"Twenty days have elapsed since the filing of the application for the use of Soldiers' field by over 350 outstanding citizens and taxpayers. Neither the park board nor any of its supervisors has extended the committee the courtesy of an acknowledgement of the application.

"The procrastination has seriously hampered the progress of plans for this patriotic celebration which should have had at least two weeks' time for dramatization and rehersals, to say nothing of the time required for the construction of the stage and the installation of electrical equipment. Such an undue delay constitutes a brazen denial of the use of the field.

"Two indirect messages from the chairman of the board, as well as a message from one of the executives in charge of the parks, unofficially informed the committee that Soldiers' field is not available for a constitutional celebration merely because they previously turned down Father Coughlin and the Chicago Federation of Labor and that they must now be consistent in their rulings.

Can It Be New Deal Dictation?

"What is behind all this? Is it possible that the national administration in Washington is dictating the policies of the park board?

"Is there any significance in the well known fact that the president of the board is part and parcel of the New Deal organization as the Illinois representative of one of the alphabetical concoctions?

"Perhaps Washington has decreed that a constitutional celebration is controversial.

"The constitution day committee proposes to fight against such flagrant abuse of power. It is more than a battle for Soldiers' field. It is a battle for free speech and peaceful assembly. It is a fight for the preservation of the constitution of the United States."

Director Miner said he would attend the board meeting and that probably two or three other members of the committee in addition to Mr. Rundall would be there.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

BY FRANK RIDGWAY

Hay Deterioration.

Sept. 2, 1935.

PRELIMINARY examination today of alfalfa cured, baled, chopped, and stored under different methods in tests at the Tribune Experimental farm near Wheaton reveals that a small amount of the hay has been damaged. Some of the hay already is moldy. In some cases deterioration had set in when the hay was cured.

Valuable lessons will be learned through the experiments. The damage is due to improper curing, poor stacking, or baling and storing while the hay was too damp.

Aproximately 25 tons of the first cutting of alfalfa, 15 tons from the second crop, and 5 tons of clover stored in the main horse barn are in good condition, surface examinations indicate. The exact condition of all the hay in this barn will not be known until it is fed this winter. But in the sheep barn about two tons already are in bad condition from mold. This hay was baled too damp, which caused it to "heat." It is so badly damaged that it will not be fed to horses, dairy cattle, or any of the breeding animals. Some of it may be fed to feeder lambs and steers.

About 500 pounds of clover and rye hay has molded in the stack. Carl Henderson, farm manager, says this damage was due to the hay's being stacked by an inexperienced stacker. The hay was damaged from mold on the top and on one side where pockets formed, allowing moisture to collect. The hay was in the stack only about a month. The remainder of this stack of about 11½ tons was baled recently and stored in barns. It was properly cured before it was stacked.

Approximately 70 tons of timothy hay stacked in the open is now being baled. All of the hay produced on the farm this year will be put indoors as soon as the timothy can be baled and hauled to the barns.

After making the preliminary examination of the test hay, Mr. Henderson said he believed that if alfalfa hay is reasonably dry when it is handled it can be baled and safely stored in a barn even when it is fairly green.

"We will not know how well our hay has kept until it is fed out," he said. "We will not be able to determine the success or failure of our tests until we reach the bales stored in the bottom of the mow."

In his examination today Mr. Henderson found that the alfalfa chopped and blown into the hay keeper is in fine condition excepting about five tons of improperly cured hay put in during the early part of the harvesting season when rains made it difficult for the harvesters to get it under cover between storms. He also found that hay chopped and blown into the mow is in first class condition. Some of this hay was chopped while it was quite green. The plants contained more moisture than is found where alfalfa is cured in the ordinary way.

Workers have just finished disking the alfalfa fields to kill weeds and to encourage "stooling" or branching of the plants. Sudan grass in the test plots will be cut as soon as the weather is favorable for curing it as hay. Within the next few days the fiber and seed flax crops growing in the test fields will be harvested.

Feeder lambs are so high this year that the farm has found it advisable to abandon the plan of buying 300 head to use up surplus roughage and to graze down the luxuriant growth of late summer and fall pastures and stubble fields. Last week an effort was made to buy on the terminal market high grade uniform lambs weighing 60 to 65 pounds each at 9 cents a pound, but the order could not be filled. Producers were holding uneven lots at 8½ cents a pound.

John Rawlings, head flock master at the farm, said that last week he was advised that sheepmen were holding their good lambs at 8¾ cents a pound on the western range.

"Lambs bought at that price on the range would cost us in the neighborhood of 10 cents a pound laid down at the farm after transportation and other costs were paid," he said. "Feeder lambs have been selling at fat lamb prices on central markets recently."

Senator Hiram Johnson Has 69th Birthday on Train

Postal Employe Group Opens 4 Day Convention

A four day convention of the National Federation of Postoffice Motor Vehicle Employés opened yesterday in the Morrison hotel. Smith W. Purdum of Washington, fourth assistant postmaster general, spoke. After visiting the new Chicago postoffice he departed last night for Washington. John P. Kelleher of Kansas City is president of the federation.

HUNGER STRIKE AT PRISON TOLD BY AN OFFICIAL

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Guy T. Holcomb, chairman of the board of trustees of Eastern State penitentiary, revealed tonight that fourteen "tough" prisoners have been on a hunger "strike" for about ten days.

Another prisoner quit the "strike" after going without food for five days. Prison officials said the fifteen convicts were among those who in 1933 started one of the worst riots in the history of the institution. Some time ago the same men went on a hunger "strike" that lasted 14 days.

Temporary Insanity Held Cause of Hotel Suicide

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane yesterday after investigating the death of Howard Miller, 32 years old, of Los Angeles, who shot and killed himself in his room at the Palmer house Saturday night. Deputy Coroner Edward Edelstein, after hearing testimony from the assistant manager of the hotel and policemen, read into the record a newspaper item which quoted Los Angeles relatives as saying Miller had been despondent because of a love affair.

Dear Mr. Onderdonk:

With the temperature at 98 degrees outside now, it seems an appropriate time to tell you how much we appreciate the air conditioning system you installed in the TRIBUNE TOWER.

It is not only a blessed relief to be able to work in perfect comfort, but undoubtedly the cool, invigorating air during the hot Summer days increases the efficiency of our work. We have neither wilting collars nor wilting spirits in our office.

Also the even distribution of heat with the right degree of humidity in the Winter time made possible by this system contribute to comfort and health the year round.

Very truly yours

Recall Early Tilts with Sporting Gentry.

Police officials are sure that technical legal points, including those involving the famous old "meander line" of Lake Michigan, will be invoked in an effort to thwart the prosecution of the owners of the gambling barge, Showboat Sam.

Sixteen persons aboard the craft were arrested last Friday by detectives from the Chicago avenue district, who went out in speedboats to make the raid. In the Chicago avenue court on Saturday the defendants all requested and were granted a continuance to next Friday. Attorney John B. Tierney, in a preliminary statement to Judge Frank M. Padden, announced that the sixteen would claim they were outside the police boundaries of Chicago.

Enter the Meander Line.

Ordinarily this limit is three miles out in navigable water and the barge was anchored only a mile and a half from the end of Navy pier. It was indicated in the attorney's speech that he would contend the distance was three miles or more from some shore point—hence the importance of the "meander line."

This is a surveyor's term, in this case applied to the contour of the lake shore. The dictionary defines it as "a surveyed line, usually irregular, not a boundary line." How it was used effectively against the police 30 years ago by the owners of the gambling ship, City of Traverse, was related yesterday by Lieut. William V. Blaul.

"I was then a detective working under Assistant Chief of Police Herman F. Schuettler," said Blaul. "Following his orders I boarded the City of Traverse several times and made bets. While it was operating the boat made circles in the lower end of the lake.

Confused on Stand.

"In court a good deal was made of this fact. When I was called on to testify the lawyers would insist whether, at a given time, the ship was off the Illinois, the Michigan, or the Indiana boundary. I was unable to tell.

"The Municipal court was not in existence then and our cases were heard by justices of the peace. They insisted on strict proof of gambling. When everything else was in proper legal shape, the justices said there was no proof that races, on which bets were made, had ever been run.

"To meet that point Schuettler sent Chicago policemen to all the race tracks to view the races and later to give evidence to the judges that when a bet was taken on a certain horse, that horse actually ran in a race on that date.

Fight Over Direction.

"When we had that kind of testimony to back up our personal observation of bets being accepted, the question of jurisdiction was raised. I remember hearing arguments hours long regarding the meander line of the lake, land accretions, riparian rights and legal boundaries."

The City of Traverse began operating in 1905, when Edward F. Dunne was mayor and John M. Collins chief of police. Chief Collins had declared a campaign against gambling and a syndicate chartered the boat so that the police could be avoided.

At first the craft took its passengers, often 300 or 400, aboard at the foot of South Water street and steamed with them out into the lake. When the police started arresting all patrons when they returned from the trip, the system was changed. The City of Traverse remained out in the lake and a smaller boat, the Eagle, carried its passengers out from 92d street.

Bets Reported by Wireless.

Race results were received aboard ship by wireless, then in its infancy. The police set up a borrowed wireless sending station on the south side, to intercept the message and to interfere with reception on the ship. This effort was not successful and a second station was set up in Buffington, Ind. This so annoyed the gamblers that they obtained the aid of Indiana authorities, who raided the station and arrested the Chicago detectives operating it. They were released several days later by order of the governor of Indiana.

The City of Traverse continued to be a gambling resort through 1906 and was retired in 1907, according to Lieut. Blaul, because patronage fell off. The police were unable to halt its use.

LADY WATSON, BRITISH POET'S WIDOW, HUNTS JOB AS A SERVANT

BRIGHTON, England, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Lady Watson, widow of Sir William Watson, British poet who died Aug. 13, is seeking employment, even as a domestic, to tide herself and daughters over the period necessary for clearing up the estate, it was learned today.

She is listed in the Brighton registry office as a candidate for work as a housekeeper or secretary. Saying her daughters already had such employment, Lady Watson announced:

"I do not mind what work it is, but I really must do something. There is no disgrace in it. I do not want charity."

She said she was expecting about $10,000 from America when the estate is settled.

AIR CONDITIONED HALL IS OFFERED FOR G.O.P. SESSION

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Kansas City, with its air cooled auditorium, seating 20,000 persons, which will be completed by the end of the year, will be the chief bidder for the Republican national convention next year, according to word coming today from City Manager McElroy.

Republican leaders are inclined to go west, it was said at the Republican national committee headquarters. They feel the battleground in the next campaign will be west of the Mississippi. Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland, and Minneapolis will be among the other cities seeking the convention. The convention city must raise funds necessary to cover all the expenses of the convention.

Some Democratic leaders feel that the west is holding unflinchingly to the Democrats, and there is no need to go west for the convention, and some favor Atlantic City which it is said has raised more than $200,000.

Begin Milk Drivers' Pay Scale Arbitration Today

Representatives of the Associated Milk Dealers and of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, are to meet in the Palmer House today with a wage arbitration board, of which Dr. William F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago is the neutral member. The union demands that drivers' pay be raised from $40 to $45 a week and that their commission be increased. Previous negotiations on these points ended in a deadlock. The dealers contended they were unable to meet the increase in wages without passing the cost on to the public.

THE EFFECTS OF INSANE SPENDING.

The treasury's latest bond flotation has been written down as a failure. The treasury offered 100 million dollars of Farm Mortgage corporation bonds for sale. The bonds were fully guaranteed as to interest and principal by the United States. Only 85 million dollars' worth could be disposed of.

Government officials may try to alibi themselves by saying that the interest rate, which was 1½ per cent, and the term of four years made the issue an unattractive investment. The alibi is not very convincing. The truth of the matter is that the treasury's experts must have appraised the money market and assumed that under the existing conditions the interest rate and the term would be acceptable to investors.

It does not follow from the fact that the issue failed that the treasury's experts erred in their quantitative analysis of the supply of money and the demand for investment securities. It is far more probable that the error arose from the assumption that the government's credit standing continues to be as high as it has been.

In truth the government's credit worthiness has steadily deteriorated for reasons which any schoolboy can recite. The debt has been mounting at a rate without precedent in peace times. The insane orgy of spending and the proved inability of the government at the recent session of congress to find revenues which will begin to balance its budget cannot have failed to influence the market. The effects may have been masked by the government's ability through the banks and the use of its own trust funds to rig the market for its securities, but the deterioration has taken place.

A year ago the treasury suffered a similar setback in an effort to float HOLC bonds. Meanwhile it has had no appreciable success in selling baby bonds through the postoffices despite a widespread campaign of publicity in connection with them. All these evidences point in the same direction. They are warning signals which the President may or may not heed.

There is reason to believe that Mr. Morgenthau is becoming worried. As secretary of the treasury he is pressing the President to balance the budget in 1936 or at least to give the country an unequivocal statement of how balance is gradually to be restored. Mr. Morgenthau has come to the same conclusion which Lewis Douglas had reached more than a year ago. Today Mr. Morgenthau finds himself in opposition to the advocates of the spending insanity as Mr. Douglas did then.

When the President was called upon before to choose between the two parties he sided with insanity. It remains to be seen if the failure of his latest loan will bring about a change of mind.

RAILROAD RATES AND POWER CONTRACTS.

What is described as the largest power contract ever made in this district was signed recently by the American Sheet and Tin Plate company of Gary, Ind. The Northern Indiana Public Service company undertakes to have 25,000 kilowatts available at all times for the company's use. It is estimated that the annual consumption of electricity by the tin plate company will approximate 100 million kilowatt hours.

No doubt before this contract was closed the engineers of the steel corporation did some close figuring. They estimated what it would cost to build, equip, and maintain their own generating station. The decision to buy power from the public utility company must have been made only after a careful comparison of figures.

The Northern Indiana company, with its connections in and about Chicago, has excess generating equipment. Its power lines are installed. It is in a position, therefore, to offer power on contract to very large consumers at extremely low rates. Such contracts are of universal advantage. They increase the revenues of the utility company without proportionately increasing its costs. They save money for the purchasing company and to that extent encourage its further expansion in this area, with consequent growth in population, real estate values, and wholesale and retail trade.

If the railroads were permitted to do what the power companies can still do they would not be in such trouble as they find themselves today. Like the power companies, the railroads have excess plant and equipment. They have freight cars, locomotives, tracks, and signal systems which are not worked to capacity. The fixed charge against these investments remains the same whether they are used or not. Obviously the railroads would be better off if they could do as the power companies have done in making annual contracts to serve industries which are large actual or potential users of transportation services.

Carload rates on the railroads are lower than less-than-carload rates, but there the premium for large volume ceases. There is no provision for trainload rates though the railroads obviously can afford to quote a lower rate for such movements than for single cars, especially if the trafic is offered at regular intervals. The result is that the railroads are prevented from creating that added volume of business which would rescue them from their present plight. They suffer today not from rates which are too low but from insufficient business, and the one sure means of acquiring the added business is denied them.

The railroad rate schedules, unlike those of the power companies, are frozen to accommodate the occasional and the emergency user. The victims are those who provide the railroads, year in and year out, with the great bulk of their trafic, and might provide much more if the rates were lower. The efficiency of the railroads and of industry as well would be promoted if some consideration were given to the real shippers rather than the fictitious ones for whom the rates are designed.

If the government does to the utility companies what it has already done to the railroad companies, the result will be a return to private power generation by the larger users of electricity. Just as shippers have found it profitable to own and operate fleets of trucks, so manufacturers will then find it cheaper to make their own electricity. That will oblige householders and small industries to carry an ever larger share of the cost of maintaining and operating the central power stations and the distributing lines. Every one will lose. The small consumers will find their rates increased; the big consumers will find their costs for electricity higher; and the investors who put their money into utility companies will suffer precisely as railroad investors have suffered.

DEVALUATION FAILS TO REVIVE EXPORTS.

A revival of foreign trade has paved the way for recovery from every serious depression before this one. That was so in the eighteen twenties, the forties, the seventies, and the nineties. Each time a pickup of about 50 per cent in the sale of goods abroad has started things humming here.

Profiting by experience, we would have sought business recovery by promoting sales to other nations. That there was a volume of foreign trade worth trying to get was clear from the statistics. Merely getting back old customers who were shopping elsewhere would have meant orders for four billion dollars' worth of goods per year. What was clearly required was a removal by international agreements of the impediments.

But this was too simple for any brain trust professor to think of. The professor's plan was a slicker. Offhand one wouldn't think of it. It was as if the problem was to improve the range of a soprano, and a solution was found in redefining the scale, calling high C what has always been known as A. The brain trust foreign trade reviver employed a similar trick. What every one recognizes as only 59 cents is called a dollar. A piece of foreign money would thus buy a larger amount of American money. Before this operation a thousand francs was equal to 39 dollars, but after the operation a thousand francs was equal to 66 dollars. The theory was that the coin clipping wouldn't be taken into account by Americans in deciding what they would sell their services and wares for, but would naturally be taken account of by the foreigners. Thus we were to sell more goods by cutting our prices, but the prices were to be cut without any one at home knowing about it.

This amazing method of increasing sales of foreign goods has actually been employed with temporary success by Japan. If American labor was docile as Japanese labor is, and if our government while employing this scheme to reduce our prices abroad had not simultaneously used every conceivable method to raise prices here, the result might have been the same as it was in Japan. But even there finis has not been written on the scheme. There may come a day when Nipponese workmen suffering from a steadily reduced standard of living will realize that the yen is not what it used to be.

But, however much devaluation has done for Japan, it has been a flop here. The report of the commerce department for the first seven months shows that not only are foreign sales not increasing but that we are actually importing into the United States large quantities of goods which we can produce more cheaply than any other country. THE TRIBUNE has long been convinced that we can recover from this depression as we did from others and that exports as before hold the key to our trade revival. Early in 1934 proposals to build up our export business were advanced in these columns. In succeeding editorials we shall review the trade developments of the past year and a half and renew our recommendations.

TEXAS, TOO, GOES WET.
[Illinois State Journal, Springfield.]

Texans have voted to eliminate from their state constitution the section prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicants. Apparently the voters have decided that it is useless longer to maintain the pretext of alcoholic aridity in the Lone Star state. Adherents of the prohibition policy who once insisted that it was necessary for protection against those who furnished liquor to field hands and other laborers have abandoned it as impractical.

There is much dry sentiment in Texas, but its most influential political support came from men who were interested chiefly in keeping the hired help on the water wagon. They declined to observe prohibition themselves. It was not to be expected that a policy of this sort would survive a demand for taxation of the trafic in liquor.

SIXTY-FOUR CENTS! TSK! TSK!

Dear Harvey! Help! Help! Greetings and Salutations! First of all, Harve, I want to thank you for the splendid manner in which you ran this Column of Persiflage while I was away on vacation. It was mighty nice of you and I thank you again. I thank you, my family thanks you, and Tommy Atkins thanks you. However, I don't see my way clear to paying you sixty-four cents which you say you are out because you had to buy more stamps than I left in the desk or you could wheedle out of Dorothy Stone. She's a cold proposition, that Dorothy Stone. Lovely and capable, but hard boiled when it comes to stamps. It's no use appealing to her higher and nobler nature when you ask for a couple of three cent stamps. I've tried that repeatedly and it doesn't work. Oh, not at all.

Of course I'm sorry you had to dig down in your jeans and spend sixty-four cents on stamps over and above the stamps I left in the desk. However, Harvey, you are really very lucky to have found the stamps in the desk. I meant to hide them in a crack over in the corner of the office where I put them last year, but the office has been moved and I couldn't find a crack in the floor of the new room. So I put them away very carefully in a copy some one sent me of "How to Know the Wild Flowers," thinking you wouldn't give a hoot to know any wild flowers. But to my great surprise and grief you were interested in wild flowers and opened the book and found the stamps. I shall know better next year. I'll hide those stamps where they're not going to be found, and that's that.

But Harve, while I recognize that you cannot get the sixty-four cents out of the sporting department where you are regularly employed, you seem to have a lingering hope you can get it out of the editorial department because the Line appears on that page. Don't entertain that fond illusion for a moment. Of all the hard boiled guys that ever lived that editorial department is the hardest. Ask them for that sixty-four cents and you will receive naught but raucous laughter. As for my paying you the sixty-four cents—oh Harve, how could you think of such a thing? Of course I thank you a million times for helping me out and enabling me to go on vacation—oh, mere words cannot express my gratitude, but as for paying you the sixty-four cents which you had to spend while doing my chores for me—now, Harve, that is quite another matter.

You see, Harve, I have recently been bitten by the photograph bug and I have been buying cameras and lenses—it would be lenses, wouldn't it? And film packs and hypo and floodlights and tripods and filters and things like that and I find I can't possibly see my way clear, Harve, to paying you that sixty-four cents. Did you ever support a couple of cameras, Harve? If you had you would never have mentioned the sixty-four cents. And then I am thinking of getting a new auto, Harve, and, of course, at such a time I couldn't think of paying you back the sixty-four cents although as I have said before you have my undying thanks for your noble efforts in my behalf. Besides, having just returned from vacation, I am obliged to restock my bar and you know that gin and Scotch and rum cost a lot of money and the publicans who sell it are at the head of the hard boiled class and they have to have the money right on the nail when I go in to buy it.

So you see, Harve, that while I thank you immensely, I am obliged first to think of the necessities of life such as cameras, automobiles, and cocktails, and I really can't fritter my money away paying debts if I can stand 'em off.

But again, Harvey, I thank you from the bottom of my heart for helping me out so nobly, but as to paying you back that sixty-four cents, oh come, come, my dear fellow, let us forget all about it.

R. H. L.

P. S.—And besides, I'm buying another camera.

APOSTROPHE TO THE WANG-WANG BIRD.

The wang-wang bird doesn't care where he's going to
All he desires is to see where he's been;
He doesn't care where the rivers are flowing to,
He wants to see where the rivers begin.
Backward he flies, with a yearning nostalgia
Born of a memory gentle and clear,
Born of a time when he hadn't neuralgia,
Peritonitis, or pains in the ear.
Backward he flies, turning tail to futurity—
Eagle or goshawk or starling or crane,
Which of your ancestors lost in obscurity,
Sapient marvel, bequeathed you your brain?
Wait, for the world has wrecked everything
wreckable,
Tooting on saxophones, living in sin;
Reach me a talon, O heron impeccable—
Let us fly backward and see where we've been!

"EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE Snubs England's Protest to Oil Deal."—Headline. Listen, Haile, you may never have heard that it was a bit reckless to monkey with the buzz saw, for you probably have no buzz saws in Ethiopia, so you wouldn't know what I meant. But what I was getting at, Haile, is that many people have tried to snub England before. Sometimes they got away with it, but usually they didn't. You may not know what a buzz saw is, but you certainly know what it means to twist a lion's tail because you have many lions in your country. Well, Haile, twisting an Ethiopian lion's tail is just nice clean sport compared to twisting the tail of the British lion. If you do twist the British lion's tail, Haile, I can tell you right now it's going to be Haile and Farewell.

LABOR'S GREAT ANNUAL holiday is over and this morning everybody will go back to work—lykell, lykell, lykell! R. H. L.

GET READY FOR SCHOOL.

SCHOOL days will soon be here and we must make certain that John and Margaret, and millions like them, are physically fit for the tasks that will confront them.

There will be much excitement on the opening day, with possibly a new face at the teacher's desk and many new acquaintances to be formed. All the old crowd will be on hand except Bill, whose folks had to move back east to live on his mother's father's place.

I have been saving a letter written to Bill early last autumn by one of his schoolmates. A few changes in wording have been made, but I am sure that the writer would give his consent, even though he is now a stalwart seventh grader.

"Dear Bill:

"Well! School opened last Tuesday and we certainly do miss you. There are a few new kids and one boy who moved here from Dayton is sure trying out our new teacher. We are all so glad to see Gladys. She is a little pale, but then she had a tough fight with pneumonia after the measles that got so many of us last spring. For days we all worried about Gladys, for she is such a favorite with every one. And how happy we are that she recovered.

"Last year a lot of us were tested against diphtheria and given toxoid—that is, if we needed it—and not a single one in our room had that awful disease. The school nurse said it is sometimes called 'the strangler' because when it is really bad it grows down the windpipe and you can't get your breath.

"Goodness knows I wish there was something we could take so no one would ever have measles again. But I guess another Louis Pasteur will have to come along and tell us about it. We all know about Pasteur because we had a lesson on him, and it was wonderful hearing about his life. He was the man who discovered how to prevent hydrophobia in people after they had been bitten by mad dogs. But I do wish that some one like him knew about measles because so many of us had it and were pretty sick.

"About a week before school began mother took me to the doctor's office, where I had to take off my clothes and then the doctor looked me all over and listened to my heart beat and my lungs breathe. He tickled me at first when he thumped on my chest, but I got used to it and really, Bill, it was fun. He was so nice, not a bit scary, and of course I remembered him because he was the same doctor who came when I had measles and said I could have ice cream just as soon as I stopped being real sick. Well, he made me stand up and he looked at my back, and said something to mother about exercises. Then he pricked my finger—he said to examine the blood—and put a drop in a little tube and another on a piece of glass. In a little while after looking through a big microscope he turned to mother and said: 'No anemia; his blood is fine,' and mother seemed pleased. He let me look in the microscope but I couldn't see much, just a lot of dots and some had a blue color, but I guess it was all right.

"I was telling Fred about my blood test and how the doctor pricked my finger, and he said he had the same thing and when he asked me did it hurt you bet I said 'No!'

"Well, Bill, we all miss you. Did you have your tonsils out as the doctor told you to? Art had his out three weeks ago and wasn't sick hardly at all. He came home from the hospital the day after and didn't play with the rest of us for a few days, but is just as well as can be now. Mother says she is glad because now he won't have rheumatism like Jim Wilson did when he was sick so long. Even now he has to be careful about playing too hard because he has a large heart which the doctor said came from his rheumatism, which came from his tonsils, which came from I don't know where.

"Now, Bill, write and tell me about your school and if you have a school nurse and if you like your teacher. This is kind of a long letter, but it's Saturday and it's raining and not much doing anyway, so I thought I'd write to you.

"Don't forget we're both going to be doctors when we grow up.

ANOTHER TEN YEARS?

E. W. writes an interesting letter in an almost Spencerian hand: "I am in my eighty-fifth year. I sleep well eight hours each night, exercise moderately, and attend to business every day. I do not use tobacco or liquor, but have always had my share of fun in life, and strangely enough do not seem to have any of the infirmities of old age, rarely waking during the night. Were it not for my business I would travel in my car across the country and climb Mount Washington, as I have already done four times. What more could I ask for?"

REPLY.

Eighty-five and still going strong, with a reasonable prospect of at least another ten years! Your philosophical attitude and moderation in all your activities are largely responsible for your good physical condition. You did not cross bridges until you came to them. Would that more of us could understand that worry never plowed a field or accomplished anything good in this life.

MENTAL AILMENTS.

C. E. B. writes: We know where to go for medical treatment for our loved ones, but when mental symptoms such as depression, melancholy, or a sudden, complete lack of courage appear, what should be done?

REPLY.

The same physician who looks after your physical ailments may be able to help you. An increasingly large number of general practitioners are able to cope with minor mental depressions. If the case is more puzzling or more intricate than your physician is accustomed to, he will know to whom to send you. There probably is a good psychiatrist within reach.

MERCHANDISE SALES.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is it illegal to sell second hand furniture for new? 2. If so, what can be done about it? 3. Can we make the firm refund our money? 4. The furniture shows wear and [5] was purchased for brand new. A. B. S.

1. There is no statute specifically prohibiting it. The rights of the purchaser would depend largely on the wording of the contract of sale. It is not clear how he is damaged if he was unable to tell the difference between the second hand goods and new goods.

2. Depends on facts that are not before us.

3. Same.

4 and 5. These facts seem inconsistent. Sec. 15 of the sales act provides that there is no implied waranty of quality except: [1] where the buyer makes known his particular purpose and relies on the seller's skill; [2] where the goods are bought by description from a dealer; [3]] if the buyer has examined there is no implied waranty as to visible defects. If you cannot prove an express or implied waranty the maxim "Caveat emptor" would apply, which means, in substance, that the buyer takes "as is." TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JOINT TENANTS.

Hammond, Ind., Aug. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother and her sister hold a [1] joint deed on a piece of property in Indiana [2] inherited from their mother. I would like to know if the children and husband of my mother (deceased) [3] would be joint owners with my mother's sister, or whether the property would be entirely owned by her. J. H. W.

1. Ordinarily this would mean that they hold under a deed expressly providing that they are joint tenants rather than tenants in common.

2. This seems inconsistent with the above.

3. If it was in fact held in joint tenancy, this means that on the death of one it goes to the survivor.

ELIGIBLE POLICE LIST.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—[Friend of the People.]—Please inform me as soon as possible how many men are on the eligible list for the Chicago police force and when applications will be accepted on the next draw. E. T.

We have a register consisting of about four hundred eligibles for the position of patrolman. The name of the writer has been placed on file for notification when an examination is called for this position.

JAMES S. OSBORNE, Secretary, Civil Service Commission.

EVICTION PROCEEDINGS.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I was evicted from my basement flat by legal action last February. I had lived there almost four years. I fell behind in my rent and the landlord obtained [1] judgment against me, ordering me out within ten days. The landlord is now making efforts to collect from me. 2. Did the first court action resulting in my eviction automatically settle the landlord's claim, or [3] can he obtain a new judgment against me that will force payment? 4. Can the landlord stop payment of my present wages? E. T.

1. It is not clear whether you mean that he obtained a cash judgment for rent in addition to the judgment for possession.

3. Yes.

4. Yes, subject to exemption of $20 per week allowed to the head of a family.

LARGE ELIGIBLE LIST.

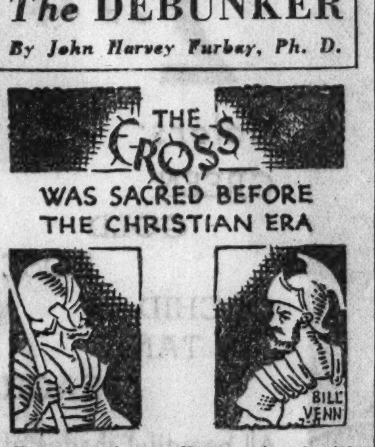
Chicago, Aug. 30.—[Friend of the People.]—I would like to know the date of the next examination for fireman. Also would appreciate knowing requirements for said position. If possible please have my name placed on the mailing list for notification of next examination. J. M.

The commission within the past two weeks posted a lengthy register of firemen which will remain in force for at least two years. The writer's name has been placed on file for notification when this examination is called in the future.

JAMES S. OSBORNE, Secretary, Civil Service Commission.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.



The cross is usually associated with the Christian religion and the death of the Savior, but history shows that the cross has long been a sacred emblem in the orient, and was so regarded a thousand or more years before the Christian era began. It was probably because of the established significance of the cross that it was selected as the Christian emblem.

SHARE THE HEALTH.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—We are hearing so much about the "share the wealth" program, but nothing about a "share the health" program.

My contention is that health is wealth and those that are enjoying excellent health are not only getting more out of life but are far richer viewed from a monetary standpoint than those that are ailing, even if the latter, dollar for dollar, should earn as much as the former, for a good portion of their earnings is dissipated in doctor and medicine bills.

Why not have every adult submit to a physical examination once a year and tax those who are in perfect physical condition a small percentage of their earnings, this money to be spent for free medical care and even hospitalization for those less fortunate?

Who, after receiving the glad tidings that he or she is physically fit, could possibly object to paying a small sum to help those who are not thus blessed?

Personally, should I be lucky enough to be found eligible, I would consider it an honor and a pleasure to contribute my share. MAURICE LAZARE.

REFERRED TO CIRCULATION DEPARTMENT.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—In taking a speed boat ride the other day I directed the driver to the four mile crib, as I had never seen a crib close up. I was astounded to learn from this driver, John Dorn, that the men at the crib are not even in receipt of a newspaper to keep them informed of world happenings.

The speed boat service is very indefinite and uncertain. Otherwise it would be a simple matter for me to subscribe for several copies of THE TRIBUNE which could be delivered by the speed boat daily. If there is anything you can suggest that will help in my being able to subscribe for THE TRIBUNE to reach the employés I shall be glad of your cooperation.

I will never forget the look of anticipation and joy on those men's faces as the speed boat pulled up alongside the crib and I was very sorry to send up only cigarets and cigars that were on my person. HAROLD E. BERG.

AWFUL SILENCE.

Western Springs, Ill., Aug. 30.—I was at a large downtown theater last Thursday night. During the program Roosevelt was shown in a talkie addressing the proletariat gathered at Milwaukee.

Not thirty persons in that vast audience applauded the dictator's words.

I had a feeling that patriotic Americans were serving notice on Roosevelt that he has been trampling rough shod on sacred ground. Yes, ground made sacred by loyal men and loyal women in all of the years of American history.

THE ORDINANCE OF 1787.

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 29.—Your "Editorial of the Day" in your issue of Aug. 29 is an editorial of the Detroit Free Press regarding the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Ordinance of 1787, which the editorial says ranks among American state papers second only to the constitution and the Declaration of Independence.

The man who had most to do with the writing of that document was the Rev. Manasseh Cutler, a Congregational preacher. There is a great deal of criticism these days about religion in politics, but here is an instance where a preacher's activity in politics has resulted in an incalculable blessing to the nation for all time to come and for which he is now extoled.

One kind of ecclesiastical meddling in politics is to secure political power or advantage for some religious denomination, which is to be condemned. Another kind is to promote righteous legislation for the good of all the people—to write the principles of Christianity into our laws—and of that kind of religion in politics we can never have too much. E. E.

PENSION FUNDS.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Apparently "E," the worried pensioner, thinks he has some well founded legal claim on the pension fund, if any really exists, set up by the concern for which he works. He must have forgotten what happened in the reorganization of a large packing firm here in Chicago not many years ago. In that case the broadminded judge decided that the fund was the property of the company and the pensioners had no legal claim on it whatever. It was lumped with the general assets for the benefit of the creditors. The learned judge evidently regarded the pension fund as mere bait to keep employés loyal to the company and satisfied with their wages.

As long as pension funds are the property of the pensioning corporation, instead of being placed in trust, the pensioners and other employés have only an uncertain and precarious degree of security. READER.

ACRES OF RAGWEED.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—I drove on 47th street through Western Springs and noticed on the west side acres and acres of giant ragweed ten feet tall. As we mostly have a west wind, these pollens from Western Springs are blown right into Chicago.

I am not a person to wish any one harm, but I wish that all village officials of Western Springs would suffer from hay fever as I do. How quickly they would cut the ragweed. I imagine that Western Springs gets its share from the state for relief. If they cannot employ these people to destroy ragweed the state should cut Western Springs off from relief funds. PRESIDENT ENDS ACTION ON BILLS; SIGNS 1, VETOES 7

Starts Plans for Autumn Campaign Trip.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Plowing through a mass of minor bills sent to him by the recent congress, President Roosevelt today vetoed seven measures and approved one. He will sign no more bills of the many heaped on his desk, it was announced.

Although he received no formal calls, the President was host at a luncheon in his summer residence to a group of friends including Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau and Rexford Guy Tugwell, chief brain truster.

There was some leisurely discussion, it was reported, of the speech making campaign to be conducted on the chief executive's trip to the Pacific coast late this month. The practical advice of Postmaster General James Farley, New Deal patronage dispenser, was delayed because of the funeral in Chicago tomorrow of Mrs. Harold Ickes, wife of the secretary of the interior.

Farley Goes to Funeral.

Farley passed through here tonight on his way to Chicago. Farley is expected to come to Hyde Park to give the President the benefit of his observations on political conditions in the nation made on his return trip across the country after a vacation in Hawaii.

The lone bill approved by the President today, the last which will receive affirmative action from him, authorized the Menominee Indians in Wisconsin to sue the United States in the Court of Claims to recover title to certain lands in the state. The tribe is also authorized to file claims for damages resulting from alleged unlawful expenditures of tribal trust funds; for damages caused by government timber cutting operations on their reservation, and for damages said to have been caused by maladministration on the part of the government and the timber and lumber industries of the Menominee tribe.

Vetoes Back Pay Bill.

The most important measure vetoed by the President was that providing for an added compensation of approximately 7 million dollars for some 15,000 officers and soldiers who were in the volunteer forces of the United States in the Philippine Islands at the time of the treaty of peace with Spain in April, 1899.

In a memorandum attached to his veto, the President pointed out that these men were voted 2 months' extra pay in 1899, were awarded a special medal, and received transportation and subsistence at government expense for the journey home in addition to full pay.

"I have recently signed an act restoring pensioneers of the war with Spain and Philippine insurrection to their full rate of pension," the memo stated. "I feel that no breach of trust has been committed by the government as regards the men who served their country in that war and from the facts in this case, general legislation such as this is not deemed advisable."

Other Bills Rejected.

Other bills vetoed were as follows:

1. An act to place David J. Fitzgerald on the army retired list as a first lieutenant. Cause of veto: Fitzgerald voluntarily resigned in 1919, is now receiving $10 a month from United States Veterans' administration.

2. An act to refund Homer J. Williamson $1,045 income tax because of an overpayment due to a deputy collector's error. Cause of veto: Claim for refund not filed within statutory period.

3. An act to place Russel H. Lindsay on the navy retired list. Cause of veto: Lindsay's disability not incurred in line of duty.

4. An act to pay John M. McNulty $2,812 per annum as a retired lieutenant commander in the navy. Cause of veto: McNulty now receiving $60 per month pension, no reason to single him out for preferential treatment.

5. An act to reimburse twenty-five cotton producers $3,078 who stored cotton in a warehouse in advance of negotiating for loans from the Commodity Credit corporation. Fire destroyed the warehouse. Cause of veto: Government acquires no interest in such cotton until loan negotiated.

6. An act to place Col. Ira L. Reeves on the retired list of the army if retiring board decides he was incapacitated for service at time of resignation in 1920. Cause of veto: Reeves voluntarily resigned. Is now receiving $100 a month from United States Veterans' administration.

First word received here this afternoon led to the belief that it was Karpis, public enemy No. 1, who was being brought from Chicago. It was not until the plane arrived that this belief was dispelled.

Strict secrecy veiled the movements of the captured pair by justice agents. The department of justice bureau in St. Paul received no advance information concerning the arrests or the bringing of the pair here. The agents radioed that they would land at the Minneapolis airport, and then landed in St. Paul.

Mob Lived at Apartment.

It was in the apartment of Myrtle Eaton that plans for the Bremer kidnaping were made, the government charged early this year at the St. Paul trial of ten persons accused of the abduction, for which Arthur [Doc] Barker was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Testimony by Wynona Burdett, sweetheart of Harry Campbell, at the trial, revealed that several of the mobsters lived in the Eaton woman's apartment during the fall of 1933 until Bremer was abducted.

Weaver is 38 years old and the Eaton woman 33. He was paroled from the Oklahoma penitentiary at MacAlester in 1931 after serving part of a life term for murder.

Subsequently, in August, 1932, he was arrested in St. Paul for carrying concealed weapons and posted $500 bond. He forfeited the bond and his parole was revoked a few months later. Since that time he has been sought.

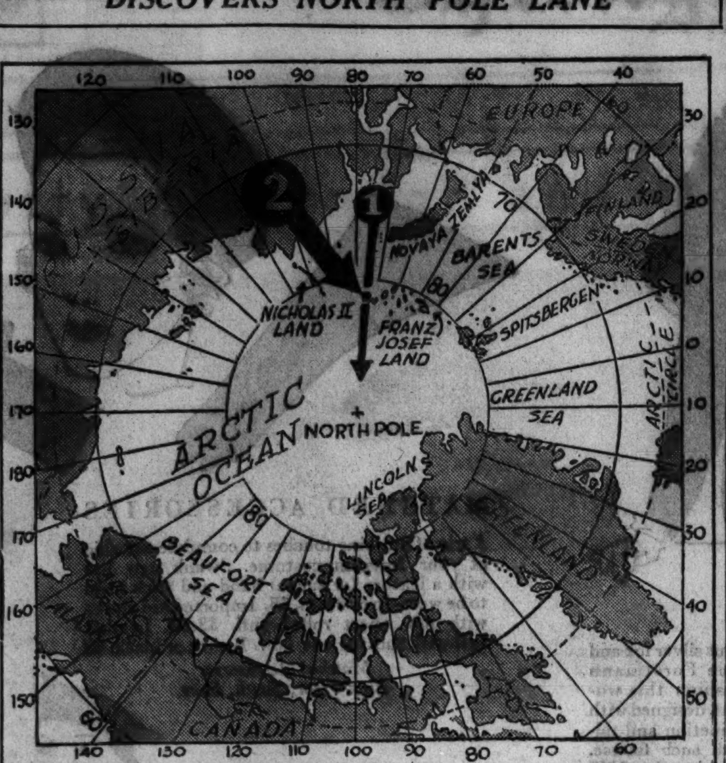
Twent -two Indicted.

Twenty-two persons were originally indicted in the Bremer kidnaping. Of these, eleven went to trial in United States District court here April 17 last.

Charges against two of these, Mrs. Edna [Rabbits] Murray and Jess Doyle, were dismissed. Five, Barker, Harold Alderton, John J. [Boss] McLaughlin, Chicago politician; James Wilson, and Oliver Berg, were convicted. During the course of the trial Byron Bolton and Elmer Farmer pleaded guilty.

McLaughlin received a five year sentence. He was charged with a part in the disposal of the ransom money. Alderton, in whose Bensenville, Ill., home Bremer was held captive for twenty-one days, received twenty years. Farmer also got twenty years and Wilson, former Northwestern university medical student, got five. Barker and Berg both received life terms.

DISCOVERS NORTH POLE LANE



MOSCOW, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The soviet ice breaker Sadko reported by radio today it had discovered a warm water passage (1) through arctic ice which might be a section of an open channel through which steamers could navigate to the far east from Europe by way of the polar regions.

George Ushakov, head of the expedition exploring arctic areas, said the passage was 650 feet wide, cutting through previously unexplored territory between Franz Josef land and Nicholas II. land. He reported the water lane was flanked by fields of impassable ice.

Ushakov, who also announced the discovery of a new island (2), said he believed the water, with a temperature of only 30 degrees Fahrenheit, was a part of the gulf stream.

The passage was reported extending due north from the position of the Sadko, given as 81½ degrees northern latitude, approximately 700 miles from the north pole. The position of the reported island was given as 80.51 degrees northern latitude, 75.25 longitude, placing it east of the Franz Josef group in a practically unexplored area.

The Graf Zepelin flew over the region in 1931, but Ushkov said the island may have been covered with ice and indistinguishable from the sea. The ice breaker, Ushakov reported, approached to a point within a mile of shore.

KING SHUNS REST TO REMAIN WITH BODY OF QUEEN

BRUSSELS, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Young King Leopold paid scant heed to his own injuries and refused to rest today, staying instead close to the body of his queen, Astrid, to watch the slowly moving lines of mourners come to pay their last respects.

Court officials sought to persuade the king to go to Stuyvenberg castle, where his three children are staying. Astrid will be laid to rest tomorrow in a royal crypt at Laeken.

The funeral arrangements were similar to those for King Albert, who died in a mountain climbing accident last year, save that Albert's coffin was borne to his crypt on a gun carriage symbolical of his heroic war deeds, while Astrid's will be carried in a herse.

Drape Cathedral.

King Leopold himself, who suffered a broken rib and other injuries in the automobile accident in Switzerland that took the life of his queen, will follow her coffin on foot.

Workmen completed their draping in black of the magnificent 11th-century cathedral of Sainte Gudule, where the funeral mass will be said.

After the mass, the procession will start at 10:15 a. m., [4:15 a. m., Chicago time] headed by a military detachment, escorting Astrid's body to the royal vault in the Church of Our Lady of Laeken, where she will be placed beside Albert, whom she loved so dearly.

Funeral Guns Boom.

Street lamps were covered with crepe all along the procession route. The queen's three young children will not witness her funeral. The pall bearers will be members of the Belgian and foreign royal families, members of the diplomatic corps and government officials.

Tonight the funeral guns started firing hourly in a last requiem. Windows and balconies of public and private buildings were draped in crepe.

"NO TIME"...THE ANSWER OF THE SLEEPING MIND
Men and women who find themselves unable to acquire a business education in regular day sessions, need not suffer the handicap of lack of training.
Those with the will to move forward and keep pace with their fellowmen dismiss lack of time with an impatient shrug. For everyone has all the time there is. They study EVENINGS and find they are making productive the time which probably would have been withered away in day dreams and wishes.
If attainment in business is your objective, Evening Study at De Paul can help you achieve that position in life you hold most desirable.
Whatever field of business appeals to you most . . . Accounting, Banking, Investments, Credits and Collections, Purchasing, Foreign Trade, Marketing, Advertising, Selling, Business Correspondence, or Newspaper Work . . . carefully planned courses are available to help you forge ahead.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE cocktail party that Mr. and Mrs. James Greenleaf Alexander and Miss Betty Alexander gave yesterday afternoon at their Lake Forest home for Miss Josephine Templeton and her fiancé, Sidney Johnson, had a more romantic reason for being given than just to fête the prospective bride and bridegroom, for the young hostess' engagement to Orville Elias Babcock Jr. was announced at it.

The engagement of Miss Alexander to the elder son of the Orville E. Babcocks did not come as a great surprise to their friends, for the young man has been a devoted suitor of Miss Alexander's ever since her debut, which took place two years ago in the same place in which yesterday's party was given. Before making her debut Miss Alexander attended the Girls' Latin school in Chicago and Miss Porter's school at Farmington, Conn. Mr. Babcock is a graduate of St. Paul's school and attended Yale university. The wedding will take place this fall.

Several of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander's friends to whom their daughter was introduced formally two years ago were guests yesterday at the announcement party. Miss Alexander is to be a bridesmaid for Miss Templeton, the Kenneth S. Templetons' daughter, who will become Mrs. Johnson a week from Saturday at the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest.

Luncheon Tomorrow for Dorelle Moulton.

Miss Lily Fleming, daughter of the Joseph B. Flemings of Lake Forest, will entertain at luncheon tomorrow at the Onwentsia club for Miss Dorelle Moulton, who is to make her debut Friday at a tea-dance at the Skokie Country club. On Friday, preceding the debut party, Mrs. Albert C. King will give a luncheon at her Kenilworth home for Miss Moulton, who is the William A. Moultons' daughter.

Miss Mary Louise Marsh is coming from Washington, D. C., and Miss Louise Stanley is coming from Evansville, Ind., to assist at Miss Mary Elizabeth Armstrong's debut tea on Saturday afternoon. Miss Marsh was with Miss Armstrong at Miss Madeira's and Miss Stanley attended Sarah Lawrence college with the debutante. Miss Armstrong's other assistants at the tea, which will be given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace White Armstrong, at their home on Sheridan road, Winnetka, will be six Winnetka girls, Miss Evelyn Shuman, Miss Katherine Bulger, Miss Babbs Burton, Miss Rosemary Kemper, Miss Patricia Kelly, and Miss Frances Price; also Miss Joan Smith, Miss Elizabeth Dewes, Miss Nancy Poole, and Miss Nancy Bastien. Miss Armstrong, who was graduated from Sarah Lawrence last June, will study art this fall and is planning to go to Europe after Christmas.

Mrs. Jacob Baur Sails for U. S. Tomorrow.

Mrs. Jacob Baur, who has been spending the summer in Europe, is sailing on the Europa tomorrow for the United States and will dock in New York on Sept. 9. She will stay there several weeks to attend the meeting of the Women's National Republican club on Sept. 16 and 17. She may visit in Washington before she returns to Chicago late this month.

Louis C. Sudler spent the week-end with his wife and little son at their summer place at Harbor Point, Mich. Mrs. Sudler, who will return from the point about Sept. 15, was in town several weeks ago to move from 232 East Walton place to 229 Lake Shore drive.

Miss Betty Brawley returned Saturday from a visit to Egg Harbor near Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

Mrs. Marshall Sampsell is going to New York today for a week or so. Mrs. Sampsell's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams Carr of Buenos Aires, were among those who entertained for Mr. and Mrs. John T.

George Brent First Choice in Bachelor Poll

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Filmdom's most desirable bachelor is George Brent. He is, at least, in the opinion of twelve beautiful girls at the Warner studio who are dancers in "Broadway Hostess." They agree with Greta Garbo, for he was her selection just before she went back to Sweden for a visit.

Each of the femmes was asked to name ten bachelors and Brent received the most votes out of a possible 120. The girls didn't forget the prince of Wales. He tied for second place with William Powell and Nelson Eddy.

Margaret Callahan, the Broadway actress, will be handed a long term contract at R. K. O. studio as a reward for her work in "Hot Tip" when she arrives tomorrow. Miss Callahan was told she could go on a vacation in New Hampshire and that she would be notified whether she was wanted for another picture. All the telegram to her said was to rush back to Hollywood.

Police recovered Sally O'Nell's stolen car which was abandoned in a residential district. However, Brenda Mayo, platinum blonde New York stage actress, is bewailing the loss of a fur wrap which she left in the car.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. Joseph Leiter has selected Oct. 11 for a dance at Edgewater House, her summer home, for her daughter, Miss Nancy Leiter. This is a preliminary festivity for Miss Leiter whom Mrs. Leiter will formally present to society at an entertainment in the Leiter home on Du Pont circle later in the season.

Thomas Leiter of Chicago will be host for his mother at these parties. Mrs. Leiter and her daughter will spend October at Edgewater House. Her niece, Miss Audrey Campbell, has spent the summer in England with the relatives of her father, the late Maj. Colin Campbell. Her mother was Mrs. Nancy Leiter Campbell of Chicago and Washington.

Everybody at the Twentieth Century-Fox studio, including Darryl Zanuck, is helping Shirley Temple with her stamp collection. She started it when a fan sent her an album and a packet of stamps. Shirley receives mail from all over the world.

Jane Quigley, the four year old starlet, had her heart set on playing in Jean Harlow's new picture! "Riff Raff," at M. G. M. But the director, J. Walter Rubin, wanted a ragamuffin type and not a sweet little doll like Baby Jane.

She went to the associate producer after mussing up her hair and drawing it back over her ears, and he suggested another visit to Rubin. She hurried over to Rubin's office with the announcement, "I'm the toughest gal in town." Rubin was amazed by the transformation and gave her the part.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Sept. 2.—Production of Sean O'Casey's play, "The Silver Tassie," by the Abbey Theater company in Dublin has aroused a violent controversy.

One of the directors, Brinsley MacNamara, today issued a statement detailing his futile efforts to prevent the production, but added that the poet Yeats seemed determined to make a peace offering to O'Casey and so outrage Irish sentiment by the blasphemous production.

O'Casey's writings are resented by Catholics because of their offensive allusions. MacNamara is a Catholic, as well as two other directors, but he appears to be in a minority of one. Expressions of disapproval, based mainly on religious grounds, against the Abbey company producing any of O'Casey's plays are pouring in from all parts of the country.

'Tobacco Road' a Stage Record for Cusswords

"TOBACCO ROAD."

A play based on Erskine Caldwell's novel, by Jack Kirkland; given in the Selwyn theater Sept. 2, 1935, with Henry Hull as star, under the management of Jack Kirkland and Sam H. Grisman.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Labor day brought into Chicago, at the Selwyn theater, the longest-lived play of the last five years and also, to use its own dialect, the cussingest play that has ever been staged in this profane era. It is the well-known and much talked-of "Tobacco Road," which has been in steady performance in New York for two years and is still active there, headed toward the long-run records of "Abie's Irish Rose" and "Lightnin'."

The Chicago cast for this earthy and grotesque study of Georgia white trash, in their most degraded and no-account form, is headed by Henry Hull, the actor who originated the remarkable character study of Jeeter Lester, often spoken of as a masterpiece. This is, indeed, a notable example of portraiture in a vein that has won fame for the Abbey theater company of Dublin and the Moscow Art theater of the Stanlislavsky period.

Jeeter as acted by Mr. Hull is a foul-mouthed, gabbling, droll specimen of the degenerate peasantry of the south—strange, humorous, sinister and almost subhuman. The character is enriched with many strokes of faithful, sometimes loathsome, realism. An old man, he has much of the spryness of his youth, and he moves through the play doing nothing, chattering with simian vigor, like a satiric symbol of everything that is ornery, low-down and yet biologically persistent in the white-trash stock.

Dapper young leading men were Mr. Hull's specialty for many years until he found this rôle and proved himself to be a "character actor"—a phrase that usually implies whiskers and eccentric attire—of high distinction. His Jeeter is a perfect incarnation of the central figure in Erskine Caldwell's novel, of which this play is an effective dramatization.

The play follows the book faithfully for one-half of its course, utilizing only the incidents that are found in the text and following the vivid and natural dialog closely. Then, to endow itself with a plot in conventional form, and also to develop the theme of spiritual union with the land in Jeeter's grubby soul, it introduces an eviction scene, with a grasping bank as the mortgage-holding villain. At this point "Tobacco Road" begins to show a resemblance to the old melodramas of the Irish land troubles, and oddly enough Fiske O'Hara, once a follower of Chauncey Olcott in lyric Hibernian romances, acts the rôle of the heartless financier.

Jeeter and his drab wife, Ada—finely acted by Mary Servoss—are not burned to death in their tumble-down shack, as in the novel. She becomes a victim of her crazy son's automobile driving, but Jeeter survives as the curtain falls, still mouthing about his passion for the fields which his ancestors have tilled.

The cast is excellent, and the types of Georgia white trash that surround Jeeter and Ada are vividly portrayed. The play was received with enthusiasm. It is, indeed, a theatrical production of decided novelty.

Illinae Tea Tomorrow.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

SALZBURG, Austria.—A festival night, with Toscanini conducting "Falstaff" at the Festival theater. Crowds line the streets leading to the theater—Salzburg folk come to stare at the foreign visitors in evening clothes who for five weeks pour their money into the town. A long line of motors turns into the courtyard of what was once the stables of the prince archbishops. The foyer, adorned with fresco paintings. The auditorium, with its brown wooden galleries and bare white walls. The rustle of silk and taffeta, and the hum of conversation in three languages.

THE crowd is seating itself. Continental beauties, with their hair in smooth braids bound about the head, and diamonds twinkling in their ears. Viennese ladies wearing coronets of fresh flowers. Grandes dames in elegant black. Fräuleins in silk. American debutantes in rustling taffeta. Italian singers looking ecstatic. Art patrons and music students. Viennese bankers, eager to be seen and to have it known that they, as well as the French and English and Americans, support the Salzburg festival. Cook's tourists in groups. School teachers in lace frocks that pack well without having to be pressed; thin English women in vague large, pale blue prints.

The most famous of all conductors ascends the podium and there is prolonged applause. He is beautiful, this man, with his finely modeled features, his gray hair and distinguished bearing. And even after the wine-red curtains part on the first act of "Falstaff" there are those who continue to watch him instead of the singers.

TOSCANINI is said to be short of vision. An incident that occurred yesterday morning during the "Falstaff" rehersal indicates that this is no handicap in his directing. . abruptly stopped rehersal for a moment at the point where Nanetta and her lover are singing their duet in the garden scene. They had kissed, and Miss Mason was about to sing again when Toscanini threw down his baton.

"No, no!" he objected. "You did not kiss on the beat of the music."

And a singer familiar with his temperamental outbursts murmured that if the maestro could see any better they would all be dead.

BY ANNA NANGLE.

If you're a Gracie Allen fan, by all means go to see her latest piece of insanity—but if you think she and her brother and her little blue hat are just plain silly—keep out of the Garrick or, I warn you, you'll be gnashing your teeth and tearing your hair.

Miss Allen is crazier than ever, and incidentally very funny, as the daughter of a millionaire, who wishes to appear to have lost all his money. He blithely signs everything over to Gracie, in what he considers to be a temporary arrangement. He reckons without his daughter's unusual mental processes, however, and she takes him seriously and sets gayly to work "making them poor." Believe me, she's one busy little girl. Running wild with a scissors, she transforms clothing into rags, has the roof fixed so it will leak, wants all windows smashed, and places a large order for moths for the carpets. She's a zany if ever there was one, and, in addition to her clowning, dances and sings beguilingly. It's entirely Gracie's picture—the other members of the cast are stooges who do what is required of them. There's a romantic angle, of course, ridiculously in keeping with the rest of the story, and Gracie's wooing is hilarious.

The flicker goes a bit slapstick occasionally, but on the whole is nuttily entertaining.

Park Concert Program

With a program by Bohumir Kryl and his band the series of concerts in Grant park will come to an end tonight, although an extra event of large dimensions remains for next Sunday, when Frederick Stock will conduct the Chicago Symphony, Chicago Opera, and Woman's Symphony orchestras, 225 players in all, in an elaborate program. In tonight's program Mr. Kryl will appear as director and cornet soloist. The program:

New Blouses of Velveteen Bright, Varied

Suitable to Alternate with Favorite Sweater.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Tired of wearing your pet sweater from dawn till dusk? Then the velveteen blouse is for you. Worthy of the high fashion top they have acquired, the most assorted collections that ever tempted a cruising shopper with money burning in the pockets to be spent will be seen in the next few weeks. A lot of them are cut and designed with the same casual swank as a fine imported sweater, with the same comfort, superfitting, and short sleeves.

Some of them have short-short sleeves with clasps of metal, the ideal blouse top for tweed two piece suits, still others use covered buttons, trick seaming, a patch pocket or two, and let their bright, vivid coloring suffice as their appeal for dull, dark wool ensembles. Others are made to fit over the ribs, reach a line well over the hips, have long sleeves and can easily double for a separate jacket top to be worn with any separate skirt you may own.

Colors are as numerous as the samples on a paint card—lots of purples, reds, dull and bright blues, and a few checks. There are navy, deep brown and black for dark top contrast with bright plaid wool skirts.

Wool jackets are featured in the biggest showings yet to arrive, trim tailored things with loads of dash and moderate price tags. So if the velveteens don't get to the top of your skirts, these clever colored, checked and fuzzy wool jackets will. You haven't seen so large and varied an assortment in years!

Stephens, Irish Poet, Calls Hemingway's Works Subhuman

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—James Stephens, the Irish poet-philosopher, arrived today on the Normandie to lecture in western universities and to visit his friend, W. T. H. Howe, president of the American Book company, at the latter's place in Freelands, Ky.

Of the American literature, of "the Hemingways and the other ways," Stephen said there was a new era of "brutal subhuman writing and with the subhumanity there is something very like idiocy, and yet it has extraordinary powers. These stories, including Faulkner and Erskine Caldwell, are the most brutal and low-brow stories of the English language."

The Husband Snatcher

SYNOPSIS.

After two years of marriage, Nancy and Dick Heritage are still greatly in love. Though Nancy is hated by her mother-in-law, Edith Heritage, she has come to live with them in their little house in Primrose Dene, near London. There is a gap of four years in Nancy's life which she had not satisfactorily accounted for. Nancy is informed by Mr. Sam Digger, attorney, that she has been bequeathed £5,000 by Miss Agnes Satchell, late governor of a girls' reformatory, where Nancy had been committed for four years. Nancy had been employed by a Mrs. Lane and was accused of a theft. Sylvia, Mrs. Lane's daughter, was the real culprit. Sylvia threatened to kill herself if Nancy exposed her. Nancy foolishly took the blame, though she possessed a signed confession from Sylvia. Miss Satchell believed in Nancy's innocence. Nancy learns that her sole remaining relative, an aunt, had been killed in China. Dick and his mother are displeased when they learn that Nancy is expecting a baby. Edith Heritage is a friend of Mrs. Lane's. Sylvia, who becomes interested in Dick, assures Nancy that her secret of the reformatory is safe. She asks Nancy for the written confession, but Nancy had torn it up. Sylvia calls on Dick at the architect's office where he is employed and asks him to plan a house for her. They spend a great deal of time together. Nancy learns that she has inherited another small legacy from her aunt. Mr. Digger suggests that she pass the two legacies off as one. He also offers his help if she is ever in trouble. Nancy returns home unobserved and overhears Sylvia begging Dick to get a divorce. Mrs. Lane tells Edith Heritage Nancy's secret. Nancy confesses to Dick, who receives the story none too well, but threatens to obtain custody of his unborn child if she leaves him. Nancy seeks Digger for advice and learns he is playing tennis in a nearby court.

INSTALMENT XXXII.

A LIAISON ENDED.

While Nancy was hastening toward the gate leading to the gardens behind Gray's inn to interrupt Mr. Sam Digger's game of tennis, we will leave her to her quest for a little while and have a look into Dick Heritage's heart and test its soundness.

Nancy's tardy confession had sobered Dick more than seems to have appeared. Also, it humbled him. He did not like having his dignity trailed in the dust, and at first he was resentful. He had called his wife "a dirty little sneak thief," and it began to rankle that he could have done such a cruel thing.

Something wholly unsuspected, either by himself or Nancy, began to stir in him. She was his wife, and right or wrong, it was his duty to stand by her.

When she had said she was going to leave him he was panic-stricken and threatened her in the only way he felt would be effectual.

Yes, Dick had been chastened by the thought that Nancy might go out of his life forever. It rounded him up sharply and made him look facts in the face. He discovered that life without Nancy had little to offer him.

Sylvia's voice on the telephone that morning was like a clash of cymbals on a distressed auditory nerve. It was an imperative voice, possessive beyond reason, lacking in the soothing timber associated with harmony.

Sylvia wanted to see him at once. If he did not come with all speed to her flat she would get into her car and drive straight out to Primrose Dene. She wasn't going to stand any more nonsense like last night. She was through with shilly-shallying.

Dick took his hat and went to her as fast as he could. In his opinion, it would be nothing short of a calamity if she made good her threat and pursued him into his own home—Nancy's home, too, he reminded himself.

When he appeared at Sylvia's flat and she saw he was arrayed in country clothes, she jumped to the conclusion that their little party, planned for his birthday, was not off as had been intimated.

"I knew you'd come, Dick! I knew you were just pretending to be angry with me—for Nancy's benefit, I suppose. It won't take ten minutes for them to get the hamper packed. Just excuse me a moment——"

"No," he interrupted firmly. "There isn't going to be any picnic."

Sylvia stared at him. Her mouth went down at the corners and her pale eyes blazed indignation.

"Perhaps you will explain yourself," she said.

"Well, I can have a try at it," Dick replied, not unkindly. "To put it briefly, Sylvia, we were heading for trouble, you and I, and we've got to pull up before it's too late."

"Too late—for what?"

"To save complete disaster."

"You mean, if Nancy left you and got a divorce so you could marry me, that would be disaster?" She looked incredulous.

"I think it would be even worse for you than for me, in the long run—and that's saying a good deal. If it were possible—and it isn't, Sylvia—what sort of a husband would you be getting? Do you think you could pin any faith on a fellow like that?"

"Dick, I thought you loved me!"

"You never thought anything of the sort, my dear. Don't be absurd."

"You've given every proof of it," she exclaimed hotly. "Yesterday——"

"We'd better leave yesterday out of it," Dick interrupted. "If I hadn't kissed you, you'd have screamed the house down. As it was, Nancy came home in the midst of our altercation and heard what was going on. I wouldn't have had that happen for worlds."

Sylvia was being supremely herself this morning.

"Nancy!" she exclaimed, in a tone of utter contempt. "I suppose she told you that she was innocent of taking that money—that she should never have been sent to the reformatory. Or don't you know about that?"

"Yes, I know all about it," said Dick.

"You prefer that kind of a wife, I suppose. Or has she told lies to turn you against me? O, but men are fools! I'm willing to wager anything you like Nancy told you that I was the one who stole from Mrs. Bagge and that she took the blame in order to save me. That's how she's tried to get out of it, and you—calling yourself an intelligent man—believed her!"

"No, Nancy didn't tell me anything of the sort. She was careful not to accuse you or anybody else. I wonder why you are accusing yourself?"

"I? Accusing myself!"

"It sounds like it. You've somehow given me an idea of what might have happened."

Sylvia flung herself into a chair, laughing hysterically.

"Really, it is too funny!" she exclaimed. "This is all the thanks I get for keeping Nancy's miserable secret. It wasn't I who let it out. I was loyal to her, even when I saw you were falling in love with me. I didn't mean to use that weapon to make you completely disgusted with Nancy. I felt sorry for her. After all, she had been put away for four years, and that seemed punishment enough. But mother knew what sort of a woman she was, and your mother knew all along there was something wrong with Nancy——"

"That's about enough," said Dick. He reached for his hat.

She jumped up and went to her desk, taking a slip of paper out of a drawer.

"Here's your check for the work you have so kindly been doing for me. I shan't build that house now. I didn't really want it, anyway. But of course you've earned your money. Take it and go. I never want to see you again."

Dick took it, and looking her straight in the eyes, tore it in half and laid the pieces on her desk.

"I suppose you're so rich you can afford to do that," Sylvia said scornfully. "I mean, your wife's come into a little money, hasn't she?"

Dick said nothing; not even goodby. He was too shaken, too filled with self-loathing to trust himself to say another word.

It was only a step from Sylvia's into the Green park and thither Dick went, walking aimlessly.

He sat down on a bench and took out his cigaret case, but his hands were trembling so badly that it was difficult work to get a light.

Could he straighten out the situation even in his mind? That would help some.

To begin with, had he led Sylvia Lane on to such an extent that she could imagine he was seriously in love with her? The answer was in the negative. He had to admit that he had kissed her—but what are you going to do when a girl throws her arms around your neck and threatens to scream the house down? Kissing her was the only possible way to stop that sort of behavior. And when he had finally got rid of her with the promise that he would look in after dinner last night and "talk it over," it had been his firm intention to let her know he was not going on with that sort of nonsense.

Nancy had upset that little plan. He thought of her as she had looked last evening in the restaurant—so beautiful and so unapproachable. He had to give Nancy credit of poise. She had behaved like a little thoroughbred, and afterward, too, when she made her tardy confession.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Cause and Effect

Mother Should Plan Ahead for Child's Party

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"I'll tell you about the party in the morning, mother," said a 14 year old daughter as her mother helped her pull off her sea green organdy.

"Did you have a good time, dear?" asked the mother the next morning at breakfast.

"O, yes, mother, pretty good. We danced a little and then played games. But the trouble was that nothing was planned ahead of time, and I don't think that works out so well. The guests kept saying: 'Well, what'll we play now?' And it was all sort of hit or miss."

Even this child noticed that a party goes much better in which the whole order of things is planned. Of course, if it's an impromptu party, and you're experienced and resourceful, that's different. But ordinarily, with children of any age, things go more smoothly and the children have a better time when you prepare not only the food, but plan for the fun ahead of time.

With the little children especially, I believe it's best not to have games that are competitive. But if you do have things going on like a peanut or potato race, a peanut hunt, or pinning on the donkey's tail, don't have prizes. A party should be productive of nothing but happiness for all concerned, and prizes always cause some heartache to those who don't get them. And there are some children who always are poor at games and who never win.

When the party is for younger children, experience shows that they usually need a leader for their games, especially if they're the singing games or those played in a ring, like the cat and the mouse.

The older children or still bigger boys and girls don't necessarily need a grown-up leader, but they often need a grown-up to explain a game. This grown-up also should assemble ahead of time all the materials needed for the games. If it's a memory test game, then have your tray all ready with its conglomeration of articles to be looked at and then remembered. A pad of paper and pencils enough to go around must be on hand for games like "Who Am I?", the advertising slogan game, and word games. One experienced party giver to young children always has on hand a number of big, bright crayons and large sheets of paper. At a moment that threatens to become too rowdy or too exciting, she will produce these and all the young things will flop to the floor and begin to draw.

It is not our purpose to make our Souths Machiavellian mind readers; nor our Easts spider men who crouch with slavering jaws in the path of the declarer. The anonymous players in this column are human, even as you and I, and have all the human frailties.

In the above hand, an egg must be broken to make the omelet. I am forced to make the admission that North opened the bidding with one heart, because East overcalled with two clubs. Otherwise, one could scarcely condemn South for attempting to ruff his third club on the board. But I will pass rapidly over that phase of the bidding. South was practically in six spades after he heard his partner's opening. He did make the concession of bidding three spades, but after North's three no trump response he dove into six.

West opened the five clubs. The whole hand spread out before South like a panorama. He had no worries about the ace of hearts. East must have it. His only fear was that East held seven clubs, but that was a chance that must be taken.

He took the club with the king on the board and led a small heart. East went right up with the ace and returned the queen of clubs. South took with the ace. After South had played five rounds of spades and the king of hearts, this was the situation:

The last spade is led. West must retain the queen of hearts to guard the ten on the board. He therefore chucks a diamond. The heart is discarded from the board and the squeeze reverts to East. East has to keep the ten of clubs to guard the deuce in the declarer's hand, but when or if he throws a diamond, the last three tricks are taken by the ace, king and three of diamonds.

A diamond opening and continuation will destroy the line of communication between the two hands and beat the slam.

McCutcheon when the latter were in South America recently.

Mrs. Joseph P. Rend and her daughters, Miss Mary Rend and Mrs. Helen Rend Clarke, have moved to the Seneca hotel from the large apartment at 70 Scott street which the family has occupied for many years. Miss Rend is in Saugatuck, Mich., where she usually goes each summer because of her interest in the several art schools located there. She will return to Chicago later this month.

Miss Jane Morton will return to Lake Forest from her summer place at Desbarats, Ont., later this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin II., and Mr. and Mrs. H. Edward Manville Jr. are returning to Lake Forest today from a fishing trip in Minnesota.

The Harold Beacoms and the Kingman Douglasses spent the holiday week-end at Green Bay, Wis.

Walter Hellyer, Sister Returning from Orient.

Mrs. Walter Hellyer of Riverside is expecting her husband and his sister, Mrs. John Liddell of Shanghai, China, here about Sept. 15. Mr. Hellyer, who has been in the orient on business, sailed last Saturday from Yokohama on the Empress of Russia with Mrs. Liddell. They will dock in Vancouver Sept. 9 and shortly after their arrival here will go to High Lake, Wis., to visit their sister, Mrs. George Silverthorne.

Miss Ethel Johnston is visiting Miss Barbara Stanley at the summer home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Edwin Stanley, at Desbarats. She will be at home some time this week.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Benoist have returned to Winnetka from a trip to Bailey's Harbor, Wis. Their daughter, Miss Mira Lee, who has been visiting Miss Lucy Trumbull at Old Mission, Mich., is at home now, too, and so is William Jr., who was at a boys' camp in Estes Park, Colo., all summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pirie II. and the junior Rush C. Butlers have arrived at home from an eastern motor trip. The Butlers are moving from Lake Forest to Kenilworth this fall.

Mrs. William Heagney and her three small daughters, Ann, Virginia, and Elizabeth, are leaving tomorrow for their home in Havana, Cuba, after spending the summer with Mrs. Heagney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Woodland, in Kenilworth.

Arthur M. Barrett Family at Lake George.

The Arthur M. Barretts and their family, Miss Barbara and Miss Carolyn, Arthur Jr., and Saxton Barrett, are in Lake George, N. Y., enjoying two weeks of Adirondacks air and sports.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Cutter [the former Audrey McGrath] were the Labor day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Wamboldt in Lake Forest. The Wamboldts are living with her mother, Mrs. Carter H. FitzHugh.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Oates Jr., who are in the Adirondacks with the Ronald P. Boardmans at the camp of Mrs. Boardman's parents, the Theodore W. Robinsons, are leaving shortly for Maine. Mr. and Mrs. Oates will stay there several weeks, fishing and canoeing, before they return home about Sept. 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Wagenen Alling spent the week-end as the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Moore McComb at their 600 acre camp at Rhinelander, Wis. Dr. McComb is the president of Lake Forest university. The Allings' daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Brown, returned a few days ago from the Wisconsin Dells.

Sidney Y. Ball Family Back from Vacations.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Y. Ball and their daughter, Miss Adelaide Ball, have returned from vacations. Mr. and Mrs. Ball motored east, and Miss Ball, who was graduated from Wells college last year, visited a classmate in Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Olney Greenough, who were married quietly in Evanston last year before he sailed to study at Cambridge university in England, have been spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. Charles Ellsworth Barrows, in Evanston. The young couple is leaving tomorrow for Lawrenceville, N. J., where Mr. Greenough is on the staf of the Lawrenceville school.

Barry-Townes Nuptials Sept. 21.

Dr. and Mrs. George Fravel Barry of Evanston are issuing invitations today for the marriage of their eldest daughter, Mary Stewart, to John Bland Townes, son of Mrs. James Thweatt Townes, also of Evanston.

The wedding will take place Sept. 21 at 8:30 in the evening in the First Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston, and will be followed by a small reception at the Woman's Club of Evanston. Dr. Ernest F. Tittle will officiate.

Florence Dearborn Barry, a sister of the bride, will serve as maid of honor. The bride's youngest sister, Barbara Reed Barry, will be one of the bridesmaids. The three other bridesmaids will be Willmina Glenn Townes, sister of the bridegroom, Louise Fentress of Hubbard Woods and Harriet Leonard of Winnetka. Mrs. Lawrence E. Norem, the former Carolyn Case, will be matron of honor and her two little girls, Mary Carolyn and Nyla, will act as flower girls.

Gardner W. Howe of Evanston will serve Mr. Townes as best man and Dr. Scammon Barry, brother of the bride, will be head husher. The other ushers will include J. Houstoun Clinch of Winnetka, Leonard W. Larson of Evanston, Daniel Leonard of Lake Forest and George Waterhouse of Chicago and Beaufort, S. C.

Miss Helen E. Forbes, who made many friends here while she lived in Evanston from 1927 to 1932, became the bride of James Arnold Reeves of Los Angeles at a ceremony in the First Methodist church of Pasadena on Sunday. Mrs. Reeves, who was a member of the Chicago Junior league, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron E. Forbes of Buffalo, N. Y. Recently she has been living with her sister, Mrs. Stephen C. Turner of San Marino. Mrs. Reeves is a graduate of Smith college.

Plan Ticket Sale for Woman's Symphony.

Members of the Woman's Symphony orchestra board are holding an executive session this morning to complete plans for the launching of their subscription campaign for the orchestra's tenth season, which opens in the Studebaker theater on Nov. 10. Mrs. Edward Morris is the managing director and Mrs. Royden J. Keith, Mrs. William E. Vogelback, and Miss Grace Seiberling are members of the ways and means committee. Mrs. Arthur Byfield, honorary president, and Mrs. Samuel E. Moist are supervising ticket plans for the north shore. Subscription headquarters will be at the orchestra office in the Fine Arts building.

Mrs. George Hoffman is general chairman of a tea the Alumnæ Association of the Frances Shimer school is giving Friday at the Georgian hotel in Evanston for the new students. A special chairman assisting Mrs. Hoffman, who lives at 66 Warwick road, Winnetka, is Miss Janet Tippery of Evanston, who is head of the north shore group of the association. Besides the enrolled students and members of the alumnæ, faculty members will be present at the tea, making it one of the largest ever given by the association.

Puss In Corner.

BY NANCY CABOT.

When early American quilt makers created a simple design, and were unable to bestow a suitable title upon the block, they frequently chose names of popular pastimes. "Puss in Corner" was a favorite game among the youngsters, and the simplicity of the game is charmingly recalled in the quilt block illustrated today.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Taste Dictates Naturalness of Brow and Lips

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

One of the girls playing in a motion picture, featuring Gable and Beery and Jean Harlow, wears her made-up mouth in a cupid's bow, a sharp bow on the upper lip. This gives you a chance to compare the mouth makeups of yesterday with today's Whatever else may be wrong with today's lip makeup, you do not often see that cupid's bow sharply defined. It's curious, too, how makeup taste changes with the times. We become accustomed to a certain outline as part of a certain era, such as a cupid's bow, and it just looks all out of place on a modern young woman.

However, it wasn't because of its curious effect on the movie personage but as a general observation of how a mouth's makeup can become a general disturber of the facial peace that I call the subject to mind. It is that when folks become so conscious of the mouth's contour that the eyes can't be kept off of it. All of the time I was watching the particular young screen person I was wondering what it was that was out of gear with the rest of her face. It was that so obviously artificial mold of lip, I discovered.

If one's mouth is not a cupid's bow design by nature, it's better not to try to force it so. Besides, the design has gone out of style for modern usage. But it might just as well be another shape of mouth that is trying to take on a countour foreign to its original one. One, of course, is allowed pretty wide latitude with lipstick coloring these days. Nevertheless, there must be judgment used not to get the mouth on in such an outline as to make it look as if some other person's mouth were stolen.

That Joan Crawford's, large painted blurb of mouth that had a run a couple of years back, suited Joan a lot better than it did her many imitators. And, speaking of the same show, you young women might take a lesson from those terrible Harlow eyebrows. In the particular picture Jean, although wearing a heart of gold under her hard-boiled exterior, was a hard-boiled one, and without those eyebrows we doubt if she could have put the hard-boiled emphasis over one half so well.

Those plucked out eyebrows with new ones penciled in as Nature never did such wrong to any maid, surely do make a blonde look anything but her father's sweetheart-daughter. Am I right? Or am I wrong?

Remarkable Gains in British Health Shown in Report

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Remarkable figures illustrating the improvement of public health in Great Britain during the last twenty-five years are contained in the annual report of the ministry of health for 1934-'35. The report issued tonight surveys the progress during King George's reign and almost without exception records success in the struggle against disease.

The standard death rate per thousand population fell from 13.2 in 1910 to 9.3 in 1934, while mortality among infants up to the age of 1 year dropped from 105 per thousand to sixty-four.

Deaths from typhoid, measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough, and tuberculosis all substantially decreased, but maternal mortality remains the black spot, showing no drop despite the widespread development of maternity services in recent years.

The report reveals that 16,450,000 persons in England and Wales contribute to the national insurance scheme and that in the last ten years more than 1 billion 200 million dollars were paid out in benefits.

'Ymonoretued' Stops the Champion at Cryptogram Meeting

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Paul Thompson, 19, of Cleveland, today won a contest in which every word is spelled backwards.

Nothing could stop Thompson until he came to "ymonoretued," which is not a word, but "deuteronomy" backwards."

The contest was conducted by the American Cryptogram association, in joint convention here with the National Puzzlers' league.

College bound, correct and swank even to her compact, a slim, jewel-like case that combines beauty and efficiency.

Any girl who is college bound would be delighted with the flat, smooth, swish little compact, in its ultra-smart doeskin case, that is, comparatively speaking, a newcomer in town.

It's really the top. Not only is it thin and easy to carry, which is always a strong talking point when it comes to compacts, but its efficient little suede case keeps it from banging up against the rest of the trappings of one's handbag and becoming dented and scratched. One of the shades it comes in is a bright, luscious green—not glaring, but soft and lovely—but it comes in several other colors as well. As to shape, its a wavy edged square, and the handiest possible size. Whoever owns one will find herself powdering her nose on the slightest provocation, for every time she brings it forth she'll feel just too swank for words.

And it's practical, too. The little inner compartments, for rouge and loose powder, are sealed with a leakproof closure, but there is no breaking of fingernails in a disheartening attempt to get at them, for, miraculously, they lift open as if by magic. And the mirror is a joy to the heart, for it is both ample and exceptionally clear. In short, it's a definitly well made article, as well as a glamorous one.

As a matter of fact, this compact comes in several combinations. There are the single compacts, with the loose powder contained in a leakproof compartment, either under mesh or not, as you choose. And there are the double ones, with dry rouge and a somewhat smaller space for powder. The double compact is, of course, the grander, but the single ones are nothing to sniff at.

If there are new worlds for you to conquer this fall, treat yourself to one of those little details that will make you feel suave and knowing. It will do great things for the old morale! ELEANOR NANGLE.

[For information about this compact telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100, or write her in care of the Tribune.]

Efforts to Keep Love of Mate Are Justifiable

BY DORIS BLAKE.

We have been taken sharply to task for our hang-on-to-your-man propaganda.

"You always are telling women about how to capture a husband's affections. Why don't you tell them how to get rid of the mate for good and ever? Doesn't it occur to you that some husbands are not worth hanging on to; that women would be far better off if they got out and made a living for themselves? INDIGNANT."

True, some husbands are not worth hanging on to. But the land is full of courts to which the wives of such may take their troubles and be legally freed. Certainly there is no need for delicacy in this respect if the urge to be free is there. By which we mean that the practice is so common that there's small fear of social ostracism. But the women who petition us, we feel sure, want to recapture their mates affections.

Or they are women who are willing to put up with some personal discomfort for their youngsters' sake. They are not the women already determined to end it all in a divorce or separation court. And we're not the woman, either, to tell them to take their troubles to a judge just because some disillusion threatens their peace of mind. We have encountered too many of the middle aged type of woman who took permanent offense against a mate's shortcomings not to appreciate that she isn't up against a harder proposition battling the world on her own than battling the difficulties with which marriage confronted her.

Magician Is Fooled as He Shows Trick to Other Magicians

FORT ERIE, Ont., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The international piff paff poofers' convention of magicians closed tonight when delegates left for their homes in Ontario, Quebec, New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio, following a three day gathering.

Les Gilbert of New York displayed to delegates a trick where a vanishing half dollar reappears in a glass. The other magicians were quicker than Gilbert, for when he turned up the glass it contained an American quarter instead of the marked half dollar.

Small Freezing Unit Ideal for Dainty Dishes

Directions for Operation Delightfully Simple.

"Appetizers . . . How to Make Them . . . When to Serve Them," a booklet of directions for making foreign and American appetizers, with thirty recipes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

If some time during the summer you didn't meet up with the excellent small freezing unit that asks such a pleasing minimum of both ice and trouble we hope you'll consider it for your Indian summer attention. It isn't a handle turning freezer, but just a simple, small container with a center cylinder for your frozen dessert or salad and an amazing capacity for staying cold over long periods of time.

The directions for using this simple unit are beautifully uncomplicated. About 10 minutes before you expect to turn the dessert or salad mixture into the cylindrical mold you place the latter in the outer container and surround it with finely chipped ice and crushed rock salt. You'll be pleased to learn that each unit comes equipped with a canvas bag and mallet for crushing the ice. The ratio of salt to ice varies with individual recipes, but for ordinary ice creams it is 1:3.

After the container is filled with ice and salt to the top of the dessert mold and carefully tamped down with the mallet handle, the ingredients are poured into the outer section of the mold, leaving the center tube empty. If the directions for filling and tamping are followed, the temperature of the unit will be from zero to 10 degrees F. when the mold is filled. Incidentally this mold holds one quart when it is three-fourths full, and it never should be filled above this point because of the expansion of freezing liquids.

The entire unit is then set away in as cool a spot as you can find and left for 45 minutes or an hour. At the end of that time the dessert will be firmly frozen. Just as in freezing desserts in the trays of an automatic refrigerator, this unit observes the recommended principles of speedy freezing for smooth textures.

The inner mold can be removed from the container and held under running water so that the entire cylinder of ice cream may be removed in one piece, if you so desire, or you may scoop it out with a spoon.

The principle of the unit, fast freezing, seems to be accomplished through the placing of the inner empty tube right through the cylindrical dessert mold. In that way the freezing surface is enlarged and the liquid to be frozen is more readily affected by the cold, both from inside and outside the mold.

The mousses of all flavors and descriptions make excellent freezing material for these small units, and for this use the latter may well be used throughout the winter. Because the mixture is not stirred while freezing, the ice creams, sherbets, and ices which are adapted to freezing in an automatic refrigerator are likewise most successful when the unit is used.

WARN TEACHERS NOT TO BUY AN EDUCATORS BOND

Securities Body Tells of Joker in Scheme.

Washington, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The securities commission struck sharply today at what it called "an enterprise to deal in an irresponsible fashion with the small savings of school teachers."

In addition to blocking a proposed nation-wide issue of $750,000 endowment bonds by the National Educators Mutual association of Nashville, Tenn., the commission assailed the organization's officers, including certain Tennessee educators, for "demonstrated untruthfulness and misfeasance."

The nature of the case, said a commission statement, made it "not only desirable but imperative to file these findings and this opinion, so that the untruthfulness and the unfairness of the registrant's officers should be a matter of public record."

Desire All May Know.

The commission expressed the hope that "no future prospect will be left unaware of the danger of entrusting the small savings derived from school teaching in the hands of men who upon this record and by their admissions have demonstrated untruthfulness and misfeasance in positions of trust and confidence."

Lashing out at the contracts attached to "this so-called bond," the commission said "the Supreme court has upheld the action of a state securities commission in debarring as fraudulent a contract terms of which were less scandalous."

The commission found that although the bonds, sold for $750 in five annual instalments, were supposed to be redeemable in 10 years for $1,000, a parenthetical statement in "much smaller type" specified payment was to consist of "$750 cash and $250 stock."

Stock Worth 10 Cents.

This stock, described as having a "stated value of $50 a share," was issued to organizers of the association for 10 cents a share, the commission said, adding that the association has now stipulated that the stated value of these shares is 10 cents. Instead of getting stock valued at $250, the commission said, the bondholder would get five shares which cost promoters 50 cents."

Evidence showed, said the commission, that Charles G. Pfab of Nashville, executive vice president and director, "controls the registrant."

Examination of the scheme indicates, the commission continued, "that Mr. Pfab and his associates are to obtain the use of investors' money for 10 years, at the end of which time they agree to repay the principal."

WOMAN, 67, DIES IN 3 STORY FALL AT FRIEND'S HOME

Mrs. Sophie Dyken, 67 years old, jumped or fell to her death last night from the third story room she was occupying temporarily in a rooming house at 1915 North Park avenue, which is operated by her friend, Miss Fannie Kokins. Police were told by Mrs. Dyken's son-in-law, William E. Wallace, a pharmacist, that she had been morose since the death of her husband, Edward, three months ago and had worried over her failure to collect a reported estate in Germany valued at $20,000. She had been living with Wallace and her daughter in their home at 3265 North Clark street until two days ago.

On Saturday Mrs. Dyken went to visit Miss Kosina, intending to remain for several days. They retired early last night and after Miss Kosina had been in bed for more than an hour she heard a commotion in her friend's room. She hurried there. Mrs. Dyken's bed was empty and the window was open.

Judge Denis J. Normoyle of the Circuit court was inaugurated yesterday as chief justice of the Criminal court. The new chief justice announced that he would follow the policies of his predecessor, Judge Denis E. Sullivan, which are credited with putting the Criminal court on an up to date basis for the first time in at least fifty years. Judge Sullivan was recently elevated to the Illinois Appellate court.

The Criminal court will open its fall term today with only 237 indictments pending, the lowest number at such a time within the memory of veterans of the court.

Only two important cases are on the docket for disposition. The case of Robert M. Sweitzer, ousted county treasurer, who is charged with failure to account for public funds which disappeared while he was county clerk, is scheduled to come up this morning before Judge Normoyle. The other case is the mutilation murder of Dr. Walter J. Bauer in which Mandeville Zenge is the defendant.

Attorney I. Harvey Levinson, representing Sweitzer, said he expects that case will be assigned to a trial judge this morning.

The Zenge case is on the court call for Sept. 9, but is not expected to go to trial until the end of the month.

The inauguration of Chief Justice Normoyle was conducted by Judge Sullivan. The courtroom was banked with flowers. Among the many spectators and speechmakers were the judges who are to sit in the Criminal court for the coming year. They are Joseph Burke, John C. Lewe, Joseph B. David, and Cornelius J. Harrington. Judge Donald McKinlay will remain in the Criminal court temporarily until a successor to Judge Harry A. Lewis, who died yesterday, has been named.

DIES ON VISIT TO CITY.

John Earl Nobel, 52 years old, of Jefferson, Wis., died yesterday of heart disease in the home of James Maloney, 4840 Arthington street, where he had been visiting.

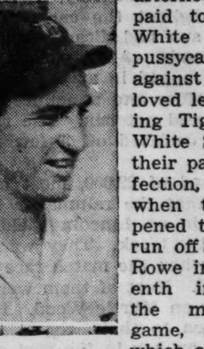
WHITE SOX LOSE TWO TO TIGERS, 6 TO 1 AND 5 TO 0

Rowe, Auker Stop Chicagoans.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Sept 2.—Some 58,000 baseball bugs—31,000 this morning and 27,000 this afternoon—today paid to see the White Sox play pussycat rôles against their beloved league leading Tigers. The White Sox acted their parts to perfection, except when they happened to make a run off Schoolboy Rowe in the seventh inning of the morning game, a breach which apparently caused deep resentment. The Tigers won the preluncheon contest, 6 to 1, and came back in the afternoon to help Elden Auker shellack the meek visitors, 5 to 0.



SCHOOLBOY ROWE.

The White Sox did not dog it in their rôles as pussycats. They simply were outclassed at every turn and in every department. Rowe held them to five hits in the morning game and Auker was a bit more lenient in the afternoon encounter, allowing seven.

Homers Aren't Needed.

It wasn't necessary to their purposes, but the Tigers made a homer in each game. Rowe made his No. 3 with one on in the fourth inning of the first game and Pete Fox slapped out No. 14 with two on in the seventh, after Babe Phelps had replaced Sam Jones.

The Sox have lost six games here in a little more than a month and now are trailing the Tigers in the season series, 8 games to 10. It is the observation of one who saw the six games, but who didn't see the first 12, that the Tigers must have worn handcuffs when they permitted the Sox to beat them eight out of a dozen.

MORNING GAME

The run which the Tigers scored in the first inning of the morning game made the 31,000 customers very happy, though it was produced without the aid of a hit. White opened for the Detroiters with a bouncer to Piet and though Tony came in fast for a nice grab of the ball, he hurried the toss to Bonura and the ball went to the field boxes, White reaching second. Jojo went to third on Cochrane's fly to Conlan and scored when Gehringer also flied to Conlan.

White made an earned run in the third inning. He led off with a double into the overflow crowd in left center, the first hit off Whitehead, went to third on Cochrane's sacrifice and trotted home on Gehringer's double.

Two were out in the fourth when Rowe took his heroic part in the Tiger offensive. After Fox had fanned and Owen had popped to Hayes, Rogell got the second of his three passes, then Schoolboy socked his No. 3 homer of the year into the auto park across the fence from the left field wall.

Error Proves Costly.

Detroit's run in the fifth inning was the result of another two base error, this one by Bonura, who let Gehringer's grounder seep through him. Gehringer scored on a single by Goslin after two were out.

WAKE MAIL BOX.

DEAR Wake: The All-Star vs. Chicago Bears football game was a great spectacle. We saw a great crowd, the greatest pro players, the greatest college players, and the greatest rain, all at a reasonable price.

Yet there was something still to be desired. That was TOUCHDOWNS. For two years now we have watched pros and All-Stars and in two full games there has not been a single touchdown. Pros score freely when they play one another. Colleges score, perhaps less freely, when they play one another. But when pros and All-Stars meet, defense is better than offense, or else the rival coaches lay so much stress on victory they are ultra-conservative and do not take the chances whose potentialities yield thrills to the public.

I recognize the pros, in a measure, are handicapped in scoring by inability to use their short forward pass not allowed by collegiate rules. Likewise I recognize the unfairness of asking the college boys, already under handicap of not having played together before, to compete under unfamiliar rules. At the same time I've arrived at the stage I don't care who is handicapped just so we see some scoring. I want touchdowns.

Johnny Public.

Each year I look in vain for some suggestion from the football rules committee to encourage drop kicking. The drop kick is one of the most spectacular gridiron plays. Those of us who attended college in the days of O'Dea and Herschberger know the wild enthusiasm aroused by those masters of the art, continued by Walter Eckersall a decade later. Now the less difficult place kick holds sway.

To encourage drop kicking I suggest a rule awarding a point for a successful drop kick from 10 yards out, 2 points for 15 yards, 3 points for 20 yards, 4 points for 25 yards, 5 points for 30 yards, 6 points for 35 yards, 7 points for distances above 35 yards.

110 REPORT FOR ARMY'S OPENING FOOTBALL DRILL

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The Army opened football practice today, 110 candidates working out in a steady rain that was reminiscent of last season's closing game with Navy.

Head Coach Gar Davidson has 12 letter men available, but although his line prospects are good he has the problem of finding backs to replace Jack Buckler and Joe Stancook. Craig and Kopcsak from last year's plebes and Nazzaro and Meyer from the reserves are expected to put on a battle for the positions.

HORNSBY SENDS COFFMAN HOME AFTER FIGHT

Manager Rogers Hornsby told the Post-Dispatch the hurler was out of condition and that he asked him to leave the Browns' train at Edwardsville, Ill., last night and return home. Hornsby added Coffman became abusive and a fight resulted.

Coffman, at his home here, denied he was not in condition but declined further information. Officials of the Browns were unavailable tonight for comment.

GOLDEN ROCK II. WINS MARQUETTE STAKE IN MUD

BY FRENCH LANE.

The Central American horse Golden Rock II., owned by C. W. Muller, vice president of the republic of Panama, came from behind in a sensational finish to win the Marquette handicap as the racing season ended at Lincoln Fields yesterday.

He scored his victory over a sloppy track. When his mighty drive brought him home by a length and a half, he paid off at $74.80 to win, $31.00 to place, and $14.60 to show.

His triumph was the most surprising upset of a season of upsets at Lincoln Fields. The 5 year old son of Craganour—Auristella had scored a surprise victory less than a week ago against some of the best handicap horses at Lincoln Fields.

Favorite Out of Money.

Yet few in the big holiday crowd gave him the slightest chance in the $5,000 mile and an eighth handicap, because he never had demonstrated an ability to run in the mud. The betting support went to Prince Torch, which finished out of the money; to Top Dog, which finished second after making the pace until the field was within the shadow of the finish line, and to Banish Fear, which, after a rough trip and a badly judged ride by Jocky D. Brammer, landed in third place.

Golden Rock II. had started from the extreme outside post position and was outrun to the clubhouse turn. It took him that long to get into stride. Once into stride, he began to fly past one horse after another. When the field headed into the long run down the backstretch, he had worked his way into third place. Top Dog was well out in front and apparently was running in the sort of going he fancies most. Prince Torch, closer than usual was running in second place, and closely lapped on the Central American horse was Banish Fear.

There He Goes!

The field wheeled into the lower bend in that order and at that stage Jocky Roderiguez, a Cuban lad, began to drive Golden Rock II. on toward the leaders. He still was racing on the extreme outside.

By the time they reached the head of the stretch Golden Rock II. had looked Prince Torch in the eye, conquered him and had moved into second place. Only Top Dog was between him and victory and Top Dog was floundering slightly, following the fast early pace he had set.

Top Dog still was in front a sixteenth of a mile out, but in the final strides the aged campaigner from Panama wore him down and was drawing away at the finish. Banish Fear, after racing in close quarters on the inside all the way, was an easy third. Prince Torch was fourth, quitting for the first time this season.

Top Dog paid $10.60 to place and

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE reformation campaign which marked the boom days of college football in the late twenties apparently failed to make much of an impression. . . . Instead of fewer games and shorter jumps, as recommended by college athletic councils, there will be fully as many intersectional contests this season. . . . Teams representing two western universities, Southern California and Utah, will journey to Honolulu to play the University of Hawaii. . . . St. Mary's again will travel across the continent to play Fordham in New York. . . . Illinois goes to Los Angeles to meet Southern California and the Trojans later in the season come east to engage Notre Dame. . . . Pittsburgh will tackle Southern California on the latter's grounds Dec. 14. . . . Michigan goes to New York to encounter Columbia and the following week Pennsylvania comes to Ann Arbor. . . . University of Detroit will play Texas Tech at Lubbock and North Dakota, has an eastern engagement with George Washington. . . . Colgate comes west to meet Iowa, and Purdue, unable to fill its program with conference opponents, will play Fordham in New York. . . . Northwestern is negotiating for a game with Pittsburgh, to be played probably in 1936, and Chicago has tried to line up Princeton. . . . Michigan State has a home and home series with Loyola of Los Angeles. . . . In short, nearly all of the larger schools like at least one intersectional game on their schedules. . . .

A. Brutschini, 388 Provident avenue, Winnetka, Ill., is the first to apply for the position of water boy at the 1936 All-Star football game. . . . Danno O'Mahoney, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, has a brother named Florence. . . . Jack Robinson, who led the nation-wide poll for center with the All-Americans, is ineligible at Notre Dame this fall because he played five minutes of a B game in 1931. . . . He dropped out of school in 1933 after an operation on his eye. . . . The New York Giants think they have found out how to stop Arky Vaughan, Pirate slugger. . . . They held him to one hit recently by pitching over the outside corner. . . .

Baseball attendance in Portland, Ore., has increased about 100 per cent over last year, a tribute to the hustling of Bill Cissell, new manager. . . . Lou Little of Columbia always starts his coaching school with the remark: "Try to stick me with a question, boys. I want to learn something as well as you." . . . The nickname of Roy Parmelee, Giant pitcher, is Tarzan. . . . The football game between Northwestern and De Paul on Sept. 28 is the first between the two schools since 1921, when the Wildcats won, 34 to 0. . . . Elmer McDevitt was the Northwestern coach at the time. . . . Up to the start of the present season Manager Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox had played in 1,980 ball games, exclusive of world series and exhibitions. . . . For the first time in years there will be 19 football teams in the Little Nineteen conference this fall. . . .

Guy Chang, China's No. 1 Davis cup player, will enter Tulane university this semester. . . . Jock Sutherland of Pittsburgh rates Cotton Warburton, Benny Friedman, and Frank Carideo the three leading quarter backs of all time. . . . The coaches of the 1935 All-Star team apparently have other opinions, because they kept Warburton on the bench throughout the game against the Bears. . . . The Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league has 14 players who stand over 6 feet. . . . This department recently reported that Lew Sarett of Deerfield-Shields High school, who will enter Northwestern this fall, was a baseball star. . . . There seems to have been some mistake. . . . He was an honor student and valedictorian. . . .

CARDS DEFEAT PIRATES TWICE; INCREASE LEAD

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The pitching Deans, Jerome and Paul, were credited with victories today as the league leading St. Louis Cardinals won a double-header from Pittsburgh, 4 to 3 and 4 to 1.

The double victory today enabled the Cardinals to increase their National league lead to two full games over the idle Giants. The third place Chicago Cubs now trail St. Louis by two and one-half games while the fourth place Pirates, in losing, dropped eight games behind the leaders.

To win the first contest, the Cards came from behind in the ninth to tie the score and won in the sixteenth when Medwick doubled and came home on Jim Collins' single. Paul Dean entered the game in the tenth after Hallahan had retired for a pinch hitter. The victory was Dean's 16th of the season and his second in three days.

Jerome [Dizzy] Dean was in no difficulty until the fifth inning of the second game when the Pirates bunched two singles and a double for one run. It was the elder Dean's 23d victory this year. The game was called after the fifth because of darkness.

WARNEKE GAINS NO. 16; ERRORS ARE JINX TO LEE

Bruins Are $2\frac{1}{2}$ Games Back of Cards.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs, led by Lonnie Warneke, put on a brilliant pennantward march yesterday in the first half of their Labor day program with the Cincinnati Reds. They whipped the visiting seventh placers, 3 to 1, thereby moving to a couple of points from second place and a game away from the leading Cardinals. But before the afternoon's chores were completed the Cubs were forced to march right back to where they'd started. They retreated under pressure of a 4 to 2 defeat.

LON WARNEKE.

The day's even break did the Cubs no harm in their efforts to overtake the second place New York Giants, who were rained out and thus remain half a game ahead of the Chicagoans, but the leading St. Louis Cardinals, by whipping Pittsburgh twice, increased their lead over the Cubs to 2½ games.

With the Cubs performing at their best, the first tussle was run off almost mechanically before 17,500 folks who didn't mind the weather. But thereafter the weather or the jitters took hold of the Grimm gang. They suddenly started blowing away chances behind Bill Lee and the Reds proved equal to the occasion. At the end of the fourth they were in possession of three runs which not only settled everything, but knocked out Lee for his sixth defeat of the year. He has won 15.

Great Catch by Herman.

The conduct of the Cubs behind Lee in the second game was discouraging enough, but there were added complications from none other than the illustrious Babe Herman. The Babe, who isn't supposed to show off as a fielder, put on a catch of the seemingly impossible variety, thereby smashing a rally and delaying the moment when the Cubs could score off Gene Schott, who recently shut them out. They finally did earn a run off him in the eighth. Then in the ninth the Reds decided to give back what the Cubs had given, but Schott, after two errors had filled the bases with one out, escaped with only one run across.

While conducting the first argument, in which his season's sixteenth victory was involved, thus lifting himself three above the .500 mark, Warneke encountered few difficulties. Only one Red reached second base during the first six innings, and that was Babe Herman, who singled three times to let his public know he was still in there. In the three remaining innings only one of the visiting athletes traveled beyond first base, and that was the fellow who went all the way to rob Warneke of the added pleasure of a shutout.

FIRST GAME

Billy Herman's 48th double of the season appeared in the first inning of the first game and was the potent item in registering a one run advantage for Warneke. Billy poked an extra base drive to left with one out and scored on Stainback's single to right. Stainback went to second on the throw in, but Hartnett fouled

RAIN OR SHINE, SPORTS PARADE MARCHES ON

Safe at home! Billy Herman slides in with Cubs' first run in first game of the Cincinnati double-header at Wrigley field yesterday. Catcher Lombardi is attempting to field the ball. The umpire is Quigley.

The crowds didn't mind the rough weather at Lincoln Fields, but they were disappointed when the match race between Myrtlewood and Clang was called off. Long prices placated a few lucky players, however.

PERRY DEFEATS PARKER EASILY IN U. S. TENNIS

Reaches Quarter-Final Round in Straight Sets.

It was a bad day for tennis. There was a steady drizzle and the atmosphere was dank and chill. Perry was enjoying the cozy warmth of a pine-log fire in a suburban home of friends. Officials telephoned him his match was to be played as scheduled. He rebelled against the order, but capitulated.

When he marched onto the court his customary smile was missing. Playing against his will didn't appeal to him. To make matters worse, Parker broke through in the third game to take a 2 to 1 lead. That roused him and, although he also lost the seventh game on service, Perry made up his mind to end the contest as quickly as possible. The Briton, twice winner of the American title, has a peculiar way of hurrying up against ...

Perry Bears Down.

For the first eight games Parker appeared to have a chance of at least winning a set from Perry. He stayed with him on baseline exchanges and brought off some smartly executed volleys from forecourt. But that was as far as he went. Thereafter Perry flashed his championship form. He aimed everything at his rival's weak forehand, paving his way to the net for volley placements, and won, 6-4, 6-2, 6-0.

After Parker got his first sample of Perry's truly stinging shots he resorted to softball tactics. It wasn't long before he discovered Perry could play that kind of a game, too. They'd pat the ball back and forth several times and then Perry would go in. The onrushing Briton either frightened Parker so that he lifted the ball into the net or set up easy kills for the champion.

As soon as the first set was won there was an obvious change in Perry's attitude. His booming delivery was difficult for Parker to handle. He executed some of the most spectacular angled backhand volleys ever witnessed at Forest Hills. It was the spectacle tennis fans had been waiting for, and 2,000 hardy spectators, bundled in raincoats and sitting under umbrellas, shouted their joy.

Perry Meets Shields.

This victory advanced Perry to a quarter-final match with Frank X. Shields. Shields made his way to the round of eight with a 6-1, 6-4, 6-0 victory over Frank J. Bowden of New York. Shields at no stage of the encounter was forced to extend himself. Perry and Shields will meet Wednesday.

Adverse weather brought the postponement of three third round matches in the women's division and permitted only five matches in the men's championship. The called off women's matches, which will be played tomorrow, pair Champion Helen Jacobs against Evelyn Dearman of England, Mrs. John Van Ryn of Philadelphia against Josephine McLennon of Arlington, Va., and Catherine Wolf of Elkhart, Ind., against Mrs. Phyllis Mudford King of England.

The unofficial championship of Spain was won by the towering and swarthy Enrique Maier, who beat his compatriot and veteran Davis cup player, Manuel Alonso, 6-1, 6-2, 8-6, in a fourth round match. It was Maier's first appearance in the stadium and he made a fine impression, particularly with his delivery and backhand.

RACING SCENE SHIFTS TODAY TO HAWTHORNE

Open 29 Day Meeting with Stake Event.

The thoroughbreds move to Chicago's doorstep this afternoon with the opening of a 29 day meeting at historic Hawthorne, after a four month campaign at the suburban race courses.

Before the Hawthorne meeting ends with the renewal of the $15,000 added Hawthorne Gold cup, at a mile and a quarter—which will see the great Discovery's last Chicago appearance this season—Hawthorne officials expect to have played hosts to more race goers than the old track has seen in many seasons. Attendance at other tracks here this season indicates as much.

Feature of the opening day card will be the Washington Boulevard handicap at six furlongs, which has attracted the following smart field:

Horse.	Wt.	Jocky.	Prob. Odds.
†West Main	113	No boy	8-5
Isaiah	107	H. Tinker	5-1
†Be Shy	109	No boy	8-5
Blessed Event	105	No boy	8-1
Advantage	101	No boy	8-1
Transmutable	106	A. Fermin	8-1
Cloud d'Or	109	J. King	3-1

†C. A. Peck entry.

Many improvements have been made under the direction of President Albert Sabath and General Manager C. W. Hay. The plant has been redecorated in green and white, the infield has been carefully landscaped, and the racing strip has been worked over until it is in the best condition of its history.

Records Are Periled.

A fast track is regarded as of more than passing importance this season, because with most of the fleetest horses in America scheduled to race over it at one time or another, it is more than likely some of the track records which have stood for many seasons will fall. The first mark to be periled will be that for six furlongs—set by Gibbons at 1:10 3-5 in 1925. The field which will go to the post on Saturday for the first running of the $5,000 added Hawthorne sprint handicap at that distance will include two world record holders, Clang and Myrtle Wood.

Elizabeth Wins Triangular Yacht Race of 130 Miles

The 130 mile triangular race over Lake Michigan ended last night with Lynn Williams' schooner, Elizabeth, taking major honors. A Chicago Yacht club yacht, Elizabeth, won all three legs in its class, from Chicago to Michigan City on Saturday, from Michigan City to St. Joseph on Sunday, and from St. Joseph back to Chicago yesterday.

Light northeast breezes started the fleet yesterday morning from St. Joseph, 60 statute miles away. By the time the windjammers had sailed half the distance a strong east wind arose and pushed them towards the finish line at the Van Buren street gap. John T. Snite's big schooner Bagheera, was first to finish, in record time. Elizabeth won the race on corrected time.

Summaries:

Falcon Wins Trophy.

Clarence Clark's Falcon, sailed by Payson Mayhew, captured its second race in succession yesterday to win the final Eagle class race for the E. Ross Gamble trophy. The Chicago Yacht club's 12 nautical mile triangular course was sailed in fresh east to southeast winds, and over a rough, whitecapped lake.

Two out of the three races was enough to give the regatta and the Gamble trophy to Falcon. Skipper Mayhew's crew included his fiancée, Gladys Ramsay.

Fifteen and a half points went to the winning yacht. Second place was taken in yesterday's race, and in the series, by Leeds Mitchell Jr.'s Quienna, with 13 points. Summaries:

Falcon, Clarence Clark	2:22:35	15¼
Quienna, Leeds Mitchell Jr.	2:23:03	13
Aquila, Robinson Brothers	2:23:09	9½
Altair, George Glossbrenner	2:26:42	7
Orn, Dr. George Davis	2:28:46	11¼

Cheney Yacht Wins.

A Saugatuck, Mich., model yachtsman, E. L. Cheney, won the Commodore Sheldon Clark trophy for the second consecutive year in the Chicago Model Yacht club's open regatta, the finals of which were sailed yesterday on the pool at 51st street and the lake. Skipper Cheney is president of the Model Yacht Racing Association of America.

The class A model yacht Mizpah was sailed by Skipper Cheney during the two-day meet. He wound up yesterday's finals with a total of 74 points. Second was L. E. Troeger's Maen, of the Chicago Model Y. C., with 73 points. George Baron, former national champion, was third with 70.

Other Golf Scores

Robert Dougherty won low gross for 36 holes with 73—74—147. Clarence Bergstrom finished with the best net card for the day, a 160—16—144. Morning winners were Joe O'Hanley, 77, and Dr. A. Lexa, 81—11—70. In the afternoon A. F. Rice, 81, and J. Kish, 81—8—73, were leaders.

TAM O' SHANTER.

TWIN ORCHARDS.

M. L. Bein was 4 up on Ed Steinberg at the end of 18 holes in their 36 hole match for the club championship. The remaining 18 holes will be played during the week. Harry Sherman won the third flight title by defeating Max Goldman, 1 up on the 20th hole. Four class handicap champions were determined over a 36 hole route: Class A, Dr. S. Remington, 159—20—139; class B, Joe Lipshultz, 168—30—138; class C, Irwin Clorsene, 174—40—134; class D, L. S. Jacobson, 197—60—137.

WESTWARD HO.

Fred Wagner won low gross for 27 holes with 118. Jule Burny won low net for 27 holes with 142—33—109. B. T. Conforti won low gross for 18 holes with 78 and W. H. Van Riter won low net with 81—9—72.

WESTMORELAND.

R. S. Drew won the 54 hole low net event with 242—15—227. The 18 hole low gross event, morning round, went to W. A. Maxwell, who posted a 79. R. L. Lasater won the afternoon round with the same score. A. H. Reiber led classes A and B in the morning low net tourney, registering 84—11—73. C. T. Ripley won the afternoon round with 81—9—72. H. M. Breneisa won the least number of putts contest, morning round, with 28, while C. W. Kirtly was the afternoon victor with 26. The victorious low net foursome was composed of H. M. Breneisa, W. T. Bell, T. M. Conway, and J. M. Eckert, whose aggregate score was 371—61—310. A. J. Johnston won the match play against par event by finishing all even.

WINDSOR.

Winners in the 36 hole low net events were: Class A, A. C. Oughton, 157—12—145; R. J. Lones, 165—10—155; class B, Mike Hunt, 165—17—148; O. T. Birkeness, 170—17—153; class C, C. C. Plummer, 173—19—154; A. W. Bauer, 173—19—154. The mixed event was won by Mrs. A. C. Oughton and J. T. Holmes, with a combined score of 105—26—79.

GOLDEN ROCK II. WINS MARQUETTE STAKE IN MUD

$6.80 to show. The show price on Banish Fear was $4.60. The unexpected victory scored by Golden Rock II. was worth $4,245 to the vice president of Panama.

Golden Rock II. was bred in the Argentine and was shipped to the United States from Panama last winter. He campaigned in Florida first, then moved to the north. At times he has run in claiming races. He ran the mile and a furlong in 1:53 2-5 and in this indicated he could hold his own with the best horses in the country.

It Was Too Muddy.

Early in the day it became evident that Myrtle Wood and Clang would not stage their match race. Overnight rains had thoroughly soaked the track. Conditions of the race provided that Brownell Combs, owner of Myrtle Wood, could call it off should a muddy track prevail.

The track was sloppy. A drizzle fell throughout the early afternoon and the sun had disappeared behind thick clouds. At 3 o'clock Owner Combs dropped in at the racing secretary's office and announced Myrtle Wood would not run. The race was officially declared off a few minutes later.

A crowd of 22,000, most of them hopeful that the rainmaker had not dropped in on Lincoln Fields, gathered at the track. They were disappointed when the match race was declared off. Most of them were ready to wager on Myrtle Wood. It would have been to their regret to have wagered on her in the sort of going that prevailed for she never has been able to run at her best on anything but a fast track. Clang is a good mudder.

The program had no sooner ended than horses, horsemen and all those connected with them started the trek to Hawthorne, where an autumn season of twenty-nine days opens this afternoon.

RED ROGUE [R.Deprema]	115	2	1	7^{1}	8	8	8	J.Emery	10.20-1

Time, :23 3-5, :48 2-5, 1:01 3-5, 1:08 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Hose, $4.40 straight, $3.40 place, $2.80 show; Holl Image, $4.20 place, $3.80 show; Firing Squad, $4.00 show. Winner trained by R. Goose. Went to post at 2:15½; off at once. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same.

HOSE, having fine speed for the going from the start, but well in hand the first three and one-half furlongs, during which he was several times straightened up so as not to interfere with PIPE'S PAL, took a long lead with a rush approaching final eighth, then weakened, but lasted. HOLL IMAGE, away slowly and raced wide, came with a rush the final quarter and was rapidly wearing down the winner. FIRING SQUAD, green and slow to respond to light pressure, bore over badly while making up much ground in stretch.

SECOND RACE—Seven furlongs, out of chute. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 2:51½. At post 1 minute. Start good from Bahr gate. Won easily; place driving.

FABULOUS, much the best, took an easy lead approaching the turn, increased his advantage without need of strong urging in stretch and had something left. IRISH WAKE, a factor from the start, was under strong riding the final five-sixteenths and held on gamely. GOOD AIM, on inside throughout and showing speed from the start, weakened under strong riding in stretch, but outstayed DONNIE W.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25. [Daily double, 2d and 3d races, paid $132.]

Winner trained by J. W. Smith. Went to post at 3:23. At post 3½ minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won easily; place driving.

QUIET PLEASE, suited by the going and sent into command under strong urging, was under steadying restraint on the turn and came away through the stretch where he was repeatedly shaken up. OUT PUT showed speed from the start and held on with good courage. SHORT SKIRT, away slowly, improved her position steadily and finished strongest of all.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs, out of chute. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Time, :24 1-5, :48 3-5, 1:15 3-5, 1:29 2-5. Weather cloudy. Two dollar mutuels paid: Kapena, $5.20 straight, $3.40 place, $2.40 show; Technocracy, $6.20 place, $3.60 show; Fritter Circle, $2.60 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 3:55½; off at once. Start good from Bahr gate. Won easily; place driving.

KAPENA, raced wide throughout and in close quarters on far turn, began to move up when clear and, after wearing down the leaders, drew out, but had little left. TECHNOCRACY forced the pace under steadying restraint, was under strong pressure the final quarter and, holding on well, withstood FRITTER CIRCLE'S rush. Latter, taken back repeatedly under a weak ride, came to outside in stretch and finished with a rush.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Time, :24 1-5, :48 3-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:40 3-5, 1:47 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Repaid, $6.60 straight, $4.40 place, $3.40 show; Browneyed Pat, $6.00 place, $4.40 show; Infinitate, $4.80 show. Winner trained by B. A. Jones. Went to post at 4:26½. At post 3½ minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won easily; place driving.

REPAID, quickest to begin, but taken back to follow the pace after a quarter, came around BROWNEYED PAT gradually in stretch and won with something in reserve. BROWNEYED PAT took an easy lead after reaching back stretch, saved ground the final half mile and, though not good enough, held on courageously to last sixteenth, where she faltered badly. INFINITATE came to outside in stretch and finished well in an even effort.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse $5,000, added. Net value to winner, $4,245; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $250.

Time, :24 2-5, :48 2-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:40, 1:53 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Golden Rock II., $74.80 straight, $31.00 place, $14.60 show; Top Dog, $10.60 place, $6.80 show; Banish Fear, $4.60 show. Winner trained by C. M. Ferretti. Went to post at 5:01½. At post 1 minute. Start good. Won driving; place same.

GOLDEN ROCK II., taken under steadying restraint after the opening quarter, during which he was forced wide, swerved out entering stretch, where his rider placed him to severe pressure and, coming around TOP DOG fast in final eighth, won drawing out. TOP DOG took command with a rush, was aided by clever rating and held on well, but could not hold the winner. BANISH FEAR saved much ground and weakened after moving up in stretch, but outstayed PRINCE TORCH.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Time, :24 3-5, :49, 1:15 1-5, 1:42 1-5, 1:49 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Good Politan, $3.40 straight, $3.60 place, $2.60 show; Dark Mist, $3.60 place, $2.80 show; Chance Dame, $3.20 show. Winner trained by C. Howard. Went to post at 5:34; off at once. Start good. Won easily; place driving.

GOOD POLITAN, under strong restraint for three-quarters, took command quickly and without need of strong urging and again taken in hand the last sixteenth, won with something in reserve. DARK MIST, slow to begin and forced wide on first turn, raced to the lead with a rush, but readily gave way to winner and was under strong pressure the final three-sixteenths. CHANCE DAME, unable to keep up after beginning well, came again under strong riding in stretch.

Time, :25 2-5, :50, 1:16 1-5, 1:42 2-5, 1:55 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Shasta Broom, $14.20 straight, $7.20 place, $3.60 show; Foxland Hall, $11.40 place, $7.40 show; Blast, $3.20 show. Winner trained by H. C. Russell. Went to post at 6:05. At post 1½ minutes. Start good. Won driving; place same.

SHASTA BROOM, on inside early and taken back to go outside after reaching final half mile, weakened after wearing down FOXLAND HALL, but lasted. Latter well rated and saving ground the final three-eighths, failed to withstand winner after reaching stretch, but fought it out stubbornly. BLAST, slow to get going, raced between horses when improving his position, came to extreme outside for the drive and closed with determination.

INDIANS SPLIT DOUBLE-HEADER WITH BROWNS

Lose First Game, 4 to 1; Then Win, 7-2.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The Indians split a double-header with the St. Louis Browns today, losing the first 4 to 1 when Mel Harder lapsed momentarily in the third inning and winning the second, 7 to 2. Harder came back strongly after his slump in the first game, which allowed the Browns all their runs. He then retired 25 in a row.

The Indians batted clear around in the third of the second game, when Thomas was driven from the mound, yielding to Van Atta. Four runs in this inning gave Cleveland its winning margin. Score:

SENATORS, RED SOX DIVIDE.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox and Washington Senators labored into extra innings today before a holiday double-header crowd of 25,000, the Red Sox taking the first game, 9 to 8, in eleven innings and the Senators the second, 3 to 2, in thirteen innings.

Pitcher Jack Wilson's home run into the center field bleachers in the eleventh inning accounted for the winning run in the first game.

Wes Ferrell was knocked from the mound in the third inning of the opener after spotting the visitors seven runs. Manager Joe Cronin's homer in the eighth inning with bases full made it 8 to 7 for the Senators. The game was tied up at 8-all when Johnson, who reached first on an error and stole second, was driven home by Dahlgren's single. Then Wilson, who relieved Ferrell, won his own game.

The winning run in the second game came off Rhodes who had relieved Walberg in the fifth inning. Myer opened the inning with a single. Powers walked after two were out and Kress scored Myer with a single. Score:

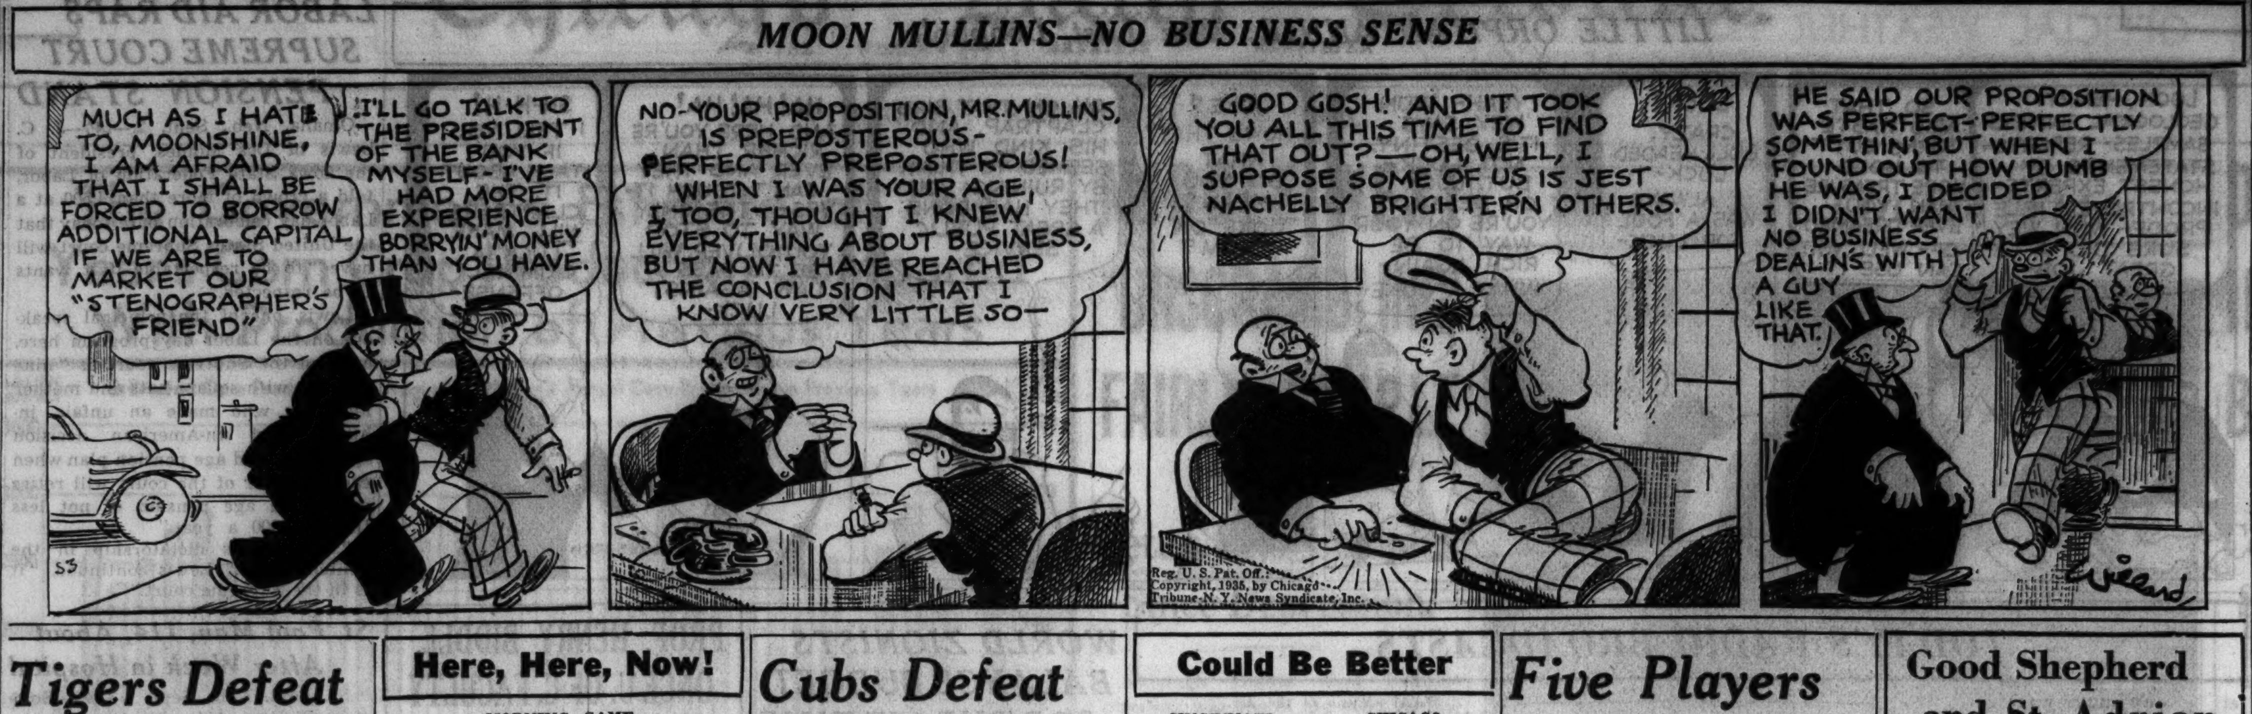
MOON MULLINS—NO BUSINESS SENSE



Tigers Defeat Sox, 6-1, 5-0, in Twin Bill

last in which Whitehead worked. A single by Rogell, a pass to White and a single by Cochrane did the business.

It was in the seventh that the Sox ended Rowe's string of scoreless innings at 24. Bonura doubled into the crowd in left center, for the third Chicago hit. He went to third while Dykes was grounding out to Gehringer and scored when Washington banged a single off Rowe's shins.

AFTERNOON GAME

The Tigers scored in their half of the third on a surprise move which caught Jones and his infield associates back a bit on their heels. With one out Cochrane beat out a single to deep short and stopped at second on Gehringer's single to left. The runners advanced while Jones was throwing out Greenberg, then Goslin was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Here's where the surprise came in. Fox bunted and would have been an easy out if Sad Sam had anticipated the maneuver. Sam and his associates lurched in amazement, but Sam's lurch was the only one that counted. He lurched so hard he slipped. Fox's effort went for a single, scoring Cochrane.

Zeke Gets Confused.

Bonura may be able to steal home with the winning run against the Yankees, but it was all he could do to get from second to third on an outfield single and an error by Goslin in the fifth inning. Zeke opened the fifth with the second Chicago hit, a single to center, and went to second when Dykes, swinging, went out, Auker to Greenberg. Washington singled to left, but though the lick plainly was a hit, Zeke billowed around between third and second. Then, when he saw Goslin kick the ball around, he made a great dash and reached third. Washington, who was awake on the play, reached second on the error. Sewell whiffed and Gehringer tossed out Jones.

Some fine Sox strategy went haywire in the Tiger sixth. Goslin opened with a single to center and moved up on Fox's sacrifice, a play still accepted as sound by the league leaders. Owen fouled to Sewell, then Rogell was given an intentional pass that Jones might get at Mr. Auker, a man of limited accomplishments with the bat. Auker socked a single to right, Goslin scoring and Rogell reaching third. Appling made a great stop and backhand toss to Hayes to force Auker on White's grounder.

Phelps, who was thought to have recovered his strength after his early exhaustion in the game in Chicago yesterday, was the Sox pitcher at the start of the Tiger seventh. Cochrane singled through Bonura and moved up on Gehringer's sacrifice. Greenberg walked, but Goslin popped to Hayes. Fox then lined a homer over the left field wall, his No. 14, scoring behind Cochrane and Greenberg. Phelps tossed out Owen.

HELEN STEPHENS SETS TWO WORLD TRACK RECORDS

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Helen Stephens, Fulton, Mo., was credited with bettering two world records at the annual Labor day track and field meet of the Canadian National exhibition today.

She was clocked in 23.2 seconds for the 220 yard dash, lowering her own mark of 23.9 made Saturday. The listed record for this distance is 25.1 made by Elizabeth Robinson. Miss Stephens covered 100 yards in :10.4, clipping four-tenths of a second off the record held by Stella Walsh.

Green Bay Packers Win First Exhibition, 22 to 0

38 Hurt When Bleachers Fall at Fight Program

Flint, Mich., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Thirty-eight spectators were injured when bleachers erected for a boxing program collapsed at a park at Potters Lake, near here today. Of the injured, only two required hospital treatment. They were George Jackson, 46, who suffered a broken ankle, and Pansy Pudvay, 34, who suffered a sprained ankle.

Sox Go East on Special to Meet Yanks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.—The White Sox are scheduled to leave here at 9 o'clock tonight on a special train and are due in New York early tomorrow afternoon. Ted Lyons will open against the Yankees Wednesday.

Sam Jones and Les Tietje were press box guests during the morning game and Tietje, John Whitehead and Tony Piet were there during the afternoon encounter. Tony's presence was possible because he suffered a minor hand injury in the morning game.

There were 31,000 at the morning game and 27,000 at the afternoon affair, a reversal of the usual ratio. Some blamed the 4,000 difference to the horse track here abouts and others said threatening and cold weather was responsible.

Warneke's lead became 2 to 0 in the third. Galan, who had fanned in his first appearance, led off with a single to left and stole second. Herman's bunt shoved him to third. Stainback was nicked on the shirt sleeve by a pitched ball, but Freitas compensated for this by serving strikes to Hartnett. Demaree lined a single to right, Galan scoring and Stainback sprinting to third.

Hartnett Slams One.

The Cubs continued to confine their scoring to the odd innings by coming up with one more run off Freitas in the fifth. After Galan had flied to left, W. Herman singled to right center. A fly to left also erased Stainback. Then Hartnett lined one to the left field wall and it gave him time to reach second in his own leisurely way. Meanwhile W. Herman raced home from first.

Bottomley can take credit for denying Warneke the shutout that through six innings appeared probable. The ex-Cardinal opened up in the seventh with a rakish drive to right and Stainback wasn't able to get the ball under control until the runner had reached second. Warneke tightened up and took care of the next two fellows, but couldn't get past Slade, who singled through short, Bottomley scoring. When Kampouris walked, Freitas was yanked to permit Campbell to bat. Gilly, ex-Cub, ended the inning with a fly to Demaree. In the last two innings the Reds recorded two more hits, but these merely delayed the inevitable.

SECOND GAME

Lee was able to restrict the Reds to one pass in the first two innings of the second battle, but a hit appeared in the third and there was trouble immediately. Slade led off with a single to left. Kampouris bunted in front of the plate and Hartnett threw wild to second, so both fellows were safe. Schott also bunted, but Lee pick up this one and forced Slade at third. Lee promptly offset this gain with a wild pitch which let the runners go to second and third. Kampouris scored while Goodman was rolling out to Hack and the inning was concluded with three strikes for Babe Herman.

Lee invited the Reds to get going in the fourth by plunking Bottomley in the back of the neck. Billy Herman also issued an invitation by booting Riggs' roller. The Reds were polite enough to accept without delay. Erickson singled to right, Bottomley scoring and Riggs taking third. Slade singled to left and Riggs registered. Root dashed to Lee's rescue and Kampouris sacrificed the runners to second and third, but when Schott attempted to bunt on a squeeze play and missed, Erickson was picked off third. Schott then fouled to Hartnett.

Babe Turns Burglar.

Until the fifth the Cubs could show only two hits off Schott. Then they turned loose a pair of them, and this was where Babe Herman did his stuff in a classical way. Hack opened with a single to left. Lindstrom popped out and Jurges caromed a single off Riggs' glove. O'Dea was sent forth to bat for Root and lined into Kampouris' hands, after the two runners had advanced on a wild pitch. Next came a liner off Galan's bat. It was headed for a wide open space in left center, but the lanky Babe came loping across, reached down with his gloved hand while under way, and the ball stuck. Painfully surprised by this, Manager Grimm, coaching at third, leaped into the air, turned over, and came down flat on his back.

Cuyler, who had been impotent at bat, finally got in a bit of revenge on his old boss in the seventh. Slade opened the inning by sending one of Carleton's pitches into left for a single. A sacrifice and strikeout came next. Then Cuyler looped a single into short right and Slade scored.

Customers Get Excited.

The multitude became steamed up in the home eighth, but it didn't last long. With one out Stainback batted for Carleton and survived when hit on the arm by a pitched ball. He went tearing to third on Galan's single to right. Billy Herman was thrown out by Kampouris and Stainback scored. Then Klein, after getting a 3 and 0 count, fouled a few and finally fanned.

The wild ninth inning finish blossomed with a single by Hartnett, who retired to let Warneke do his running. Demaree fouled to Bottomley. Then the Reds started falling apart. Hack lined to Goodman, who dropped the ball. Lindstrom grounded to Riggs and a double play seemed due as the finishing touch, but Kampouris let the ball fall from his hands. This filled the bases. The first three pitches to Jurges were wide of the plate, but he finished with a fly to Babe Herman, on which Warneke scored. Then Cavarretta batted for Kowalik and sent a fly to right which Goodman grabbed for the final out.

GUTHRIE WINS MIDGET AUTO 100 MILE RACE

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Gil Guthrie of Los Angeles beat a field of 33 drivers today to win the first annual 100 mile midget automobile race.

Eight laps behind him on the half mile dirt track came Jimmy Snyder of Chicago. Tudy Marchese of Milwaukee finished third. Guthrie got $2,000 for winning; Snyder, $1,000.

The other seven prizes were won by drivers who finished in the following order: Glenn Myers, Detroit; Curly Mills, Los Angeles; Bill Warner, Detroit; Harry Lewis, Chicago; Ted Tetterton, Waukegan, Ill.; Duke Nalon, Chicago, and Frank Brisko, Milwaukee.

SOPWITH SELLS ENDEAVOUR TO ENGLISH SKIPPER

PORTSMOUTH, England, Sept. 2.—(AP)—T. O. M. Sopwith, who is building a new challenger for the America's cup, has sold the sloop Endeavour to H. A. Andreae at a price understood to be £15,000. Andreae is owner of the British yacht Candida.

In making the sale Sopwith retains the right to buy back Endeavour if he wants her for an America's cup challenge.

Endeavour ended the racing season Saturday as champion of class J yachts. She won 13 first places against eight for the Boston sloop Yankee and a similar number for the British boat, Astra.

Bob La Monte, Chicago, 148 pounds, last night defeated George Engel, Plymouth, Ind., 148¼, in an eight round slugging match at Marigold Gardens. Engel partisans in the crowd booed the decision. Jackie Sharkey, 133, won a six round decision over Tony Michaels, 130, in the semi-final. Other results:

Wilmer Van beat Johnny Campbell [4].

Five Players Join Cards in Drill Today

The full strength of the Chicago Cardinals football squad will be on hand today for the first time since the Red Birds started practice at Mills stadium two weeks ago in preparation for the National Professional Football league race which opens Sept. 15.

Five additional men are to join the squad of 30. Three are last year's players. They are Pete Mehringer, former Kansas university star, who plays both tackle and guard; Bill Smith, ex-University of Washington end, and Ted Isaacson, 272 pound tackle.

Nichelini, Blazine Sign.

The newcomers are a pair of youngsters who played in the All-Star-Bears' game at Soldiers' field last week. They are Al Nichelini, former St. Mary's half back, and Tony Blazine, the Illinois Wesleyan tackle. Blazine starred at left tackle for the All-Stars, playing the full 60 minutes.

Three other pro football teams, the Bears, Green Bay Packers, and Detroit Lions were after Nichelini, who is one of the fastest sprinters in football. Owner Charles Bidwill outbid the other clubs.

Will Cut Squad Soon.

Coach Milan Creighton will have a tough task this week when the weeding out process begins. The squad must be cut before the game with the Packers at Green Bay, Sept. 15.

Celebron and Tonelli Head Card Tonight

Billy Celebron, Rockford welterweight, and Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, both Golden Gloves graduates, will meet in the ten round feature bout of the boxing show tonight at Western stadium, Western and Devon avenues. Both Tonelli, who at 23 is one year younger than his rival, and Celebron are hard punchers. The former appears to have the advantage in this respect, however, as he makes use of both hands while Celebron appears content to rely on the power of his right only. Supporting matches:

Patrick Henry vs. Ernie Kulasik [5], welterweights. Eddie Mileski vs. Stout Petrie [4], welterweights. Lorenzo Lovings vs. Davey White [5], lightweights. Sam De Pasquale vs. Steve Kulic [4], junior lightweights.

The Central Association of the A. A. U. has sanctioned the show being sponsored by Howard [Kid] Carr at White City tomorrow. . . . Harold Fitzsimmons of Joliet will clash with Tony Musto at five rounds in one of seven bouts scheduled. . . . Baxter Calmes yesterday sparred three rounds with Sunny Johnson, colored Kansas City, Mo., heavyweight, in preparation for his match against Art Sykes at Western stadium one week from tonight. . . . Sykes, suffering from a slight cold, took an electric cabinet bath and then went home. . . .

Don Davis, former featherweight champion of the navy, recently acquired a job at a north side mail order house. . . . Davis commanded purses averaging $1,500 in bouts on the Pacific coast and in this territory about ten years back. . . . Irving Goldstein, Chicago featherweight, has no fights in sight, but he worked out yesterday despite the holiday. . . . "Holiday or no holiday, I've got to lose some of this fat," explained Goldstein, who is approximately 8 pounds overweight. F. M.

AMATEURS BEGIN 6 DAY BIKE RACE IN PARK TODAY

Start of Chicago's first amateur six day bicycle race, scheduled yesterday in Humboldt park bowl, was delayed a day by rain. The field of 20 teams, including riders from Chicago, New York, Newark, Detroit, Wisconsin, and Canada, will be sent away at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The 40 starters won their places in a series of one-hour races Saturday. An injury sustained by Art Brown of Detroit while qualifying has forced him out of the race and necessitated a change in three teams. Joe Berlando, alternate, replaces Brown in the lineup and will be teamed with Ed Voorhees.

Good Shepherd and St. Adrian in C. Y. O. Final

St. Adrian and Good Shepherd won yesterday to qualify for the finals of the Catholic Youth Organization Baseball league. St. Adrian defeated St. Michael's [South Chicago], 9 to 3, and Good Shepherd beat St. Mary of Celle, also 9 to 3.

Ray [Lefty] Owens, St. Adrian pitcher, who had hurled his team to a 9 to 0 quarter final victory over St. Pius Sunday, returned to the mound yesterday to hold St. Michael's to five hits and place his team in the league finals for the fourth straight year. St. Adrian has never succeeded in winning a C. Y. O. title despite the fact that it reached the finals in 1932, 1933, and 1934.

This is the first time a team representing Good Shepherd parish has reached the finals. Ben Szymanski held the St. Mary of Celle to six hits.

The championship game will be played at Normal park next Sunday, Jack Elder, C. Y. O. athletic director, announced yesterday. A double-header with the C. Y. O. champions and runners-up, Louisville, Ky., will be played at Comiskey park Sept. 15. St. Elizabeth and Holy Cross, finalists in the Louisville C. Y. O. league, are scheduled to meet for first and second place tomorrow. Both teams will come to Chicago for the intercity meet, Elder said.

Cubs Buy .336 Hitter, Helixon of Grand Forks

The Cubs yesterday announced the purchase from the Grand Forks, N. D., team of the Northern league of Outfielder Roy Helixon. He is 22 years old, 5 feet 11 inches in height, bats left-handed and is good to his folks. His present batting mark is .336. He will not be called in until next spring.

All the Cubs have to do today is figure pennant possibilities. Tomorrow the eastern teams will start their final invasion of Wrigley field. The Phillies will be the first arrivals.

Because of the rainfall the club officials waited fifteen minutes beyond the scheduled starting time before peeling the tarpaulin off the infield. From then on there were only occasional drizzles which didn't seem to annoy such customers as were occupants of the open face box seats and the equally exposed bleachers.

CAMPBELL WILL TRY TODAY FOR NEW SPEED MARK

Travels at 240 M. P. H. in Test Over Salt Beds.

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell—his bronzed features flecked with salt crystals and smiling happily—clambered out of his giant Bluebird today after a trial run on the salt beds of Utah and announced he would attempt early tomorrow to better the world's land speed record of 276.816 miles an hour he already holds.

The 50 year old Englishman sent his 2,500 horse power machine roaring over the salt beds at a clip of 240 miles an hour today.

"Splendid Course," Says Campbell.

He was happy as a school boy as he squeezed out of the tiny cockpit at the end of the 13 mile straightaway, patted the 28 foot mass of steel and wood and prepared to call it a day.

"It's a splendid course," he said, "I had a better ride than on sand at the same speed."

He was referring to Daytona Beach, Fla., where last February, he boosted his own record to the present mark of slightly more than four and a half miles a minute.

Bluebird behaved like a real lady all during the dash, he said, but he noticed a few bumps at the start.

His earlier fears that the tires would not adhere to the salt as well as on sands were dispelled.

Finds Pickup Is Quicker.

Gazing out over the miles of level flats, sparkling under a sun that shot the thermometer up around the 100 degree mark, Sir Malcolm said:

Originally scheduled to make his first trial run around 8 o'clock this morning, Campbell did not get started until 10:52 a. m. [P. S. T.] [1:52 p. m. Chicago time].

Several thousand spectators, many motoring here from distant points, assembled three-quarters of a mile from the 200 foot wide track, scraped smooth and centered by a foot-wide line oiled in the salt.

This black line enabled Sir Malcolm to run true during the dash. He deviated once, he said, when he took his eyes off the road to look at his instruments.

When he struck the start of the mile stretch where the American Automobile association officials will record his time, he was traveling more than 230 miles an hour. He ranged up to 240 miles, which in his own words was "only coasting."

Tempted to Try for Mark.

"I was tempted to give her a real try, but decided not to this time. It was too late in the day to go after the record, he said.

The man who hopes to become the first to travel five miles a minute or faster, issued instructions to members of his party to be on the flats at 5 a. m. P. S. T. [8 a. m. Chicago time] tomorrow. At that time he is expected to make the runs down and back the course, with the average being his official speed.

AERO CLUB PLANS TO HONOR 'FATHER OF AVIATION' HERE

Dickinson Funeral Awaits Word from Sister.

Funeral arrangements for Charles Dickinson, 77 years old, pioneer Chicago aviator who died early yesterday in New York, were delayed pending the arrival in New York of his sister, Dr. Frances Dickinson, from Orange City, Fla. The body probably will be returned to Chicago for burial, according to Boyd Dickinson of Geneva, a nephew and president of Albert Dickinson company, wholesale seed concern.

Members of the Aero Club of Illinois of which Mr. Dickinson was president for almost 20 years, are awaiting word from his sister before arranging their participation in a tribute to "the father of Chicago aviation." According to Emil Laird, treasurer of the club, Mr. Dickinson supplied the money for the purchase of Ashburn field, the city's first airport, and thereafter met the deficits of the club, which was devoted to fostering the cause of aviation.

Mr. Dickinson first flew as a passenger in 1910. In 1912 he spent $1,200 in five weeks on air pleasure trips.

In 1921 he made his first solo flight at Ashburn field. He was then 63 and was accredited with being the oldest flyer in America. In 1920 he retired as vice president of the Albert Dickinson company, which had been founded by his father, and had since interested himself in various aviation enterprises, including the building of aircraft. Mr. Dickinson had been a passenger a score or more times on first trips made by new air lines.

Mr. Dickinson was born in 1858 in a house on the site now occupied by the State street store of Carson Pirie Scott & Co.

COUNTY SCHOOLS OPEN TODAY FOR 100,000 CHILDREN

About 10,000 children will end their summer vacation today when most of the public schools in Cook county, outside Chicago are opened. Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent, said last night that most of the 323 school houses in the county's 175 school districts will open their doors. About 3,200 teachers are prepared to teach the 100,000 pupils.

The parochial grade schools in city and county will open tomorrow with an expected enrollment of about 200,000, and the parochial high schools on next Monday.

Chicago's public schools will open Sept. 16.

Boys, 10 and 4 Years Old, Seriously Hurt in Falls

Two young patients were in the Children's Memorial hospital yesterday as the result of injuries incurred in falls. Robert Howe, 10 years old, 1449 North Clark street, suffered a possible skull fracture and severe lacerations when he fell through a skylight at the C. Christensen Riding academy, 1508 North Clark street, where he was playing. Thomas May, 4 years old, 710 West Grand avenue, fell from the second story window of his home and incurred a possible skull fracture and other injuries.

8,000 Watch Quintuplets Frolic on Hospital Porch

CALLANDER, Ont., Sept. 2.—(AP)—About 8,000 persons saw the Dionne quintuplets enjoy their airings on the veranda of their hospital home during the week-end. Dr. A. R. Dafoe, their physician, reported the babies all in excellent health, with a new tooth each for Emilie and Marie. The five youngsters showed an aggregate gain of 6¼ ounces in weight since Friday. All gained except Cecile, whose weight was unchanged.

Dr. Silas B. Frankhauser Dies at Hillsdale, Mich.

Hillsdale, Mich., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Dr. Silas B. Frankhauser, 66, veteran physician and surgeon, seven times mayor of this city, who was graduated from Rush Medical college, Chicago, died at his home here today. Among the survivors is a brother, Judge E. I. Frankhauser, Chicago, and a son, William H., prosecuting attorney of Branch county.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

For the first time two well known radio personalities are to be paired in a motion picture. The picture is Paramount's "Collegiate," in which Joe Penner and Frances Langford, the contralto songstress, are to play opposite each other.

Bing Crosby, Lanny Ross, Gladys Swarthout, Dorothy Page, and a number of other radio stars have been cast in leading rôles, but they have always been teamed with players accustomed to screen work. Penner and Miss Langford, who is currently heard on the Hollywood Hotel program, have each made one picture. In this opus Frances plays secretary to the president of a girls' boarding school and Penner is an amnesia victim.

M. H. Aylesworth, president of NBC, is to make an announcement of a contest for American composers during a special NBC Music Guild broadcast at 9 tonight over WMAQ. Frank Black, the Schumann quintet, and the Roth quartet are to provide music during this program.

Helen Morgan, who sings torch songs from piano tops, will make one of her infrequent radio appearances at 7:30 tonight over WLS-NBC when she is a guest of Edgar Guest on the Welcome Valley show. Miss Morgan will sing selections from "Show Boat" and "Sweet Adeline."

Mrs. Lou Gehrig, wife of the slugging first baseman of the New York Yankees, will make her radio debut at 7 p. m. tomorrow on the NBC Hits and Bits program, singing her own song, "I Can't Get to First Base with You."

Fritz Crisler, Princeton football coach, will bow in Sept. 9 with a series of Monday night football talks over the NBC red network. . . . It may be Hal Kemp's orchestra that will support Phil Baker on his new commercial series. . . . Jimmy Hatton is back with Leonard Keller's orchestra and on both NBC and CBS after an attack of pneumonia which kept him off the air for six weeks.

Don Ameche, young NBC actor, is back at work after a two week vacation in Hollywood. He took a screen test with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, but has not yet had a report on the results.

A program titled "From the Pines of Norway" will be presented at 8:30 tonight over WENR-NBC in tribute to Edvard Grieg, famed Norwegian composer. Selections from his works, including "Bergliot," "Peer Gynt," suite, and excerpts from "Olaf Trygvason" will be given by a symphony orchestra assisted by choir and Florence Malone, dramatic actress.

Dr. Frederick Stock, who has just returned from Europe, will direct the combined Chicago Symphony, Chicago Grand Opera, and Women's Symphony orchestras in the final concert at Grant park to be broadcast next Sunday evening. About 225 musicians will make up this superorchestra.

George Hoyt Whaple, 70, Will Be Buried Tomorrow

Masonic funeral services for George Hoyt Whaple, 70 years old, who died in Iowa City, Ia., on Sunday, will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. in the chapel at 720 Lake street, Oak Park. Burial will be in Forest Home cemetery. Mr. Whaple lived in Chicago from 1866 until 1923, when he moved to Iowa. He was a salesman for Chicago concerns dealing in artists' materials and picture molding. A daughter, Mrs. Helen Cook of Cedar Rapids, Ia., survives.

WORLD ZIONISTS BALANCE BUDGET FOR THE 1ST TIME

LUCERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 2.—(AP)—For the first time in Zionist history the world congress tonight voted a balanced budget.

The new budget provides for expenditures totaling 388,000 pounds sterling [about $1,940,000], as compared to 175,000 pounds voted by the preceding congress. The expenditures in the new budget, however, are entirely covered by provisions for receipts, which even provides for a reserve fund.

The congress adopted a resolution calling for the lifting of immigration restrictions from Palestine and the allotment of certificates in accordance with the economic life of the country. A resolution favoring the continuance of the Palestine-German barter agreement was also voted. The congress' decision, however, removes control of the transfer from the hands of the Haavara, special corporation which was created for the execution of the pact, and lodges supreme control with the world Zionist executive.

2 OSHKOSH MEN ON CYCLE KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Wilbert Sitter, 22, and Louis Markes, 21, both of Oshkosh, were killed in an accident on Highway 45, ten miles south of here, late today. The young men were riding double on a motorcycle and crashed headon into an automobile driven by Albert Buel, Fond du Lac, as they were attempting to pass a car. Witter was instantly killed and his companion lived only a few minutes. Buel was cut and bruised.

COSSIO, SPAIN'S FIRST HONORARY CITIZEN,' IS DEAD

MADRID, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Manuel Bartolome Cossio, 78, Greek scholar, art critic, and one time presidential possibility, died today at his summer home.

Cossio, a descendant of Manuel Flores Calderon, who was executed at Malaga in 1831 for his effort to obtain a Spanish constitution during the reign of Ferdinand VII., was an ardent Republican for many years. He was the first Spaniard given the title of "honorary citizen," the highest honor created by the republic.

Cossio was elected to the cortes as a Republican Socialist, but never took his seat. In the literary world he was noted for his "El Greco," one of the finest studies of the great Spanish artist.

He is survived by his widow Emma, two children, Irene and Robert Jr.; his mother, Mrs. Josephine Weiss, and four brothers besides Judge Weiss.

6000 cu. FEET OF CONDITIONED AIR

THOUSANDS of people visit the Lain Chapel every month—because more services are held in the Lain Chapel than in any other in Chicago. And their comfort is assured; their health protected, even on the hottest days.

FIRST IN CHICAGO

Lain's is the first Chapel to have a modern Air-Conditioned System. Every minute 6000 cubic feet of air is washed, refrigerated and circulated throughout entire building. Humidity is also controlled.

So when there is a service at Lain's—do not hesitate to attend. There is an abundance of purified air at the right temperature for season or attendance.

AT LAIN'S CHAPEL more funerals are held in one month than the average Chapel has in one year. This greatly reduces the Lain cost per funeral—makes possible lower prices—and one of the most up-to-date Chapels in the country.

All Chapel services, regardless of price, include the exclusive services of the IMPERIAL QUARTET ORGAN, ORGANIST

LABOR AID RAPS SUPREME COURT PENSION STAND

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 2.—(AP)—J. C. Lewis of Des Moines, president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor, told a crowd of more than 4,500 at a Labor day celebration here today that the United States Supreme court will have "to be respectable if it wants to be respected."

Lewis, one of the principal speakers on the Labor day program here, assailed the Supreme court as "nine old men with square hats and mother hubbards who made an unfair, inhuman and un-American decision against the old age pension plan when each member of the court will retire on an old age pension of not less than $10,000 a year."

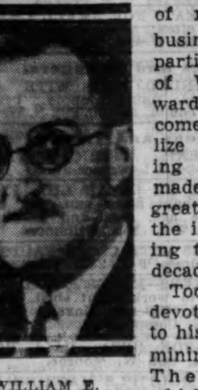
Sells Out After Air Mail Act Action.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Of the prominent names which faded out of aviation when congress took over the job of running the business, one in particular, that of William Edward Boeing, had come to symbolize the pioneering spirit that made possible the great progress in the industry during the last two decades.



WILLIAM E. BOEING.

Today Boeing is devoting himself to his timber and mining interests. The companies which he once headed are now being run by others, many of whom Boeing brought into the industry. After the passage of the air mail act of 1934, Boeing sold out his interest in the United Aircraft & Transport corporation for a reputed price of $9,000,000.

The company was split up three ways to satisfy the requirements laid down by congress for companies which hoped to participate in the air mail contracts. The Boeing manufacturing property in Seattle was segregated with the Stearman Aircraft corporation in a new concern, the Boeing Airplane company.

Gets Out of Business.

Boeing himself, however, has severed all connections with any of the properties which he formerly headed. He disposed of his holdings in United Air Lines immediately on the dissolution of the old United Aircraft. Since then he has sold out his interest in the two manufacturing companies which emerged from that break-up, it is reported.

Boeing first became interested in aviation about the time the world war started. He had gone to Seattle a few years after his graduation from Sheffield Scientific School of Yale university to enter the lumber business. His business did not prevent him from taking up a hobby—flying and science of aeronautics.

By 1915 his interest in aviation was sufficient to send him to Santa Ana, Cal. to take up flying lessons. He had not been flying long when an accident necessitated repairs on a flying boat which he had purchased. Tinkering with the plane, Boeing got the idea of building a ship of his own. That was the beginning of his manufacturing activities. He employed three men to build his first plane.

Aided by War Boom.

The Boeing plant expanded rapidly with the boom which the industry enjoyed during the war years. Boeing's original success was based on his development of military aircraft. A large share of all the airplanes in use in the country, including those of the army and navy, were built at the Seattle plant.

It was not until 1926 that Boeing entered the airplane transportation field. In 1929 his properties went into the United Aircraft and Transport corporation combine which was the most important unit in the industry until the break-up which was forced by congressional legislation last year.

In 1934 Boeing was awarded the Daniel Guggenheim medal for "successful pioneering and achievement in aircraft manufacture and transportation."

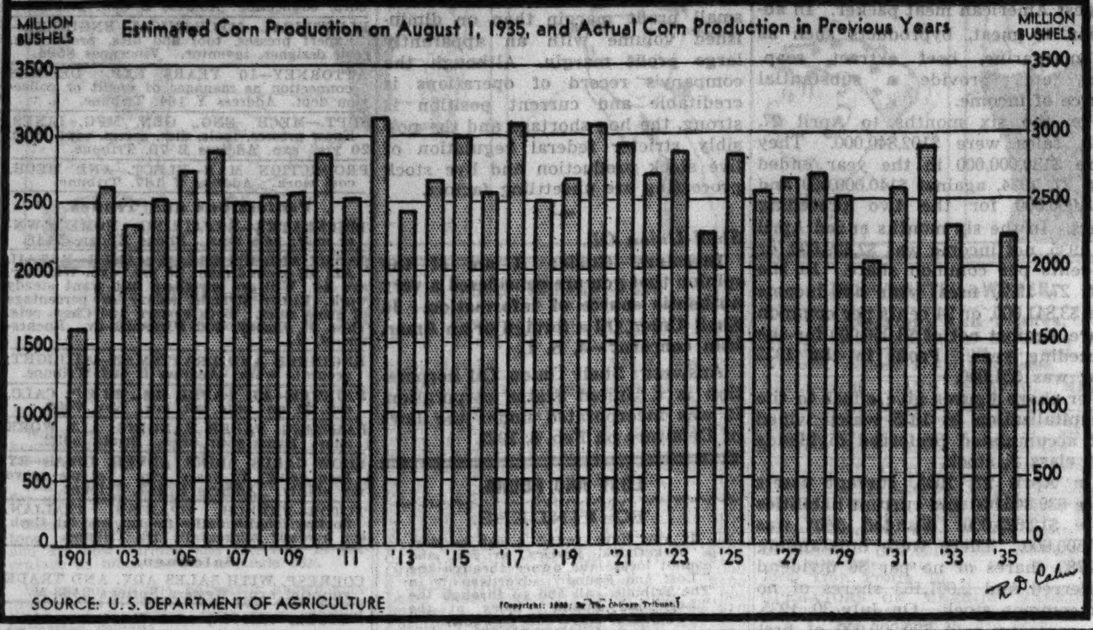
Phelps-Dodge Will Reopen Copper Mine; Employ 1,000

Ajo, Ariz., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Operations on the regular scale will begin at the New Cornelia copper mines of the Phelps-Dodge corporation here tomorrow with nearly 1,000 men returning to work. Michael Curley, manager of the mines, said resumption of work at this time was not unusual, as activities cease during June and July.

Banks, Markets Close for Labor Day

Security and commodity markets, banks and other financial institutions were closed yesterday in observance of Labor day. Foreign markets were open as usual. Domestic organizations will reopen today.

The Government's Estimate of This Year's Corn Crop Production Compared With Production of Previous Years



August Dullest on Record at Stockyards

The Chicago stockyards last month received a total of only 9,596 carloads of cattle, calves, hogs, sheep, and horses, the lowest August total on record. A year ago 17,475 carloads came in and two years ago the run was 18,416 cars. The previous low August was 11,910 cars back in 1882.

Cattle receipts were only 38 per cent of the capacity of the yards, while lambs were 22 per cent and hogs only 15 pe cent. While the drouth cut the recipts of all live stock, hogs showed the greatest decrease because it was against swine that most of the reduction schemes of the AAA were directed. Receipts of hogs for the month fell to 209,624, the smallest for any month on the official records, which hark back to 1878.

Previous Low Record in 1884.

The previous all-time low was 231,000 hogs back in March, 1884, and the previous low August was 268,000, made in 1888. As far back as 1880 Chicago had up to 452,000 hogs in August, and the all-time high record for one month stands at 1,436,029 in December, 1924. In July, 1933, the month before the AAA began the destruction of pigs and sows to reduce pork and hog supplies, Chicago handled 603,865 hogs.

Receipts in August, a year ago, totaled only 358,537, due to the pig killing a year earlier. In August, 1933, Chicago handled 731,698, including 165,373 pigs and sows bought by the government.

Arrivals here during the first eight months of 1935 at 2,389,022 hogs compare with 4,293,741 a year ago, and with a record of 6,167,805 in 1924.

Figures for Cattle Receipts.

Cattle receipts for August at 156,256 were largest since January, but smallest for August since 1884. They compare with 297,369 in August, last year, when 113,737 of the total consisted of government owned stock. The all-time cattle record stands at 415,456 in October, 1917.

Federal destruction of cattle herds reached the peak a year ago last month. Agents of the government bought 2,500,000 cattle and calves from farmers and ranchers in the drouth areas during August, 1934. The September purchases fell to 1,528,000, with October buying down to 930,000 and purchases in none of the following months over 500,000.

Cattle Receipts Dwindle.

Receipts of cattle during the first eight months of 1935 at the Chicago yards totaled 1,199,259, as compared with 1,737,737 for the same month last year. Calf receipts at 34,247 were smallest for August since 1918 and compared with 105,564 a year ago, when 68,320 of the total were calves killed by the government. The eight months' calf total at 317,318 compared with 499,975 in 1934.

Sheep receipts at 202,097 were smallest for August since 1892 and compared with 211,096 a year ago, the previous low, and with 318,912 two years ago. The largest month on record stands at 895,503 in October, 1910.

JAMES A. PRINDIVILLE BECOMES PARTNER OF THOMSON & M'KINNON

James A. Prindiville, a director of the Chicago Board of Trade, has become a general partner of Thomson & McKinnon, it was announced yesterday by A. W. Mansfield, Chicago resident partner.

JAMES A. PRINDIVILLE.

Prindiville, born here 43 years ago, was educated at private schools and started working at the Board of Trade in 1908. He bought a membership on the exchange the same year, at the age of 23, and is now serving his third term as a director of the grain organization.

He has been a grain broker for Thomson & McKinnon for 14 years. Prindiville will be the floor partner of the firm, Mansfield's announcement said.

LIVERPOOL GRAIN ADVANCES; OTHER MARKETS CLOSED

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—With American and Canadian markets closed, speculative interest in grains centered here today. Trading was quiet and featureless. Wheat advanced fractionally on small shipments by exporting nations, and insufficient rain in Argentina and Australia.

Allegheny Steel Acquires U. S. Rights to New Alloy

Exclusive American rights for manufacture and sale of a new magnetic alloy steel have been acquired from a British concern by Allegheny Steel company, it was announced yesterday by W. F. Detwiler, vice president.

Buick Motor Will Increase Working Staf

Flint, Mich., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Approximately 10,000 workers will have had steady jobs with the Buick Motor company throughout 1935, at wage rates which are the highest in the company's history and believed to parallel the highest in the automobile industry, it was announced here today by Harlow H. Curtice, president and general manager.

Buick employment, now at a new high for the year, will be increased during the remaining months of 1935. Several manufacturing divisions are on two and three shifts daily, while other shifts are being added.

Hourly rate workmen have earned an average of more than $140 a month since the first of the year, averaging 40 hours a week.

Long Layoffs Avoided.

There have been and will be no sustained or large layoffs this year due to sales fluctuations or other seasonal causes, with the entire working force averaging eleven and one-third months of work for the 12 month period.

Plans for increased production during 1936 to meet the considerably enlarged market estimated for next year, indicate a continuance beyond 1935 of the current high wage and employment averages.

"Employment data covering the period from Jan. 1 to July 31, 1935, show that at the low point this year a total of 9,912 men were on the payroll as against a previous peak in May of 10,833," Curtice said. "This low point, which occurred in July, represented the major layoffs of the year and was due to the shutting down of the engine and final assembly plants for retooling in preparation for 1936 models.

Spends $14,000,000 On Expansion.

"The extensive expansion program in the last 18 months, involving an expenditure of more than $14,500,000, was accomplished with very little loss of time to workers. The fact that the layoff periods were reduced to a minimum helped the remarkable employment average during the year and because all of these rearrangements now have been completed employment will continue at an accelerated pace for the remainder of the year."

Total wages and salaries for 1935 will exceed the $16,504,321 payroll of 1934, Curtice said. During the first seven months of this year the company has paid $10,557,265 to its employés.

MIDDLE WEST 'UNSCRAMBLING' FAIRLY SIMPLE

Setup Less Complex Since Depression.

Although Middle West Utilities company was one of the most complicated of the super-holding companies during the boom era, it is doubtful if the company will have as much difficulty in meeting the terms of the new federal utility act as other holding companies which have fared better financially.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1938, and subject to two years' grace, the new law provides for the legal execution of holding companies more than twice removed from operating companies. Second degree companies may continue only at the discretion of the federal securities commission. Furthermore, second degree companies are to be limited to "integrated systems" which are not too large to impair local management and "effective regulation."

Deflation Solves Many Problems.

The deflation of the last few years has solved many of Middle West's problems. After the parent company went into receivership in 1932 many of its corporate children and stepchildren followed its example and went into separate receiverships. By virtue of these subsidiary receiverships many of the companies in the system were permanently parted from the parent concern. Even without the new federal law it is doubtful if any of these companies could have been reclaimed by the parent firm. The most important of these was the National Public Service group, operating in the eastern states.

Under receivership and the present trusteeship the management of Middle West has set about systematically to simplify the capital structure. Several inactive companies have been dissolved.

Run as Investment Company.

The parent company is now run as an investment firm supervising forty-four active subsidiaries and fifty-five related concerns in which it has substantial interest, directly or indirectly. Of the forty-four active subsidiaries five are holding companies, two are nonutility companies, and thirty-seven are operating subsidiaries. Where possible the management has tried to eliminate intermediate holding companies. This is a difficult task inasmuch as each subsidiary holding company has bonds and stock outstanding other than those held by the parent firm.

Operations of the active subsidiaries are centered in fifteen states of the north central, middle west, and southwestern parts of the country, with one important electrical property in Ontario, Canada. In 1934 over 78 per cent of the gross revenues were derived from operations in five states—Illinois, Kentucky, Oklahoma, and Texas. The territory served is largely agricultural.

Setup Subject to SEC Ruling.

Whether, under such a setup Middle West could classify as an integrated system, provided all companies were brought within the second degree, is a question which will depend on the policy worked out by the securities commission. As yet no one has attempted a definition of what the commission is likely to consider an integrated system."

Systems like Commonwealth and Southern corporation, which have weathered the depression, probably face a bigger reorganization job than firms like Middle West which have been going through the financial wringer for several years.

WHAT THEY COULD TELL!

Fifteen former federal bank examiners for the Ninth district, centered at Minneapolis, Minn., gathered here yesterday in the penthouse atop the Hotel Sherman to celebrate their third annual reunion. Howard M. Sims, manager of the Chicago Clearing House association and former examiner at Minneapolis, acted as host. The gathering was confined to social activities, with business discussions outlawed. The group above, reading from left to right: T. R. Dwyer, Rochester, N. Y.; Herbert Hallenberg, Minneapolis; Fred Brown, Detroit; B. E. Boldin, Washington, D. C.; M. D. Smiley, Appleton, Wis.; A. B. Leyburn, Cleveland, O., who formerly served as chief examiner of the Chicago district, and Sims.

Fall Outlook Brightens as Trade Swells

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—General business has made more than the usual seasonal advance during August, and markets of all kinds give evidence of a further strengthening of confidence in the fall outlook, according to the September letter of the National City bank, of New York.

Retail business, it is pointed out, is running steadily ahead of last year and despite unfavorable weather in some sections of August, the general view is that fall merchandise trade will show an increase of fully 10 per cent over last year.

Manufactured Goods Firm.

Despite the charges that widespread price and wage cutting, and the abandonment of labor standards have followed the voiding of the NRA, prices of manufactured goods have been steady to firm with advances in some lines, the bank points out, and the unsettlement which would be expected in this condition had prevailed is not evident on the markets.

"The rise in stocks prices has carried further, with its usual heartening effect," the letter continues.

Evidence of Easy Money.

"The rise is interpreted as evidence that easy money is working its way more broadly into the economic situation and making a revival of the capital markets and an increase in capital goods expenditures more certain.

"The improvement may be accepted as evidence of the strength of the natural powers of recovery, which arise out of the wants of every one and the desire of every one to do business; and also of a better balanced economic situation so that these desires can become effective."

Friend of the Coal User

The Friend of the Coal User will supply information on economical use of coal in an attempt to enable users to meet with less loss the added expense which the Guffey coal law is to load on the Chicagoland public. Inquiries should be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Items of general interest will be published.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—I own a six room bungalow facing west. In the same block south of us there is another bungalow similar to ours. Both places have the same type of steam heating boilers. Why do we require about one-third more coal per month than this neighbor? While the other bungalow has storm windows and we have not, the additional coal we use seems unusually high. B. M.

Answer: You have given the reason—the difference between storm window protection and none. Heat losses through single glass windows are twice as great as through properly fitted storm windows. Your use of 33 per cent more coal might easily be 50 per cent under the circumstances.

DOLLAR LOSES GROUND AGAINST POUND AND FRANC

The dollar slipped fractionally against the pound and franc yesterday in foreign markets. Domestic activity was negligible, due to the Labor day holiday. In Paris the dollar closed at 15.1625 francs, equal to 6.59 cents to the franc, compared with Saturday's New York close of 6.605 cents to the franc. In London the dollar closed at $4.95 15-16 to the pound, against $4.96¼ Saturday.

Bar silver was unchanged in London at 29 pence, equivalent to 64.77 cents an ounce in American funds. Bar gold advanced 1½ pence to 140 shillings 3 pence equal to $34.77 an ounce.

DURABLE GOODS INDUSTRY FAR BELOW NORMAL

Confidence Needed, Says J. W. O'Leary.

Because the machine tool industry is booming and sales of agricultural implements are running 60 and 70 per cent ahead of last year, some persons have been inclined to believe production of durable goods is approaching normal levels and that the depression problem is solved.

JOHN W. O'LEARY.

Such is far from the actual case, said John W. O'Leary, president of the Machinery and Allied Products institute, in warning against overoptimism yesterday. Less than 8 per cent of the machinery needs of industry is represented in the two comparatively prosperous groups, he said.

A survey made directly through the institute's 58 member trade associations disclosed that agricultural implements account for only 3.94 per cent of machinery requirements today. Machine tools make up 3.9 per cent of the needs.

Machine tool production is humming along at a 110 per cent rate,

CANADA BETTERS ITS POSITION IN NEWSPRINT FIELD

Steady Gains Shown During Last Eight Years.

Canada's position in the world's newsprint market has shown steady improvement during the last eight years and prospects for continuance of the trend is excellent, according to a study published by the Canadian Newsprint Export association.

It points out that Canadian production of newsprint rose from 1,914,000 tons in 1932 to 2,599,000 tons in 1934. A third of the increase was sold abroad.

Several Factors Aid Outlook.

Factors that place Canada in a favorable position to improve its position, according to the study, are several. It points out that Scandinavia and Newfoundland are now producing at their maximum capacity; the large investment necessary to develop newsprint in the United States to a point where this country would be a major factor in the world market will act as a check for several years, and Russia has difficulties in meeting domestic requirements.

In addition, the per capita consumption of newsprint from 1927 through 1934 has followed an upward trend among practically all major nations.

Detail Per Capita Usage.

Per capita consumption of newsprint in the United Kingdom, for instance, was 57½ pounds in 1934, a gain of 20 pounds over 1927. Argentina's per capita consumption in 1934 was 27 pounds, up 13.9 pounds from 1927; France's gain was 7.7 pounds, to total 19 pounds; Germany, where strict censorship prevails, lessening interest in newspapers, gained only seven-tenths of a pound during the seven year period, consuming 11.6 pounds per person in 1934.

PAPER FIRM CAN'T MEET INTEREST; MAY REORGANIZE

Portland, Me., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The Brown company, $74,000,000 paper manufacturing concern, reported to bondholders today it was unable to meet interest due on its bonds and would file a petition for reorganization under the new national bankruptcy act.

The concern, operating mills in Berlin, N. H., and La Tuque, Que., and holding extensive timberlands in this country and Canada, is one of the largest paper manufacturing companies in the east. Approximately $21,425,000 in bonds were affected.

BONDHOLDERS ASK STUDY OF MILWAUKEE PLAN

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—An independent bondholders' protective committee for Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad securities, composed of James D. Colyer, Louis I. Kane, and Henry Schienk, has petitioned the interstate commerce commission to make an exhaustive inquiry into the reorganization plan of the St. Paul, which has been presented to the commission.

In comparing and pointing out the similarity of the reorganization plans of the St. Paul in 1928 and the proposed 1935 plan, the committee, in its communication to the I. C. C., opposed the 1935 plan chiefly on the basis of future control of the railroad, which, it contends, is virtually in the same hands under the proposed plan as it was when the road went through reorganization in 1928.

The independent protective committee questions the ability of proposed five voting trustees, not as to motives or good faith, but as to their willingness to select directors of the St. Paul who would act in the best interests of the security holders.

U. S. SEAL SKIN CONSIGNMENTS REACH ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The government's annual shipment of Alaskan seal skins, 48,702 pelts valued at $1,500,000, has arrived here. It was the largest consignment since 1910. For the next year 160 employés of a fur company holding a government contract will be engaged in converting the ugly, sand colored skins into rich furs.

The next auction of seal skins will be held here Sept. 16, when furs from the 1934 catch will be sold to buyers from all over the world. Pelts auctioned last year at an average price of $23.37.

The seals are trapped in Alskan waters under a treaty between the United States, Japan, and Russia, under which this country guards the herds and supervises the annual catch.

WARNS DURABLE GOODS INDUSTRY FEARS U.S. POLICY

O'Leary Sees Confidence Needed for Expansion.

while farm machinery makers are around 65 per cent of normal output, but the average for the entire machinery industry is not expected to show more than 40 or, as a maximum possibility, 50 per cent of normal when figures are made available in a few weeks for the first six months of the year.

The institute survey disclosed actual machinery needs of 18½ billions of dollars accumulated during depression years. To fill this order, said O'Leary, 4,000,000 workmen would be kept employed steadily for two years.

"This is not based on theories of average life and obsolesence through invention," he pointed out, "but on actual needs itemized in detail by manufacturers who set down their requirements on paper in dollars and cents."

Only Machinery Surveyed.

O'Leary also emphasized that the figures cover machinery requirements only. They take no account of broad equipment needs in other durable goods industries, such as housing, and are apart from "the dammed up flood of equipment business existing in other than the machinery field."

Machinery makers are not buying their tools with thoughts only of expanded activities and stepped-up production as is ordinarily the case. They are buying to reduce costs of production, to economize on fuel and power, to effect greater safety and efficiency, to obtain greater precision, to replace machinery that is broken or worn out beyond repair, or to replace machines which have become obsolete or outmoded because of invention and progress.

Fear Federal Measures.

Business confidence necessary for expansion buying is lacking because of fear of destructive governmental measures, O'Leary pointed out.

"An essential consideration of the survey," he said, "was its promise upon the establishment of sound governmental policies and return of normal business confidence. If business were given reason to have confidence in the future, the possibilities never have been greater."

Holding back investment in the durable goods, said O'Leary, are attacks on the profit motive, redistribution of wealth schemes, uncertain monetary policies, the prospect of burdensome taxes, government competition with private business, and development of uncertain administrative law for greater control of private business.

Wilson & Co.

Investors' Guide: I am contemplating an investment in Wilson stock. Any information you can give me will be appreciated.—S. R. E.

Answer: Wilson & Co. is the third largest American meat packer. In addition to meat, byproducts such as oleomargarine, beef extract, soap, glue, etc., provide a substantial source of income.

For the six months to April 27, 1935, sales were $102,840,000. They were $180,000,000 in the year ended Oct. 27, 1934, against $140,000,000 and $143,000,000 for the two preceding years. In the six months ended April 27, 1935, net income was $2,489,000, or 75 cents per common share. In the Oct. 27, 1934, fiscal year net income was $3,841,000, or 94 cents per common share, against net of $3,056,000 for the preceding year. Profit in the 1932 year was $51,000.

On April 27, 1935, current assets were $39,845,000 and current liabilities were $12,623,000. Funded debt was $17,500,000. There were outstanding 324,783 shares of no par $6 dividend preferred and 2,001,163 shares of no par common stock. On July 30, 1935, the company sold $20,000,000 of first mortgage 4 per cent bonds, due 1955, to refund outstanding indebtedness.

Dividends are being paid regularly on the preferred. A quarterly dividend of 12½ cents per common share is payable Sept 3, the second of this year.

The acute hog shortage has resulted in a sharp rise in price of hog products. The rise has been so strong that consumption of hog products has shrunk substantially. Because of the comparatively few hogs available, incoming supplies have diminished, which has resulted in a portion of the plants being nidle. Packers fare far better on a large volume with a small profit margin than on diminished volume with an apparently large profit margin. Although the company's record of operations is creditable and current position is strong, the hog shortage and the possibly stricter federal regulation of live stock production and live stock processing are unsettling factors.

Shell Union Oil.

Investors' Guide: I am of the opinion that you are considered a very authentic source of information. Is Shell Union Oil a foreign or an American concern?—J. S. L.

Answer: Shell Union Oil corporation is a United States corporation. It was incorporated under the laws of Delaware on Feb. 8, 1922.

Illinois Coal Mines More Active Due to Cool Weather

Harrisburg, Ill., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The unseasonably cool weather, resulting in heavy early shipments of coal, has brought increased mining activities in Saline county. Officials of the Sahara Coal company announced their No. 1 mine near here, idle since April 1, will reopen Wednesday. It will give employment to 650 men.

Would you be interested in starting in business for yourself without one cent of investment on your part?

Well, that is exactly what we have done for many men in this territory.

These men were previous storekeepers, doctors, lawyers, shop workers, mechanics, etc. and are now earning and receiving in percentage as much as $50 a single day.

We are an old line, nationally known manufacturer of electrical units that defy competition and for which there is a constant, increasing demand.

Now here are our requirements—you must be under 50, preferably married, honest, reliable, possess a neat appearance and possess at least a grammar school education.

At this time we will only interview men living on the South Side of Chicago, northern Indiana, and northeastern Illinois.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a confidential interview and, if selected, will be trained at our expense in our methods, which are successful.

There are no strings attached to this offer, as we even pay rent, light, heat, telephone, girl hire, consign your merchandise, and finance your accounts.

Apply Tuesday only between 1 and 3 p. m. Ask for Mr. Lovell, Suite 404, Maryland Bldg., 63d-st. and Maryland-av.

WILL CONSIDER A FEW YOUNG MEN, 25 to 40, for sales work; thru elec. appliance dept., prefer men with some sales experience, who are willing to work for promotion, as these positions are permanent and offer those selected an opportunity for worthwhile earnings on a percentage basis. Must be neatly dressed, alert and own a car. For app. see Mr. Tefft, 11th floor, Employment Dept., Tuesday, 9:30 to 10:30 only. MANDEL BROTHERS. STATE AND MADISON.

YNG. MAN—ABOUT 19 YEARS OLD, FOR circulation campaign. Experience unnecessary. Must be neat, ambitious and free to travel. Salary, $18 per week to start, after one day training. Apply 11 to 12 a. m. or 2 to 4 p. m. 6724 Stony Island-av., Suite 410.

ACT NOW

It is to your particular advantage to register now even if you cannot start your course until later. Call, phone, or write at once.

The easy-to-learn Burnham System quickly enables you to become a skilled beauty operator. Plenty of living models. You learn by doing rather than by studying. Each teacher a specialist. Fewer pupils per teacher; 64 years' knowing how to teach gives you a flying start.

SEE FOR YOURSELF WHY MORE GIRLS ENROLL IN BURNHAM'S THAN IN ANY OTHER BEAUTY SCHOOL.

BURNHAM'S AWARDS TRIPS TO PARIS TO STUDENT. Geneve Huffman, winner of semi-annual Burnham scholarship for efficiency while in training, sailed June 19 on S. S. Manhattan with all expenses paid. Burnham's offers opportunities not found elsewhere.

DAY AND EVENING CLASSES. Pay for MOST of your tuition after graduation. Open every day and on Monday, Wednesday, Friday evenings until 9 p. m.
